Thomas Read Sues Brooklyn Union to Force Distribution of Concealed Earnings.

SURPLUS PUT AT $14,000,000

Asserts Enormous Profits Are Covered Up to Deceive Public Service Commission.

ACCUSES WM. ROCKEFELLER

Of Directing the Company's Affairs from 26 Broadway—Treasurer Jourdan's Denial.

Asserting that the Directors of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company are withholding $7,000,000 that should be distributed among the stockholders, Thomas Read of 833 St. Mark's Avenue has begun a suit, in which he demands an accounting and makes charges of extravagance and mismanagement against the officers of the company.

Some time ago Read obtained an order in the Brooklyn Supreme Court compelling James H. Jourdan, Vice President of the company, and William Rockefeller and David G. Leggett, two of the Directors, to submit to an examination before trial. Upon application yesterday Justice Crane set July 10 as the day for the examination, and also as the day when Elverton R. Chapman, Treasurer of the company, shall appear in court with all the books, papers, and records mentioned in Mr. Read's affidavit. The other defendants to the action are Henry H. Rogers and Henry W. Cannon, individually and as Directors of the company.

W. Bourke Cockran, who voted 1,090 shares at the last meeting of the stockholders, and Martin T. Manton represent Mr. Read, who holds 1,620 shares of stock in the company. The Brooklyn Union Gas Company and the individual defendants are represented by Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn.

Tells of Millions Concealed.

Mr. Read, who is acting for a committee of stockholders, asserts that millions of dollars in profits have been concealed from the Public Service Commission and that the concealment was begun in 1905 in an attempt to deceive the Legislature as to the cost of producing gas. His complaint charges that William Rockefeller directs the affairs of the company from his office in the Standard Oil Building, Manhattan, for the profit of himself and other owners of the Standard Oil Corporation.

James H. Jourdan, Vice President of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, and a son of the late Gen. James Jourdan, who was for many years President of the company, has entered a general denial of the charges. He asserts that it is the desire of a few stockholders to usurp the functions of the Directors and have a stock dividend declared or the rate of dividends increased.

In his complaint Mr. Read accuses the officials of the gas company of having unnecessarily expended $500,000 in the purchase of City of New York stocks and bonds; of having unnecessarily expended $1,000,000 for real estate and the erection of buildings, and of having unnecessarily borrowed $500,000 at full interest from two trust companies when there was more than $3,000,000 to the credit of the corporation in banks and trust companies at 2 per cent. interest, of which $880,000 was on deposit in the two trust companies from which the half million was borrowed. James H. Jourdan and David G. Leggett, two of the defendants, the complaint recites, were at the time Directors and stockholders in the trust companies from which the gas company borrowed this $500,000.

Says Standard Oil Controls It.

Further, the complaint charges the company, its officers and Directors with keeping a cash balance of $3,000,000 in banks and trust companies, far in excess of the sum necessary for the needs of the corporation, and with representing the corporation's surplus at $7,000,000, when, it is alleged, it exceeds $14,000,000.

Mr. Read charges that concealment of the company's assets began years ago in an attempt to deceive the Legislature of 1905 as to the cost of producing gas; and that, "having failed in this respect, it has since been continued for the purpose of deceiving the stockholders and despoiling them."

The allegation is made that in its opposition to reducing the price of gas to 80 cents, the corporation was directed and controlled by William Rockefeller, and that the company's management has been actually directed for the last ten years from the office of the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway.

"William Rockefeller owns but 100 shares of its capital stock, but nevertheless chooses the officers and Directors and determines its policy, not for the benefit of the stockholders or the safeguarding of their property, but for the profit of himself and of his associates, who have no interest in the defendant corporation, but who are owners of the Standard Oil corporation."

"The said Rockefeller," the complaint goes on, "also dominates and controls the Consolidated Gas Company, so that both corporations, although nominally separate, are directed and managed in all important matters by the same person."

Why Earnings Were Concealed.

Among other charges set forth in the complaint are these:

That a misleading system of keeping accounts was resorted to, thus concealing profits.

That the amortization fund amounts to 15 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, and should it keep up its present pace could be increased to 50 cents per 1,000 feet.

That in November, 1911, when James H. Jourdan was asked for a copy of a report of the company's condition in which it was stated 17 per cent. dividends could be paid on the capital stock, "said Jourdan answered that the Directors were unwill-

MARCONI FLASH TO WALES.

First Message Sent from New Wireless Station at New Brunswick.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 2.—The Marconi wireless station here is completed, and Supt. Holberg today told of sending the first message to the station in Wales. It was flashed two weeks ago, but was not announced until today, when no chance remained that it had been a fluke.

Commercial business cannot begin until Fall, because a clear connection between the receiving station at Belmar, N. J., and the sending connection here has not yet been established.

There was no sentiment in the sending of the first message. The dominant thought in the minds of all grouped in the little room was, "Will it work?" It worked. But the message had no coherence, no sense. It consisted merely of what words happened to come into the operator's mind.

Soon a real message, an inaugural message, will be sent. And not many weeks afterward the first commercial message will follow it.

BIG LAKE LINER ASHORE.

The Assiniboia, with 100 Passengers, Stranded in Georgian Bay.

MONTREAL, July 2.—The steamer Assiniboia of the Canadian Pacific Railway upper lakes fleet, with 100 passengers on board, ran ashore early today on Bad Neighbor Island, near Cove Island in Georgian Bay, and was still aground at a late hour tonight. Relief vessels were standing by, and as the liner was resting easily no fear was felt for her safety or that of her passengers.

Weather condition favoring, it is hoped to clear her from the shoal by tomorrow.

Details of the mishap received from Owen Sound by wireless were that the liner was crawling down through the gap, one of the most dangerous spots on the upper lakes, through a dense fog, and apparently ran slighly out of her course and went hard and fast aground. The water was calm, so that there was no panic among the passengers, who, with few exceptions, were asleep and did not know for some time that the vessel was ashore.

The steamer Manitoba, which had just left Owen Sound, a port of call, for the head of the lakes, replied to wireless calls for assistance, as did the Midland Station, which apprised the Canadian Pacific headquarters. The Manitoba reached the Assiniboia in the morning and stood by waiting for the arrival of the steamer Alberta, which had been hurriedly dispatched from Port McNicoll to take off the Assiniboia's passengers and bring them to their destination at Port McNicoll. In the meantime tugs were sent to the cove to relieve the big vessel. As she is lying easily with her bow about five feet out of water it is hoped to have her off within a few hours.

The Assiniboia was bound from Sault Ste. Marie to Port McNicoll, and carried 100 passengers and a large cargo.

BIG CARPET PLANT CLOSES.

Sanford Shut-Down Attributed to General Business Depression.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 2.—The carpet and rug plant of Stephen Sanford & Son at Amsterdam, which employs nearly 4,000 hands, will close tomorrow for an indefinite period. Notice to that effect was posted today. General Manager William H. Cooper said the shutdown was due to general business depression. With the McCleary, Wallin & Crouse plant closed for inventory, and other mills in the city closing on account of business and industrial troubles, business in Amsterdam is said to be stagnant.

Shirt factories at Keyesville, East Nassau and Petersburg have been closed, throwing 150 persons out of employment, and President W. C. Woodward of the Chatham Shirt Company announced today that unless there was a revival in business his plant, employing 175 persons, would also close.

SUICIDE CLUB IN PRISON.

Another Prisoner Ends His Life in Passaic County Jail.

PATERSON, N. J., July 2.—Reports that there was a suicide club in the Passaic County Jail became current last night when Arthur Masker, a seventeen-year-old colored boy, was found dead in his cell. He had hanged himself with a strap affixed to the door. Rudolph Strausberg, a prisoner waiting trial for bigamy, hanged himself on Saturday night, and a day or so ago a boy who had torn the clothes off his back and was trying to make a rope of them was put into another cell with a trusty. It is said in addition that several other prisoners have been discovered tearing up blankets in the last two weeks, apparently with suicidal intentions. Sheriff Amos H. Radcliffe attributes the two suicides to despondency.

"Possibly," he said today, "Masker had committed a more serious crime than the small robbery for which he was arrested, and was afraid that it would be discovered. Strausberg acted strangely all the time he was here, and may have been slightly insane."

It is said that the prisoners are well fed and properly cared for. Today Judge Ben Cohen will pay a visit to the jail and try to enlist all the prisoners as members of the Anti-Suicide Club which he formed in Paterson some months ago.

CARFARE INCLUDES FERRIAGE

Staten Islanders May Ride by Water and Rail for a Nickel.

Residents of Staten Island will now be able to transfer to and from their ferryboats and the cars of the New York Railways Company at South Ferry without paying an extra nickel. The lines to be thus hitched up to the ferries are the Broadway-Columbus, the Sixth Avenue, the Amsterdam Avenue and the Eighth Avenue. The Lexington Avenue cars do not run south of Bowling Green and are not included in the bargain. No re-transfers are to be permitted.

Of each nickel the city will get 2 cents and the New York Railways Company 3 cents. It was admitted yesterday at the Board of Estimate, at which the contract with the company was approved, that the arrangement might increase the debt on the ferries to $200,000 a year, but since the city was pledged to the policy it must be carried out.

WITH THE FLEET.

WILSON AND MORGAN HAVE FRIENDLY CHAT

Financier Visits White House on His Own Initiative—Ford Invited Next Week.

A CHANGE IN ATTITUDE

President Now Willing to Get Views of Big Business Men—Morgan Goes About Capital Unrecognized.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Wilson today had a long and friendly conversation with J. P. Morgan of New York. Early next week he will receive Henry Ford, the manufacturer of automobiles, and on another day a large delegation of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The President said, after Mr. Morgan left, that the calls, past and future, were unrelated. His friends said it was possible that the President would obviate the criticism that he had been found inaccessible by men vitally affected by his anti-trust programme.

Mr. Morgan was in high good humor when he left the President, but smilingly refused to say why he had come to Washington or what he had discussed with the President. One suggestion made later was that he had presented his views on the New Haven situation. When the President was questioned about the call, he said it was largely personal. He had known Mr. Morgan for a long time, he said, and their talk was chiefly in a reminiscent vein. They had many friends in common, said Mr. Wilson, and their talk had turned on them.

Without any reference to Mr. Morgan's visit or the expected calls from Mr. Ford and the Chicago business men, the President told his visitors this afternoon that he thought the industrial leaders realize the force of his argument that the enactment of the proposed trust legislation would relieve the business of the country from a weight of uncertainty. Objections to his plans that had reached him through the mails, he said, had been of a general sort, with few specific citations. The President seemed to infer that the critics of the Administration's programme had not read the bills.

Mr. Morgan seems to have come to Washington on his own initiative, but Mr. Ford was invited to a luncheon with the President next Wednesday following an interview he gave in which he took the view that the tariff was not responsible for the business depression. That is the President's own view. He has announced that when the needed legislation is enacted business will have a period of rest, and it is believed that his conversations with men identified with large industrial interests may prove to be a sort of rainbow to remind business men that the flood will not come again.

Marked Change in Attitude.

Very few men prominent in the financial and industrial world have been received at the White House since Mr. Wilson's inauguration. Andrew Carnegie has been a casual and welcome caller. James J. Hill and James Speyer have been received. That is about all. When currency legislation was under way the President refused to see Frank A. Vanderlip of New York and Henry P. Davison of the Morgan firm on the ground that he needed no further information on the subject then sharply dividing Congress.

What is construed as a change in the President's attitude toward conferences with persons interested on pending legislation seems to be emphasized by the fact that the delegation from the Chicago Association of Commerce is coming for the admitted purpose of stating their views on certain aspects of trust legislation with which they are particularly familiar. It is said that the delegation will include the heads of the houses of J. V. Farwell & Co., Marshall Field & Co., Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., Sprague, Warner & Co., J. Y. Ryerson & Sons, the Cudahy Packing Company, and Reid, Murdock & Co.

Friends of the President say that his past refusals to see prominent business men did not arise from any feeling of hostility. They think the President felt then that, after deciding on a definite programme, he did not want to be put in the position of yielding to pressure from "big business." They say he has always welcomed the views of rich and poor alike through the mails.

President Wilson and Mr. Morgan were together in conversation for nearly an hour. Now that two of the Administration's reform—the tariff and the currency—have been completed and a third—the trust legislation—is in a final stage, the President is said to feel that an exchange of thought and information with captains of industry will be conducive to the business revival he expects to see along lines which the Administration holds to be legal.

Mr. Wilson told inquirers that Mr. Morgan expressed no opinion as to whether business was good or bad. The President added that the attitude of business men seemed to be growing in favor of the Administration trust programme. White House officials declared the President had no thought of altering his legislative programme.

Visit Cordial, Says Morgan.

Mr. Morgan ran the gantlet of a rapid fire of questions as he emerged from the White House.

"My visit with the President was very cordial. You will have to ask him what we talked about," was his response to all questions, as he drove away. Later a persistent questioner pressed Mr. Morgan a little closer.

"Mr. Morgan," said he, "has the President sent for you and the other business men of the country, or are the business men coming here to talk to him?"

"Don't you think we ought to?" rejoined Mr. Morgan. He said later that he had had an understanding at the White House that President Wilson should make any announcement of their conference.

The remainder of the afternoon Mr. Morgan spent in observing what freedom a world figure may enjoy in the capital of his country. At luncheon he sat in a hotel café alone. Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary Garrison almost rubbed elbows with him, apparently oblivious of his identity. A dozen other widely known persons who were in the place for luncheon did not recognize him. Mr. Morgan made a trip unaccompanied to the Capitol, strolled through Statuary Hall, and over the route of the tourists, saw a guide point out to a party of schoolma'ams the six-toed Indian and the three-armed girl in the painting in the rotunda, and went to the Senate gallery. A taciturn doorkeeper barred the way to the private gallery used by guests of Senators. Mr. Morgan, hat in hand, tried to pass in.

"Got a ticket?" demanded the sentry.

"No, but I am acquainted with Senator Root," ventured Mr. Morgan.

"Can't help that," responded the man. "Go around to that other gallery where they let anybody in without a ticket."

Mr. Morgan found a seat among such sightseers, tourists, and idlers as find their way to the Congressional galleries on a Summer day. Senator Cummins was making a speech on the Administration's Trade Commission bill. Unrecognized, Mr. Morgan listened for nearly an hour, leaning forward frequently to catch clearly what was being said. He returned to the railway station some time before the hour of his departure. He took a chair in one of the public cars and started back to New York.

BARNES NAMES ROOT FOR STATE LEADER

Says U. S. Senator Will Be Virtually Leader in Thought and Action.

PARTY'S DEBT TO HIM

Chairman Barnes Disclaims Any Influence in Selection of Candidates for United States Senator.

From what William Barnes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, said yesterday many persons were led to infer that he would be quite willing to turn the leadership of the Republican Party in this State over to United States Senator Elihu Root.

What Mr. Barnes said came in the course of his talk with some newspaper men regarding the decision of Senator Root not to stand for re-election in the primaries. Mr. Barnes said that Senator Root in all probability would be nominated as one of the Republican candidates for Delegate-at-Large to the Constitutional Convention, which is to be held in this State next year. He added that if the Republican Party should dominate the convention, Senator Root beyond doubt would be made Chairman of that important gathering. In the last Constitutional Convention Joseph H. Choate held the gavel, while Senator Root was the flood leader.

"While Senator Root, much to my regret, has declined to be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, where he has made such a wonderful record and rendered such conspicuous service to the nation, this does not mean that he will retire completely from public life, as I understand it," said Mr. Barnes. "The Republican Party, which owes so much to Senator Root, will not let him retire at this particular time, when a crisis is at hand. I predict for Senator Root years of continued service for his party. He will be a conspicuous and a potential figure in the affairs of the Republican Party in this State in future years—virtually its leader in thought and action."

Mr. Barnes has already declared that he does not intend to become a candidate for re-election as a member of the Republican State Committee, and that he will continue as State Chairman throughout the coming campaign only if such a unanimous request be forthcoming as that which moved him to accept the Chairmanship in 1912. His present term will come to an end immediately after the primaries in September. Under no circumstances, Mr. Barnes has told his friends, will he remain at the head of the State organization, should the Fall campaign in this State result in a Republican victory. On the other hand, Mr. Barnes does not intend to relinquish his membership in the Republican National Committee, where he will continue active in the national affairs of his party.

Mr. Barnes was asked yesterday afternoon to define his attitude toward the expected candidacy of ex-Speaker James W. Wadsworth for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Root.

"I do not care to say anything about that," he replied. "How could I tell at this time in whose favor I would vote at the primaries? The designations to places on the primary ballot will be promulgated early in September, and there undoubtedly will be a good many candidates for the nomination to succeed Senator Root. After the names of all the candidates have become public I will be in a better position to tell."

Mr. Barnes's modest disclaimer of any influence in relation to candidacies in the primaries beyond his one vote is not taken seriously by Republicans anywhere. It was generally predicted yesterday that ex-Speaker Wadsworth would have the cordial support of Mr. Barnes and of the conservative element in the Republican Party should he announce himself a candidate for the Senatorial nomination.

OBJECT TO JAPANESE.

Movement for an Anti-Alien Land Law Started in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., July 2.—The announcement that 400 Japanese laborers from California are coming to settle in Alger County, this State, has started an anti-alien land law agitation here, and it is reported an attempt will be made at the next session of the State Legislature to enact an anti-alien land law similar to the one in California. The Japanese will engage in vegetable farming when they arrive in Alger County.

"I view any such colonization movement as this with grave apprehension," said President J. L. Snyder of the Michigan Agricultural College today. "We are willing to welcome only such settlers as will become American citizens."

"We will never stand for any Japanese colonization in Michigan," said O. L. Hildebrant, President of the Michigan Federation of Typographical Unions. Other labor leaders expressed similar opinions, and the affair has been referred to the State Board of Agriculture.

POSSE ON A MAN HUNT.

Farmer Slashes His Wife with Stiletto and Takes to Woods.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., July 2.—Mrs. Angelina Leo, the wife of Cosmo Leo, a Buena farmer, went to a blackberry patch near her home today, when her husband sprang from a thicket, and, with a stiletto, stabbed her a dozen times. The woman screamed, and Leo, believing he had inflicted mortal wounds, fled into the woods. A posse of angry farmers, heavily armed, is scouring the forest in search of him.

Dr. John S. Halsey removed the woman to the Physicians' Hospital, and tonight she is in a dying condition. Leo is 60 years of age and his wife is 45. They had quarreled because she would not sign a quitclaim deed to their little farm.

TRY TO DYNAMITE HERR IN HIS HOME

Explosive with Fuse Attached Is Found Under Westinghouse President's Bedroom Window.

INTRUDER SHOT STRANGER

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 2.—An attempt to dynamite the home of E. M. Herr, President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and to kill Mr. Herr, an outgrowth of the strike at the three Westinghouse plants here, was frustrated early yesterday by a passerby, who saw a man placing dynamite under the bedroom window of the Herr residence at 140 Hutchinson Avenue, Edgewood. The police found four sticks of dynamite, with a fuse attached, under the window.

The attempt was discovered by R. O. Miller of Wilkinsburg, a furnace expert, who was passing the Herr residence about 1 o'clock in the morning on his way home. He heard a rustling in the shrubbery. Crossing the lawn to investigate he was confronted by a man, who pointed a revolver at his head and ordered him to throw up his hands.

Miller leaped for the intruder, but was stopped by a bullet, which pierced his left hand. A second shot passed through his hat, grazing his head. A third shot missed him entirely. The man then fled through the shrubbery. Miller notified the Edgewood police and a search revealed the four sticks of dynamite with the fuse attached.

Miller is of about the size and build of Mr. Herr, and the dynamiter may have mistaken him for the Westinghouse President.

Whether they shall return to work or continue the strike will be put before the 10,000 Westinghouse strikers in a referendum vote to be taken tomorrow afternoon in the Tabernacle at Turtle Creek. To allow the strikers to vote on returning to work was determined at a meeting of the Strike Committee this afternoon.

The strikers, in session in the Tabernacle this morning, adopted a resolution calling on Gov. Tener to withdraw the State Constabulary from the strike zone. A telegram was also sent to Mr. Tener as President of the National Baseball League notifying him that unless the constabulary were withdrawn the strikers and other labor organizations in sympathy with them would withhold their patronage from the Pittsburgh national team.

Nine strikebreakers were taken into the Westinghouse plants at East Pittsburgh this afternoon. They traveled to the town on a train from Pittsburgh. The strikers had received reports that fifty men would be taken into the plant. It is believed that the strikers' pickets at some point along the route induced the bulk of the strikebreaking force to desert.

Strike leaders announced today that they would seek another conference with President Herr in an effort to keep negotiations open.

ROW OVER PANAMA CLAIMS.

Commissioners at War, and New Board May Be Named.

PANAMA, July 2.—The troubles of the American-Panaman joint land commission, which is endeavoring to settle land claims, have grown serious, according to the legal officers of the canal, who today made no secret of their apprehension that the work of the commission would result in failure and that it would be necessary to appoint a new one. The matter probably will be referred to the State Department at Washington.

It is said that difficulties between the American members of the commission have tended to complicate the situation and make an agreement improbable. The Panama members still decline to recognize certain rules which had been agreed upon by the Panama Minister at Washington and the State Department.

It was reported last month that the attitude of the Panama Commissioners was causing much annoyance to the American Commissioners, who declared that the Panamans were insisting on compensating claimants who already had received payment for their land holdings inundated in the lake area. It was charged that these claimants, after being paid, squatted on other territory which was flooded when the lake reached the 85-foot level.

LIGHTNING KILLS SOLDIERS.

Also Burns Farm and Causes Fatal Accident During Storm in France.

PARIS, July 2.—Electrical storms today broke the heat wave, which has been prevailing for several days. Lightning did much damage. At Bourges, Department of Cher, lightning struck a tent where troops were in camp, killing two soldiers and seriously injuring four others. At Chappelle, near Bourges, a farm house was set on fire and a farmer badly burned.

Blinded by a flash of lightning at Rouen, Dr. Belleu, a prominent physician, lost control of his automobile, which dashed into a ditch by the roadside, killing him.

A hurricane, accompanied by a heavy fall of rain and large hailstones, did great damage in the Champagne region.

GUY PHILLIPS KILLS HIMSELF IN OFFICE

REFUSED TO QUIT WORK

Family Had Urged Him to Take a Vacation, as His Nerves Were Unstrung.

Guy Phillips, Assistant Secretary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head in the record room of the railroad's offices in the City Investing Building at 165 Broadway. He was last seen alive by Edward Murphy, night watchman of the building, who passed the room on his rounds at 9:30 o'clock in the evening, and through the open door saw Mr. Phillips standing in the room, apparently at work. An hour later he saw him lying back in a chair and went in to investigate. He found Mr. Phillips with a bullet hole in the right temple. A revolver was lying under the chair.

Murphy called Patrolman Monegan from the Greenwich Street Station, and Dr. Valentine was summoned from the Hudson Street Hospital. He said that Mr. Phillips had been dead for some time. On the table was a slip of paper on which had been written: "Please notify my wife, Mrs. Guy Phillips, Darien, Conn. Ring four times. Also A. H. Caleff, Seabright, N. J., telephone 45; also Dr. Harry Moffett, telephone 107 Yonkers." Mr. Caleff is Treasurer of the Missouri Pacific.

Mrs. Phillips was notified at once. It was said at Mr. Phillips's home that he had been ill for several weeks from a nervous ailment, and that his family had tried vainly to get him to take a vacation. He insisted on coming to town every morning from his home, at Darien, to his work. Mrs. Phillips and her daughter were prostrated by the news of the suicide.

H. G. Phillips, a nephew of Guy Phillips, who lived with him in Darien, Conn., said over the telephone last night:

"My uncle would not stop work, and we were all afraid that there might be serious consequences. I suppose that the bad condition of his nerves and the strain of the large amount of work he had been doing must have depressed him to such an extent that he suddenly gave up the fight in despair."

Dr. Henry Moffet of Yonkers, who was mentioned in the note left by Mr. Phillips, was told of the suicide over the telephone late last night. He said that he and Mr. Phillips had been friends for many years.

"I saw Guy a week ago and urged him to go to a sanitarium," he said. "He was looking very much run down and seemed more depressed than I had ever known him to be. At this time, and on several previous occasions, he spoke of committing suicide because of his ill-health, but we always thought he was joking and paid little attention to the remarks.

"He suffered a nervous breakdown about ten years ago and had to quit business for the time and go to Wiesbaden, Germany, for a rest. Ever since then, however, he has seemed greatly improved in health. Although he refused to go to a resort or sanitarium when I first suggested it I had determined to make him go to one next Sunday, for he was both my patient and personal friend. His wife was greatly alarmed over his condition and telephoned me last week asking me to come to Darien and examine him."

O. B. Huntsman, Vice President of the Missouri Pacific, when informed of the death of Mr. Phillips, was greatly shocked. He said that he had talked with Mr. Phillips yesterday afternoon, and that he had seemed to be in the best of spirits and health. Mr. Huntsman could think of no possible reason for the suicide. Mr. Phillips had been with the company since the days of the Jay Gould regime, and had worked his way up from a small place. He was trusted completely by the officers of the company.

F. J. Shepard, Vice President of the Missouri Pacific, when informed at his home in Tarrytown last night of the suicide said that Mr. Phillips had been in the service of the company for many years and that he was much respected by all the officials. Mr. Shepard would not discuss the death further.

Mr. Phillips was Assistant Secretary of the Missouri Pacific, of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, and Secretary of the Iron Mountain Car Trust. He was President of the Opera House Realty Company, with offices at 165 Broadway; Secretary and Treasurer of the Richmond & Chesapeake Bay Railway Company, and of the Three States Realty Company, and was Assistant Secretary and Treasurer of the Vrignia Railway and Power Company.

He had been a member of the Mendelssohn Glee Club of New York for about thirty years, and was for a long while a member of the New York Yacht Club. He was about 61 years old. His brother, George Phillips of this city, was formerly the champion ice skater of the East.

KIDNAPPER PLEADS GUILTY.

Buono Gives Up When "Squealer" Appears and Gets Long Term.

Antonio Buono of 1,136 First Avenue, alleged leader of the band of kidnappers who held 5-year-old Giuseppe Gumnia for a $2,000 ransom on the threat that if the money was not paid the boy would be chopped to pieces and the parts sent to the parents by parcel post, pleaded guilty before Judge Wadhams yesterday, and was sentenced to Sing Sing for a term of not less than twelve and a half nor more than twenty-five years.

Buono decided to plead after Matteo Pallazzolo, another member of the band, had been called as a witness against him by Assistant District Attorney Weller. Pallazzolo is also under indictment on the kidnapping charge. He testified that Buono was the man who handled the money for the blackmailers. Pietro Brusco and his wife, Niva, who held the boy in their house, were sentenced last week by Judge Nott to terms of from twenty to thirty and ten to twelve years, respectively. Beneditto Randazzo, another member of the band, was placed on trial yesterday afternoon.

When Pallazzolo took the stand, the defendant, Buono, nearly collapsed. Word was passed out to the corridors, where friends and relatives of Buono were gathered, that Pallazzolo was "squealing," and their cries of rage filled the corridor until the court attendants cleared them out.

MR. THOMPSON FRANK.

Gets Leave of Absence from House "to Run for Renomination."

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Members of the House laughed today as leave of absence was formally granted to Representative Joseph B. Thompson of Oklahoma "to prosecute his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Congress." It was the first time on record that a Congressman had been so frankly literal in presenting a request for leave. "Important business" and "illness" are the stock excuses.

WOMAN AS PRISON HEAD.

Dr. Helena Fox to Superintend British Female Convict Institutions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—A most interesting and important appointment has been announced by the Home Office. The Home Secretary, on the recommendation of the Prison Commissioners, has appointed Miss Helena Fox, M. D., to be Woman Superintendent and Deputy Medical Officer of the institutions for women at Aylesbury, comprising the female convict prison, the Borstal Institution for Females, the State Inebriate Reformatory for Women, and the Preventive Detention Prison for Women.

Miss Fox took the degree of M. D. at Durham University after being educated at the London School of Medicine for Women.

FRENCH SENATE PASSES TAX

Now Approves Impost on Incomes That It Previously Rejected.

PARIS, July 2.—The Senate voted tonight to include in the 1914 budget the 5 per cent. tax to be collected upon incomes received in France from foreign stocks, bonds, and securities of whatever form, including Government bonds.

It was the refusal of the Senate to include this tax in the budget which prevented the passage of the budget before the Chamber which was recently dissolved.

The Chamber of Deputies tonight unanimously expressed itself in favor of the clause in the Electoral Reform bill providing for proportional representation as passed several times in the last Chamber. A motion was accepted by the Government inviting the Universal Suffrage Committee to expedite its examination of the bill.

FRENCH INVESTORS HIT.

Said to Have Lost $111,000,000 in Last Six Months.

PARIS, July 2.—French investors lost 556,000,000 francs ($111,200,000) during the last six months, according to the calculations of Edmond Thery, the economist, based on an examination of the quotations on the principal French investments in the last five years.

The holders of French rentes have lost 4,000,000,000 francs by their depreciation, according to the same authority, who calls this a national calamity which is to be attributed to spendthrift budgets and the succession of Ministries.

$100,000 CIGAR COUPON TAX.

Massachusetts Lower House Aids War on Trading Stamps.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 2.—The lower branch of the Legislature today advanced to a third reading a bill apparently designed to drive the trading-stamp companies out of the State, but really to prevent the United Cigar Stores from cutting prices. The bill imposes an annual tax of $100,000 on companies that issue stamps or coupons which may be exchanged for premiums. First it was proposed to make the tax $6,000, but upon discussion the legislators decided that this amount would not be prohibitive.

The sponsors of the bill are retail cigar dealers.

LOST ALIMONY BY WEDDING.

Court Upholds Archie Hall in Suit Brought by ex-Wife.

In a decision handed down yesterday in Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice Aspinall ruled that a woman cannot collect alimony for her own support from a divorced husband if she remarries. The suit in which the question was made an issue was brought by Mrs. Margaret Linton, wife of Horace Linton, a real estate broker, to recover $3,459 from her former husband, Archie Hall, the proprietor of a restaurant at Centreport, L. I.

The couple were married in 1892. Hall's name at that time was Archibald Hall Connor. Since that time he has had his name changed by order of the Supreme Court. The couple have one child, Ethel, who is now 19 years of age. The couple separated in 1903. In April, 1908, Mrs. Connor obtained a divorce and $12 a week alimony was awarded to her.

FALLS FROM OFFICE WINDOW

King's Body Lands Close to a Man Walking in Warren Street.

Henry King, manager of the office of P. Garvan & Co., rag brokers, on the eighth floor of the Smith, Gray & Co. building at Broadway and Warren Street, either jumped or fell from the window of his office about 7 o'clock last night and was killed. His body landed in Warren Street, almost at the feet of Edward E. Milon of 1,115 Amsterdam Avenue. It was so mutilated that neither John Atherton, superintendent of the building, nor Fritz Wurslam, the watchman, could identify it. They searched through the building until they found the door of King's office open.

He was identified by letters in his pockets. One of them was addressed to his wife at their home at 203 West 147th Street. It was stamped and ready for mailing. No one connected with the company could be found last night to throw light on the accident.

It was said at Mr. King's home that the members of his firm were in Europe and that he had been working very hard and was under a nervous strain. His wife had urged him to consult a physician, but he had replied that all he needed was a vacation.

SEEK MURDER GUN AT CARMAN HOME

WOMAN IN WHITE IN OFFICE

Girl Says Doctor's Wife Admitted Patients—New Witnesses Tell of Man on Lawn.

MRS. CARMAN VIEWS BODY

Never Saw Dead Woman Before, She Asserts—Report That She Slapped Face of Doctor's Companion.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEPORT, L. I., July 2.—With almost the entire Freeport police force ranged on guard around the home of Dr Edwin Carman, former Health Officer of this place, and scores of villagers crowding the sidewalks on both sides of the street in front of the house, a lantern-lit search of the grounds was made tonight for the revolver with which Mrs. Louise Bailey was killed in Dr. Carman's office on Tuesday night. The police also drained the cesspool at the rear of the house, but when they stopped their hunt for the night no trace of the murder gun had been found.

The search of the Carman grounds, decided on late this evening after Mrs. Carman had been taken over to Hempstead to look upon the body of Mrs. Bailey before an autopsy was made, was taken to signify that the police felt the circle of their search for the missing weapon narrowing around the doctor's home. There were other developments also today that seemed to indicate that.

Just before midnight, however, District Attorney Lewis J. Smith gave out a statement that the authorities had found two men, Charles Smith and Percy Adams, who had said that they had been working on the night of the murder on the lawn of the home of W. W. Black, adjoining the Carman grounds on the west. The pair, according to Mr. Smith, said that immediately after the shooting they saw a man, carrying a straw hat in his hand, run across the Carman lawn, vault a white picket fence between it and the Black yard, dart across the Black lawn, and disappear on the Merrick Road in a westerly direction.

The men gave no description of the fugitive and the District Attorney gave no reason for withholding the news of their discovery two days, nor for announcing it at this time.

At the inquest, which was postponed because of the new developments until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, several sensations are promised by Dr. Carman himself.

Stopped by reporters in his automobile after he had passed beyond the watchful and silencing cordon of police early today, he made many striking additions to the fund of available information about the circumstances of the shooting. Among other things, it appeared as a result of his talk that Mrs. Carman opened the door of the physician's waiting room for at least one of the patients who called there on the night of the murder, and that thus she might have had knowledge of what persons were waiting there. This was learned also from other witnesses.

Woman in Office After Murder.

Important discrepancies both as to the time of the murder and as to the police notification of it were brought out today. The presence of a woman on the ground floor of Dr. Carman's home immediately before the shooting and in the private office immediately thereafter, which had heretofore been denied by Dr. Carman and other members of his household, was also testified to emphatically by one witness of Mrs. Bailey's death.

All these things were learned by reporters in spite of the measures taken by the local authorities to block every avenue of information concerning the case. Late this evening a TIMES reporter got Dr. Carman on the telephone at his home and arranged to see the doctor there and have a talk with him about the murder.

"But there are police all over the front yard," he warned the reporter. He agreed, however, to let the reporter enter by way of the kitchen door, in case he could get that far.

It could not be done. A high fence and two bulldogs were braved in adjoining yards in the rear of the Carman home, only to encounter the police cordon that shifted restlessly along the outlines of the Carman grounds, forbidding entry to any one but the Coroner. Any attempt to interview Dr. Carman at his home or to question the women members of his household was thus rendered impossible.

Dr. Carman himself, when buttonholed by reporters as he was driving a woman relative to the railroad station in his automobile, explained the facts of the shooting as before, with important additions. He said that although he could see only two fingers of the mysterious hand that crashed armed through his office window and brought death in from the outer darkness, he was certain the hand was white and that it was a left hand. He heard the shot, saw Mrs. Bailey fall, and a moment later saw Archie Post and George Golder, two patients, rush in from the waiting room. He worked over the dying woman, he said, but immediately called Dr. William Runcie across the street on the telephone.

"It was only a few seconds after the shooting," he insisted. "I am sure of that. Dr. Runcie wanted to wait until he had finished his supper, but I insisted that he come over immediately, and he did, in a few seconds. I felt that it would look beter for me to have another doctor there. Then, immediately after telephoning for Dr. Runcie, I called the Coroner and the police."

Discrepancies in Statements.

These statements as to time differed greatly from the statements of others interviewed later in the day.

Dr. Carman said the authorities had searched his home immediately, and that Coroner Norton on the very next morning asked him whether there was any weapon in the house and received from him the .22-calibre automatic revolver which he kept in his bureau drawer. But, according to District Attorney Smith, the authorities did not even know of this revolver until late that night after the discovery of the dictograph i nthe Carmen home. Dr. Carman also said that when Sheriff Pettit last night asked him if he knew there was a dictograph in the house, he said he did not. Sheriff Pettit said Dr. Carman told him he knew it since morning.

One of the reporters asked Dr. Carman whether it was true, as reported in the village, that Mrs. Carman had detected him in company with one woman, whose name the reporter mentioned, and that Mrs. Carman had thereupon slapped the woman's face. Dr. Carman was visibly ill at ease over this question, and sought to curtail the interview immediately.

"There is something in that story," he admitted, "but you are on the wrong track. You haven't got the right name."

"What is the right name? Who was the woman?" was asked.

"That will all come out at the inquest tomorrow," said the physician. "I don't want to tell you now. You'll have to wait."

"Did Mrs. Carman, your wife, see any of the patients that came to your office or were in the waiting room that night?" was asked of Dr. Carman.

"Well, she told me she had let one man into the waiting room before she went upstairs," he replied.

Mrs. Carman Admitted Patients.

According to Miss Helen Combes, a stenographer, of Freeport, who was one of the patients waiting for Dr. Carman in the waiting room adjoining the private office while Mrs. Bailey was consulting him, Mrs. Carman admitted more than one person to the waiting room. Miss Combes said that she herself, as was her custom, walked into the waiting room without ringing at about 7 o'clock and took a seat there. Immediately thereafter a man whom she did not know entered. A few minutes later a woman, who, from the descriptions since published, she thinks was Mrs. Bailey, entered the house without ringing. Then, according to Miss Combes, a knock sounded on the side door, and the door was opened by Mrs. Carman, admitting a man. Following this, she said she heard Mrs. Carman tell several patients who called that Dr. Carman was busy at supper, and that some of them went away and others stayed and waited.

Dr. Carman said Mrs. Bailey had called, complaining of a four days' indisposition, for which he prescribed a tonic and quinine and vegetable pills. He thought that she might have called once before, on Monday night, but that at that time he told her he was busy with a desperate case and that all the patients in the waiting room would have to go away. He said she returned on Tuesday, and it was either 8 or 8:30 o'clock when she was about to leave and was shot.

This time, however, does not tally with the account told by George Golder of Baldwin, who was one of the patients in the waiting room at the time. Golder fixed the time between 7:30 and 8 o'clock, pointing out that he remained at the doctor's twenty minutes or half an hour after the shooting, and, nevertheless, got to his home in Baldwin by 8:45 o'clock.

Golder said that ten minutes before the shooting he heard a woman's voice, apparently coming from the porch at the front of the house, calling to a little girl who was practicing on the piano and telling the child to stop, as the doctor was busy.

The child stopped playing. Then, Golder said, he saw the woman, dressed in white, with a white shirtwaist and white skirt and tight white belt, go through the hall from the front of the house toward the kitchen, and a few minutes later return as she had come. At this time, according to the story told to the District Attorney at the Carman home last night, Mrs. Carman was in her nightdress in bed upstairs, and her sister, Mrs. Ida Powell, was in her own room, also upstairs.

Golder was sure that the person who fired the shot could not possibly have passed to the window from the front yard, as that would have necessitated passing the open window of the waiting room where he sat. That window was the third from the window where the shot was fired.

"Immediately after the shot," he said, "I rushed outside to the cement walk beside the house. There was no one in sight. I am sure of that. Escape must have been by way of the rear of the house. I stayed there only a few moments, and then ran back into the house and into the private office. There was the body of Mrs. Bailey, Dr. Carman, and Archie Post. The two women who had been in the waiting room had run back into the interior of the house terrified.

"There was also in the office the woman in white, and I recognized her voice as the same that had spoken to the child in the front of the house a few minutes earlier. She came into the office from the inside of the house. The doctor was repeating, 'What shall I do? What shall I do?' and the woman also said, 'What shall we do? How did it happen?'

"Dr. Carman said he had seen a man's arm and a revolver stuck through the window. No, he did not say he saw only two fingers, and that it was a left hand."

Golder Contradicts Carman.

Golder denied absolutely that in the twenty minutes or half hour he had been there after the shooting Dr. Carman had called any one on the telephone or that the police, Coroner, or Dr. Runcie had come there.

"I would have heard any telephone message," he said. "I heard only one, and that was a call that came from a patient of the doctor's while Mrs. Bailey was lying dead on the floor. I remember distinctly the doctor told the woman over the telephone, 'Take three tablets each day after meals.' I was in the private office or in the waiting room just outside the open door all the time."

Golder described the woman who was in the private office after the shooting as rather tall, quite stout, dressed in a white shirtwaist and white skirt, with a tight white belt. She wore no glasses, he said, and was not gray haired. He could not tell the color of her hair. She seemed frightened. He thought she was Mrs. Carman.

Golder then added a new bit of information to the case in describing what happened thereafter.

"About twenty minutes after the shooting," he said, "I went outside and looked at the broken window. I found a four-inch new shingle stuck between the window frame and the big outer screen, about half-way up the screen.

"The shingle kept the screen so far open that I could put my whole head under it, when I tried."

Golder next said he had told the Sheriff about the shingle today. Heretofore there has been no mention of such a shingle, and the careful search that the police professed to have made of the window immediately after their arrival at the Carman home, revealed no trace of it. According to the police version, borne out in part by Golder's testimony, that arrival was not till an hour or so after the shooting.

Much importance rests in the identification of the woman in white, who, Golder said, had been in the front part of the Carman home just before the shooting and in the private office immediately afterward. According to the statements made to Sheriff Pettit at the Carman home, both Mrs. Carman and Mrs. Powell were at that time in their rooms upstairs. The woman mentioned by Miss Combes as having admitted some of the patients into the waiting room, unlike the woman mentioned by Golder, was said by her to have worn a white shirtwaist and blue skirt.

Coroner Norton today obtained permission from the family of Mrs. Bailey to perform an autopsy over the body in the undertaking shop of Alonzo C. Cornell.

By the advice of George Morton Levy, friend and counsel of the Carman family, Mrs. Carman was brought over in an automobile to view the body and state whether or not she had ever seen Mrs. Bailey before. Mrs. Carman wore a heavy black veil. She refused to speak to any one, and hurried across the pavement between the curb and the undertaking shop amid a volley of camera clicks.

In the shop were the undertaker, former Justice of the Peace Chas. F. Gittens, Coroner Norton, Assistant District Attorney Charles Weeks, and the physicians who performed the autopsy, Dr. R. D. Grimer, Dr. H. Phipps, and Dr. Runcie.

Never Saw Dead Woman Before.

Mrs. Carman was led to where the body lay. The sheet was lifted back from the face and she gazed upon it.

"Poor woman! Poor woman!" she said. "I am very sorry for her. I never saw her."

Then, still veiled and silent, she returned to her lawyer's automobile and was driven home.

The autopsy was performed by the physicians, and their findings, by order of the Coroner, were not made public officially. It was said, however, that there had been a difference of opinion as to the physical condition of Mrs. Bailey, two of the physicians corroborating the opinion previously given by Coroner Norton and Dr. Carman, and one differing therefrom. The course of the bullet was traced, and it was said it was of .38 calibre.

At the Bailey home, at 103 Williams Street, Hempstead, Mr. Bailey could not be seen by reporters. Mrs. Jennie Duryea, mother of the dead woman, lamented bitterly the rumors that the shooting had brought about the family.

"It is very hard," she said. "Not once, while my daughter lived, was there a breath of unfavorable comment about her, even that she was in any way unconventional in her actions. And now, when one might expect to find respect shown for her memory, there are these gossipings so false and so terrible. I always felt that those rumors raised since the shooting were false and slanderous, and now the autopsy proves them to be so."

No Private Detectives Hired.

Mrs. Duryea denied a rumor that Mr. Bailey had hired private detectives to work on the case, being dissatisfied with the efforts made by the Freeport authorities to apprehend the murderer of his wife.

"So far," she said, "we have been satisfied with the honest intentions of the authorities to do their best. As long as we are satisfied of this we would not call in outside help. We are determined to leave no stone unturned, of course, to bring to justice the person who killed my daughter."

The action ground out so slowly by the Freeport authorities emanates—when it does emanate—almost exclusively from the Elks Club, just a stone's throw away from the Carman home. Dr. Carman and almost all the prosecuting authorities are Elks, as well as Masons. The automobiles of the brother Elks stand all day and most of the night in front of the Carman home and the Elks Club, where the secret conferences are on.

Chief of Police Lamb tonight was asked about a rumor that a petition to the Attorney General was being got up to supersede the present investigating officers in the case. He said he knew nothing of it.

There was also a rumor that in a search for dictograph records possibly taken by Mrs. Carman, a diary kept by her had been found, revealing all the conversations she had overheard, carried up to her private writing desk from the doctor's office. This, however, was denied by Dr. Carman himself, as well as by the local authorities. Dr. Carman also denied published reports that he had received threats over the telephone days before the shooting of Mrs. Bailey.

Coroner Norton, who was widely mentioned in the newspapers some months ago as a result of the discovery that accountings for automobile fines for nineteen months were missing, was seen by the reporters once today and asked for news of the case.

"I don't think I ought to talk with you fellows," he said. "The less I say the better."

At the inquest which is to be held in the Court House tomorrow morning, it is expected that both Dr. Carman and his wife will be examined at great length, not only as concerns the events immediately preceding and following the murder of Mrs. Bailey, but also about the installation of the dictograph in the Carman home and the reasons that led to it.

In this connection it is believed Mrs. Carman's suspicions will be drawn out in detail, and names of all women patients or visitors who figured in them will be elicited, with a view to following such revelations up with prompt and thorough investigation in each case.

The funeral of Mrs. Bailey will be held at the Bailey home in Hempstead on Saturday night, and on Sunday the body will be buried in the Greenfield Cemetery.

GIFFORD'S STORY NOT TOLD.

Jerome Closes Case for Defense Without Putting Prisoner on Stand.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 2.—William Travers Jerome, counsel for Malcolm Gifford, Jr., the Hudson student on trial for the murder of Frank J. Clute, the chauffeur, on April 1, 1913, closed the case for the defense today without putting the prisoner on the stand. Instead of having Gifford explain where he was on the night of the murder, Mr. Jerome relied on the character witnesses and on those who swore that Clute's fare on the fatal night was not Gifford.

Mrs. Samuel D. Gibson corroborated her husband's testimony of yesterday that Clute and his passengers got out of the car opposite their house on the Schenectady road, a short distance from where the disabled car was found, and that the passenger was not Gifford. District Attorney Alexander put Mrs. Gibson under a severe cross-examination, and then in rebuttal, after the defense had rested, endeavored to show that the story of the Gibsons was an invention, and that the two, who were not then man and wife, were not near the scene of the murder on that night. He tried to show that Mr. Gibson had not hired the house, which was owned by Mrs. Julia Benjamin at the time of the murder, contending that Gibson had talked with Mrs. Benjamin last Wednesday and had asked her to say that he engaged the place about March 20. When Gibson denied this the District Attorney produced Mrs. Benjamin and she swore that Gibson had asked her to make such a statement.

According to Gibson, who was recalled, he and his wife went to the house on the day of the murder from Troy via the Schenectady Railroad. Maintaining that the story of the witnesses was an invention, Mr. Alexander tried to show that only recently Gibson sought information from railroad employes in Troy as to whether the Schenectady cars ran at the time of the murder. Gibson denied this, and was contradicted by George Boville, announcer at the Troy station, and Ernest G. Lock, a Schenectady railway conductor.

Mrs. Gibson said she formerly lived in Hudson, and had seen young Gifford within two years. To her was shown the license card of Clute, which was found in the bill book, and she identified Clute's picture as that of the chauffeur she saw get out of his car about 10 o'clock opposite her house on the night of April 1, 1913, to examine it. There had been a bad place in the road, she said, and two or three automobiles a day broke down there. In answer to the District Attorney's question she said she could recognize the chauffeurs of all such machines because she "was interested when they broke down."

Mr. Alexander asked her why she was out at that time of night inspecting a house. She replied that she had been there from 5 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Gibson could not be shaken in her declaration that the man in the back seat of Clute's car wore a small black or brown mustache.

Leslie Allen, a civil engineer, testified that Prof. Craw's house was 675 feet from where Clute's car was found. The defense disputed the evidence of Prof. Craw that he heard the five pistol shots, on the ground that the wind was from the opposite direction.

Before court was adjourned it was announced that to each side would be allowed three hours in which to sum up tomorrow. The court will open at 9:30 o'clock, and it is expected that the case will go to the jury before sundown.

From his cell tonight, Gifford gave his first statement of his whereabouts at the time Clute is supposed to have been slain. According to the prisoner, after leaving his companions at the Boardman home in Troy about 7:30 o'clock on the night of the killing, he went to a restaurant, ate his dinner, and went from there to the dance, to which his friends previously had repaired. Clute is supposed to have been killed between 9 and 10 o'clock, some distance out of Troy.

The time of Gifford's arrival at the dance has not been fixed definitely. One witness said Gifford was there at 10 o'clock. Several others declared he arrived about 11 o'clock.

"I expect to be free on July 4," Gifford said tonight. "I was perfectly willing at all times to testify, but my counsel decided that because of the poor showing made by the State my testimony was unnecessary."

POLICE URGE ACTION IN BALLOU MYSTERY

Stamford Chief Says He Has Enough Evidence to Place One Person on Trial.

AWAIT CHEMIST'S REPORT

Coroner Won't End Inquest Until Stains Found in Mrs. Angle's Rooms Have Been Analyzed.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 2.—Coroner Phelan's investigation of the death of Waldo R. Ballou probably will not be concluded tomorrow, because it is not certain that Dr. Bruce S. Weaver will be ready to report on the nature of the stains found on the floor of Mrs. Helen M. Angle's apartment. The result of Dr. Weaver's tests for blood stains is considered of prime importance by Coroner Phelan, and that official said tonight that he would not conclude the inquest until Dr. Weaver had said positively whether or not the stains were blood.

Other smaller spots near the ones now under examination have been declared by Dr. Weaver to be blood, but they do not indicate the presence of enough blood to make certain that Mr. Ballou received the death blow in the room. If the larger stains are what the police believe them to be they will be conclusive evidence, in the opinion of Chief Brennan, that Mr. Ballou was struck down in Mrs. Angle's room.

"If Dr. Weaver says the large spots are blood it will be very significant, I think," said the Coroner.

If the Coroner adjourns the hearing tomorrow that act will meet with the approval of Homer S. Cummings, the State Attorney, who will prosecute any one brought to trial in connection with Mr. Ballou's death. "Coroner Phelan is an honest, capable official, and I shall trust him to go ahead and reach an honest opinion before he holds any one," said Mr. Cummings. "I shall not interfere with the progress of the inquest."

No matter what the result of the inquest may be, Mr. Cummings will go deeply into the mystery of Mr. Ballou's death and solve it if it is possible. Already much work has been done under his direction, and this will continue. Mr. Cummings would not say whether he would call in outside detectives to help him in his work, but it was intimated by one close to him that this would probably be done after the inquest.

Chief of Police Brennan is of the opinion that the Coroner should give his direction after the police evidence is in. Although the Chief would not say whether he could lay his hands on the man supposed to have been in Mrs. Angle's rooms on the night of Mr. Ballou's death, he did say that the police had evidence enough to compel the trial of at least one person for the killing of Mr. Ballou.

"I don't see the use in waiting longer," the Chief said to-night. "The police have gathered enough evidence to warrant the preparation of the case for a jury with one defendant at least."

Whether this prospective defendant was a man or a woman the Chief would not say. The police did not succeed today, according to reports, in establishing the identity of the owner of the key found in Mrs. Angle's room. This key was one that opened the doors of the Odd Fellows' lodge rooms in the Rippowam building, and also the doors to Mrs. Angle's apartment. It is not Mrs. Angle's key, the police say, and at first they thought it was owned by an officer of the Odd Fellows' Lodge here who was known to be a close friend of Mrs. Angle. Today this man produced his key. There are eleven other officers of the lodge, it is said, who have keys like the one found.

DISCUSS BIBLE STUDY.

Scripture Reading in Schools Opposed at Rabbis' Conference.

DETROIT, July 2.—Rabbi Ephraim Frisch of Far Rockaway addressed the Central Conference of American Rabbis here today on "The Use of the Bible as a Text Book in the Religious Schools." Rabbi Frisch contended that before the Bible was used in religious schools certain passages should be stricken out, if they were of a nature not clear and intelligible to the child.

Dr. Henry Frederick Cope of Chicago, in an address this morning on "The Recent Progress of Religious Education," said:

"Those who would have their children taught religion in school are shirking the duty they should perform themselves. We should all stand unalterably opposed to the attempts that are being made to establish reading of the Bible in public schools. The outcome of the new interpretation of spiritual training to which we are looking forward will be the application of religion to the social problems of everyday life." Dr. Cope also attacked modern religious revival methods.

After the speaker had left the hall Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York criticised the Religious Educational Association, an organization non-creedal in its scope, of which Bishop Charles D. Williams of this city is President. Dr. Cope is Secretary of the organization.

"Although the Religious Educational Association is ten or twelve years old," said Rabbi Wise, "not one Jew ever has been asked to sit in its councils or take part in its meetings. Some of us have been asked to lend the organization our financial assistance, but we have something more than money to give the movement. I am sorry Dr. Cope is not here so I can express my sentiments directly to him."

ADMIT BRONX TROLLEY LINE.

Cars May Run to Fort Lee Ferry Without Giving Transfers.

The Union Railway Company, which is the Bronx subsidiary of the Third Avenue line, received from the Board of Estimate yesterday a franchise permitting it to enter Manhattan. It sought permission to cross the Willis Avenue Bridge over the Harlem River to 125th Street and to pass along that street to the Fort Lee Ferry. At the same time it said that it could not operate this line if it was obliged to give transfers to the Third Avenue cars, which would enable a passenger to ride from the Post Office to the northern limits of the Bronx on a single fare.

The Public Service Commission, it was known to the Board of Estimate, was prepared to release the company from this obligation on the ground that it was unreasonable and that there was a real public necessity for this new connecting link between the two boroughs. The Committee on Franchises of the Board of Estimate recommended that the franchise should be granted so long as the company realized that the commission might, if it saw fit, at any time require it to give the transfers.

12 SUBWAY DIGGERS HURT.

Men Struck Down When Section of Rock Roof Collapses.

A section of rock roof over the Subway excavation beneath Lexington Avenue between Ninety-second and Ninety-third Streets fell yesterday just before noon, striking down twelve of the diggers and injuring four of them severely. A heavy scaffold, carried down by the falling mass, saved the lives of at least two of the men, as the timbers acted as a shield and prvented the heavy rock from crushing them. The four most seriously injured, all of whom were sent to Flower Hospital, were: John Badach, 400 Sixth Street, Brooklyn, broken leg and internal injuries; Luigi Vannatti, 2,566 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, injured back and body; Gadano Celondo, 208 East 153d Street, the Bronx, wound in head, and Joseph Barrongo, 2,363 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, injured head and shock.

The other men were able to go to their homes after treatment by ambulance physicians.

Bronx Court at Night Fixes Bail at $10,000 Each.

After an all-day round-up, in which fifty detectives from the Bronx Bureau and the Bronx District Attorney's office took part yesterday, eight Italian prisoners, one of them a woman, were held in $10,000 bail each for examination by County Judge Gibbs, sitting last night as a Magistrate in a session called especially to consider the cases. District Attorney Francis Martin put eight witnesses upon the stand, who gave testimony showing that the prisoners were associated in a band of white-slavers, who distributed women among resorts in the Bronx, Brooklyn, lower Manhattan, Long Island City, Coney Island, and even carried their activities as far as Springfield, Mass. One of the prisoners, whose name was often mentioned, was a saloon keeper of Port Chester, who has the reputation of being wealthy.

The prisoners were Francesco Mazolotti of Port Chester, Enrico Grasso of 128 Mulberry Street, Anillo Carfora and his son Vincenzo of 225 East 149th Street, Michael Guarino of 266 East 154th Street, Victor Corta of 308 East 153d Street, Luigiano Esposito of 291 East 148th Street, and Rosie De Furo of 69 Eldredge Street. Three eighteen-year-old girls were committed to the House of Detention as witnesses.

The District Attorney has been working on the case for a month, during which time he has had men living as roomers in a house at 275 East 146th Street with the connivance of Mrs. William Dolan, who keeps the house. It is here that the three girls detained as witnesses lived with some of the men concerned in the case and from them the detectives learned much of value.

City Marshal John C. Hoesling broke in a door last Monday at 266 East 154th Street and found a woman, whose groans he had heard, half unconscious from beatings she had received. She was brought from the Lebanon Hospital last night in an ambulance and carried into the courtroom, still in a pitiable condition. She told a story of being fastened upon by these men when she arrived in New York on May 26. She was drugged and made practically helpless after all her money had been stolen, and then she was sent to several resorts, to Mazollotti's place in Port Chester among them.

Another witness was a young girl from Springfield, Mass., who told a story of events that followed her being brought here by Grasso on the promise of a good position in a bakery which he told her his family conducted in Mulberry Street.

District Attorney Martin said more arrests would probably follow.

CITY DAY WORKERS' DAY OFF

They Get 1 in 25 and Thank Aldermen Curran and Moore for It.

The semi-monthly meeting of the per diem employes of the New York Civil Service Association, held last night at the County Court House, was in large part a celebration of the recent ordinance which gives to per diem employes one day of vacation with pay for each twenty-five days of work. Until this ordinance was signed, about a month ago, men who worked by the day had no vacation unless they paid for it themselves, which most of them were unable to do. The association last night presented engrossed resolutions of appreciation to Aldermen Henry H. Curran and Jesse D. Moore and to Thomas J. Pickard, Chairman of the association's Committee on Laws and Legislation. A similar resolution in honor of Mayor Mitchel, who was not present, will be presented to him today by Alderman Curran.

Mr. Curran, who was most active in behalf of the measure, was the guest of honor, and the large crowd which filled the meeting room gave him an enthusiastic reception. In response to the presentation speech by Joseph Beere, Mr. Curran said that in working to get vacations for the per diem employes he had to resist considerable pressure from persons who wanted him to ease up and take a vacation himself.

"We have counted it a duty and privilege to do this," he said, "for we believe you men are the bone and sinew of the city, and are entitled to much more consideration than has been given to you. Heretofore vacations with pay have been allowed only to the employes who as a class did not need them so much, being able to pay for their own."

HARRY KEMP RETURNS.

Tramp Poet Who Stowed Away on Oceanic Back in First Cabin.

Harry Kemp, the tramp poet, who stowed away on the White Star liner Oceanic nine weeks ago and spent three weeks in the workhouse in Southampton, England, on his arrival there, returned yesterday in the first cabin of the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, wearing new clothes. In an interview with the reporters at the pier the tramp poet said that he had seen a good deal since leaving New York.

"During my three weeks' incarceration at Southampton for stowing away on the Oceanic," he said, "I whiled away the hours waxing thread. I left New York without a cent in my pocket and come back with $2.85. A friend paid my passage for me.

"I am a revolutionist and believe in the I. W. W. The United States is a country controlled by privileged interests."

FALSE BOTTOM HELD LACE.

Miss Sattler Must Explain About Her Trunk Today.

Miss Bertha Sattler, a cabin passenger who arrived yesterday from Bremen on the North German Lloyd steamer Bremen, was detained for a time on the pier because the customs Inspector found that one of her trunks had a false bottom, under which a quantity of lace was hidden. It was said that the lace might have been made by Miss Sattler, who comes from Neudek, Switzerland. She was met at the pier by New York friends and was allowed to leave with them.

The lace was taken to the Public Stores and the owner will have to appear at the Custom House this morning and explain to the Surveyor why it was concealed underneath the bottom of the trunk.

ONLY 44 PASSENGERS.

Kronprinzessin Cecilie In with Her Smallest Cabin List.

The North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie arrived yesterday from Bremen direct with the smallest cabin list she ever brought to New York, sixteen first class, and twenty-eight second class. Capt. Charles Polack said the reason was that the liner responded to a hurry call to come over and take the passengers booked for the Kaiser Wilhelm II., which had a collision in the Solent.

The Kronprinzessin Cecilie started coaling an hour after she arrived, and will sail for Bremen, via Plymouth and Cherbourg, at 1 A. M. tomorrow, and will sail from Bremen on July 14 for New York, taking the Kaiser Wilhelm II.'s regular run until October.

New York's Oldest Rat Catcher Dies.

William A. Heitler, the oldest rat catcher in New York, who had captured more than 500,000 rats during the last forty-five years, died on Wednesday at his home in Red Bank, N. J., at the age of more than 75. He was one of the three best known rat catchers in the world, the others being Henri Dayve of Paris, called the "King of Rat Catchers" in 1870, and Harry Jennings, called "Dick the Rat," who came to this city in 1838. Mr. Heitler caught the rats with his bare hands or a pair of tongs. One night at the old Willard Hotel in Washington he caught 906, and once on a bet he captured eighty-seven in an hour. Mr. Heitler had a store at 392 Broome Street. Like other famous rat catchers, Mr. Heitler would never divulge the secret of his ability to catch rats.

WILLIAMS ARRAIGNS THE POWERS AGAIN

Have No Intention of Averting Religious War in Epirus, American Minister Says.

COULD YET SAVE ALBANIA

Defends His First Denunciation and Calls the Prince of Wied a Weak Character.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, July 2.—American Minister Williams issued a fresh statement to the press tonight pointing out the gravity of the situation in Southern Albania owing to the advance of the insurgents southward upon Avlona and Epirus.

"All the horrors of religious war," he says, "may be expected and Epirus will be added to the sacrifices on the altar of the treaty of London.

"The great powers cannot evade their responsibility. I am informed that they have approved the protocol of Corfu, but this comes too late. They must in fairness now answer whether they will provide troops to defend Epirus. I assert they have no intention of doing this.

"I have information which satisfies me that the insurgents can be reached by negotiations. I am also satisfied that even now Albania can be organized for self-government."

Mr. Williams issued this fresh statement in order "to avert further threatened disasters." He describes the International Control Commission as composed of men of consular station unfitted by training and character to create a Government. Mr. Williams is not personally acquainted with the Commissioners.

When at Avlona he found the district hemmed in on the north by insurgents and on the south by the Epirotes. He advised the Avlonans to declare their independence and make alliance with the Epirotes. He opened negotiations with the Epirotes' leader, M. Zographos, to that end. A week later the Avlonans agreed to this policy, when an Austrian warship accompanied by Herr Winkel, the German Commissioner, appeared and ordered the negotiations to be stopped. The Avlonians yielded, and, says Mr. Williams, "another district was thus betrayed by fraud at Durazzo." The result, Mr. Williams thinks, is that the insurgents and Epirotes, who might become allies, are advancing each against the other as enemies.

By The Associated Press.

ATHENS, July 2.—George Fred Williams, the American Minister to Greece, who recently denounced the International Commission of Control in Albania, and declared that the present régime there was impracticable, issued a new statement tonight, justifying his former statement and emphasizing the danger menacing Epirus through the rapid advance of the Albanian rebels.

Mr. Williams prefaces his new statement by the declaration that it is made without any preliminary understanding with the Epirote insurgent leader, Zographos, or the Greek Government, and adds:

"Although my first statement is criticised as throwing too great a responsibility on Prince William of Wied, I contend that the following statements on which the accusations were based cannot be denied by Prince William.

"Col. Thompson (the Dutch commander of gendarmerie who was killed in an insurgent attack on Durazzo,) appointed by Prince William Commissary General at Argyrocastro and Koritza, arranged with Zographos conditions of conciliation. Prince William of Wied now directed the political affairs of Albania without regard to the international commission. On Col. Thomson's return, the Albanian Ministry rejected the terms he had arranged, and Essad Pasha demanded 25,000 men for the purpose of undertaking the campaign against the Epirotes. Col. Thomson opposed this, arguing that such a condition would mean bloodshed and provoke religious hatred that would last many years.

"Essad Pasha's plan was dropped, but the Prince recalled Col. Thomson, thus dismissing the only pacific man. Prince William of Wied is a weak character, and the powers who nominated him must be held responsible for his actions. He is responsible for his Ministers, who have acted merely to safeguard their own estates, instead of in the interests of the population."

Mr. Williams says that in the face of a serious situation—Avlona menaced from the north by the Mussulman insurgents and from the south by the Epirotes—he counselled the leading men of that region to arrange an understanding with Zographos and proclaim their independence, which, he says, would have been realized except that the arrival of the Austrian warships and a German delegate to the International Commission stopped the negotiations.

He emphasizes the danger of the situation created by the parallel advance of Epirotes and Mussulmans, and fears that the powers will not be able to prevent the outbreak of a religious war. He contends that it is Europe's duty to dispatch troops to defend Epirus, and repeats his assertion that "Albania is fitted for self-government if it can be disembarrassed of criminal foreign influences at work in Durazzo."

ASKS $200,000 FOR SALEM.

President Heeds Appeal and Will Urge Congress to Act.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Wilson will send a message to Congress tomorrow recommending that the Government appropriate $200,000 for the relief of the Salem fire sufferers. The President decided to act tonight after receipt of an appeal from Gov. Walsh of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, July 2.—Besides his message to President Wilson, Gov. Walsh today sent telegrams to the Governor of each State and the Mayors of all large cities in the country urging the need of funds. He said that $1,000,000 in all would be required to meet the emergency.

The request for Federal aid was made after an opinion had been given by Attorney General Boynton that the State Constitution would not permit the Legislature to make an appropriation of State money for a city's relief. The message to the President said:

> The Salem relief fund is increasing slowly. The expense of rehabilitation will be enormous. Three thousand families are homeless and without work. If the national Government could appropriate $200,000 it would assist greatly. I am informed that the contribution of the national Government at the time of the San Francisco disaster furnished a precedent. Can anything in the way of a substantial contribution from the national Government be obtained?

The Finance Committee of the State Relief Committee today mailed to clergymen, hotels, theatres, baseball clubs, the heads of fraternal organizations, Boards of Trade and manufacturing concerns in the State copies of an appeal for funds.

SALEM, Mass., July 2.—Two men were sent to jail today for fraud in obtaining supplies on the plea that as a result of the great fire they were in want. Each had obtained clothing, valued at $90, from the Relief Committee, although neither lived in the fire zone.

The 10,000 homeless persons who have been living under canvas since the fire of June 25 suffered little inconvenience from the heavy rain that fell throughout last night and today. The tents are pitched on a hill, and the land drained quickly. The medical authorities decided that it would be unwise to shelter the homeless persons in public buildings.

ERIE WILL CLEAN CARS.

Hillsdale Residents Tell the Utility Commission of Dirty Floors.

New Jersey's Public Utility Commission has given the Erie Railroad Company until July 24 to prove the sincerity of its promise to clean its cars on the New York & New Jersey Branch of the road.

Commissioners Ralph Donges and Thomas Hillery, in Chancery Chambers, Jersey City, yesterday, sat to hear the complaints of Erie Railroad commuters that the company had not only failed to clean the car windows, but used passenger coaches for smokers at night and in the morning without cleaning up the cigar butts, ashes, and other refuse or disinfecting or washing the floors, turned the cars into service for men and women passengers who do not smoke and to whom the tobacco smell is offensive. Duane Minard, counsel to the company, said that it had obeyed the order of the Utility Commission regarding the washing of car windows, and he denied the allegation that the day coaches are kept in an insanitary condition as alleged by the commuters.

"The commuters," said Mr. Minard, "are spreading slanderous allegations against the railroad company which are not founded upon facts. They allege that the company has not been obeying the orders of the commission concerning the washing of its windows and cleaning of the exterior and interior of the cars. The Erie Railroad Company has been obeying the order since June 28, and it is the intention of the company to continue doing so, but in our effort to give proper treatment to the public we are not receiving the right kind of moral support."

Randolph Perkins, a lawyer, who lives in Hillsdale and commutes daily to Jersey City, denied that the company is properly cleaning the coaches.

SEEK RADIUM IN PASSAIC?

Town Excited Over Mysterious Drilling on Fenced-In Plot.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 2.—Passaic's curiosity has been aroused for the last two weeks over the activities of a group of workmen who have been operating two large steam drills on a plot of land at Kingsland and Bloomfield Avenues.

The plot covers several acres, and has been carefully fenced in by the workmen, and a watchman is kept on the grounds day and night to keep away the curious. Several citizens, intent on solving the mystery, today went to the scene of the drilling and quizzed a workman when the guard was temporarily absent. The man said that he had instructions to say nothing about the work but that the property had been bought by the National American Exploration Company, which was financed largely by German capital, and that drillings were being made in an effort to find radium. Several German scientists, he said, had agreed that the spot selected was a logical place for radium. Major Edward Thomas Moore, former Assemblyman from Passaic, was one of the officers of the company, he asserted.

Major Moore, when seen at his home in Passaic, refused to discuss the work at the present time, but he said he might have an important announcement to make in the near future.

TAKES TITLE TO BREWERY.

St. Bartholomew's Church Not to Move for Three Years.

Title was taken yesterday by St. Bartholomew's Church to its new site on Park Avenue, being the block front on the east side between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets recently purchased from the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company. The transfer records show that the church paid $1,400,000 for the property, which has a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of 225 feet on Fiftieth Street, and about 200 on Fifty-first Street. The church will not take possession of the plot for eighteen months, by which time the brewing company will have moved to its new plant on the East River.

The Park Avenue plot was bought subject to a mortgage of $700,000, and at the same time there was recorded in the Register's office a mortgage of $750,000 given by the church on its present building at the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street to the United States Trust Company, to run for three years at 5 per cent. This mortgage was obtained to finance the deal for the Park Avenue property. Plans are being prepared for the new edifice, but as that will take over a year to build when the church gets possession of the Park Avenue block, St. Bartholomew's will, therefore, not be able to move from Madison Avenue for nearly three years.

TO INVESTIGATE EX-JUDGE.

Palmieri Charged with Weaning Clients from Another Lawyer.

Charles Gall, counsel for Charles E. Russell, who is also a lawyer, charged before Judge Lewis L. Fawcett in the County Court in Brooklyn yesterday, that ex-Judge John A. Palmieri had induced three Italians charged with attempted grand larceny to dismiss Mr. Russell whom they had retained as their counsel and to take him, guaranteeing to obtain their release.

Mr. Gall said that Mr. Russell represented the three defendants in the Magistrate's Court when they were first arraigned and that one of the accused Italians had sent his bankbook and $200 to Mr. Russell as a retainer. Mr. Gall asked the court to investigate the charge, and the Judge said he would call it to the attention of the Grand Jury.

Mr. Palmieri denied Mr. Gall's allegations and said that he would welcome an investigation by the Grand Jury. All three of the defendants when asked who their lawyer was pointed out Mr. Palmieri.

BAXTER ADMITS BRIBERY.

Blackwell's Island Doctor Now Faces Sentence on Two Charges.

Dr. Charles F. Baxter, former resident physician at the Blackwell's Island Workhouse, who was convicted last week of selling morphine to an inmate of the Workhouse, pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment charging him with receiving a gratuity for having a woman admitted to the Workhouse Hospital. Judge Crain remanded him to the Tombs for sentence on Thursday.

Baxter will be sentenced today on his morphine conviction, the maximum penalty for which is a year in the penitentiary and a fine of $500. On the other charge the maximum penalty is a term of ten years and $4,000 fine.

Bolt Falls 23 Stories, Injures Two.

An iron bolt, weighing half a pound, fell from the twenty-third floor of the new Equitable Building into Nassau Street yesterday afternoon. George Nolan of 213 Nichols Avenue, Brooklyn, was hit in the head, the bolt glancing off after it had inflicted a deep gash, and, rebounding from the sidewalk, it skimmed over the shoulder of Traffic Patrolman Gildea and struck Miss Catherine Dillon, a stenographer, living at 1,193 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, who was thirty feet away from Nolan. She was struck on the hip and thrown to the street with the force of the blow. She and Nolan were attended by Dr. Valentine of the Hudson Street Hospital, and both were able to go home.

To Boost Irish Volunteer Plans.

In response to calls made by John E. Redmond, M. P., and the Hon. Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia, National President of the United Irish League of America, a convention of societies in this city affiliated with the United Irish League, will be held this evening in the Emmet Arcade, Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, to take steps to support the Irish National Volunteer Movement.

WOULDN'T LET BENCH DOCTOR OUR LAWS

Construction of the Constitution Is Not a Judicial Function, Ex-Chief Judge Cullen Says.

MAKES HIGH COURT RULER

In No Constitutional Government Is It Confided to Such a Small Body to Fix Fundamental Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 2.—Ex-Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen of the Court of Appeals of New York State delivered the principal address at the meeting of the Maryland Bar Association at the Hotel Cape May this morning. In discussing "the people and the law" he said:

"A school has arisen whose members contend that it is the function of the courts to construe constitutional provisions in accordance, not with the understanding of the people at the time of their adoption but in harmony with the changed views of the public on economics, industrial, and social questions. If the contention is correct, condemnation of Judges who pervert constitutional meanings is unjustified, for they have done simply what is their duty.

"I assert that if the Constitution is to be modified by construction so as to accord with what is claimed to be changed public opinion, then the construction of the Constitution is not a judicial function, and should not be intrusted to the courts at all.

"It seems to me that those who advocate this new theory of constitutional revision can hardly have reflected upon the logical result of their doctrine. The Supreme Court of the United States is composed of nine men appointed for life. In my opinion, such a rule would be absolutely inconsistent with democracy or constitutional government. It would make nine men practically the rulers of the country.

"In no constitutional country in the world is it confided to such a small body to determine the fundamental laws of a nation. If Constitutions are to be modified and altered, not by the people themselves but by public officers, the task should be committed not to Judges but to statesmen, who are directly and frequently answerable to the people. The courts may be safely trusted to construe a Constitution as intended by its framers.

"It is difficult at times to tell what are the prevailing views of the people on many of the great questions of the day, for the successful party fails to give effect to the principles declared in its platform. I am utterly opposed to the proposition that the Constitution is to be varied or modified except by the people in the method provided in the Constitution itself.

"To those who clamor for short, sharp, and quick justice it may be answered that such justice cannot be obtained, or if obtained for a brief time soon degenerates into the worst oppression. The agitation for uniformity of law has proceeded greatly in our own profession, and, so far as it relates to matters of commerce, I heartily approve it. But beyond that I would not go. I have always regarded our Federal system as the most beneficent feature of our form of government."

COOPER VERDICT SEALED.

Trial Ends of Realty Man Charged with Fraud.

A sealed verdict was returned last night by the jury which for nearly a month has been hearing the evidence in the Federal District Court against William H. Cooper before Judge William I. Grubb. Cooper was President of the New York Central Realty Company, and he was charged with conspiring to send through the mails 6 per cent. bonds of the realty concern by which 800 purchasers were swindled out of $475,000.

Many of those duped were officers and enlisted men in the United States Army and Marine Corps, and others were men who were trying to send their sons through college. It was represented in the advertising literature of the concern that it had a system by which a certain amount paid each month or week on a realty bond would provide sufficient returns to pay a young man's expenses in college.

In the course of the trial two of those indicted, Claude J Van Slyke and James A. Robinson, pleaded guilty and testified for the Government. Cooper, in his own defense, testified that he had so much trust in the company that he had invested largely in it and had induced his daughters to put their own money in it.

DR. BLUE IN PLAGUE ZONE.

Surgeon General Examining Bubonic Conditions in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, July 2.—Dr. Rupert Blue, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, accompanied by Dr. R. H. Creel, Assistant Surgeon General, arrived here from Washington today to investigate bubonic plague conditions.

Mayor Martin Behrman and local health officers informed them of what steps had already been taken. The Surgeon General inspected the infected territory, in which is located the home of the Volunteers of America, where the only two cases thus far to develop were found last week.

NO MERCY FOR BONDSMAN.

Justice Enforces Judgment and Notifies District Attorney.

In denying the application of Nathan Kirshanbaum for the vacation of two judgments, Justice Greenbaum said yesterday that it appeared that Kirshanbaum had sworn falsely and that he was evidently a paid bondsman for criminals.

Kirshanbaum gave bail for Joseph Miller and Harry Brown, who were held by a Magistrate in $1,000 each. Both failed to appear for examination, and their bonds were forfeited.

Later both surrendered. Brown was discharged, and Miller, who was accused of assault, was cleared of that charge, but was sent to the workhouse for five days for disorderly conduct.

In the meantime the Sheriff had levied upon the house which Kirshanbaum had given as security. Kirshanbaum pleaded that the men had surrendered, that justice had been done, and that if the judgment was enforced it would leave him penniless.

Justice Greenbaum said the State had lost no rights by the surrender of the accused, and added:

"Nathan Kirshanbaum is a professional bondsman for persons charged with crime. Thirty-nine bail bonds were given by him between July 16, 1913, and March 24, 1914. On Oct. 18, 1913, Kirshanbaum entered into a recognizance for Nathan Katz's appearance in the sum of $1,000. This bond was forfeited and judgment was entered against Kirshanbaum. While that judgment was in force Kirshanbaum executed sixteen separate recognizances, amounting to $17,000, for persons charged with crimes. In some cases Kirshanbaum swore he was worth $10,000 and in others $20,000. Instead of being entitled to vacation of the judgments it would seem to be in the interest of justice if the District Attorney took action in respect of the apparently perjurious affidavits submitted."

Judge's Widow Inherits Bulk of Estate—Residue to Son.

Judge William Butler Hornblower of the New York Court of Appeals, who died on June 16 at his Summer home in Litchfield, Conn., left the bulk of his eight-hundred-thousand-dollar estate to Emily Sanford Hornblower, his wife. Judge Hornblower left his residence, at 61 East Ninetieth Street, valued at $22,500, to George S. Hornblower, his son. Woodlawn Cemetery is to receive $300, and Mrs. Katherine Belden Hornblower, the widow of Louis B. Hornblower, one of Judge Hornblower's sons, is to receive the income from a twenty-thousand-dollar trust fund. Upon her death the principal of the trust fund is to become a part of the residuary estate.

Judge Hornblower named his widow as his residuary legatee and his executrix. After the will had been filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, Mrs. Hornblower, through her attorney, filed an assignment whereby her son, George, is to receive $60,000 of the personalty of the estate, in addition to the realty left to him under his father's will. Mrs. Hornblower explained that she made this assignment in accordance with the wishes of her husband.

Mrs. Hornblower was Judge Hornblower's second wife. She was the widow of Lieut. Col. A. D. Nelson, U. S. A.

A NEW KIDNAPPING ARREST.

Police Fulfill Promise to Find Man Accused in Di Fiore Case.

The police fulfilled yesterday evening their promise that the arrest of the gang said to have kidnapped the Longo boy would be followed immediately by an arrest for the kidnapping of Giuseppe di Fiore on March 29, when Detectives Cavone, Trabucci, Digilio, and Grecco brought to Headquarters Domenico Zarcone, a butcher of 282 Shoeleather Street, Woodhaven, L. I. He was locked up, charged with the kidnapping and with having extorted a six-hundred-dollar ransom for the boy.

The detectives said that he, with Nicolo Rotolo, arrested for the Longo kidnapping; a man now dead, and another in Italy, kidnapped the di Fiore boy from his home, at 135 West Houston Street. Incidentally, the detectives reported that the arrest of the eleven men in connection with the Longo case had had a good effect on victims of Italian kidnappings. They are now willing, the detectives say, to tell all they know, instead of maintaining the silence which has made such cases difficult.

James E. Brande appeared in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday in behalf of Antonio Siragusa, flour merchant of 321 East Twelfth Street, one of the alleged kidnappers of the Longo boy. Mr. Brande wanted his client's bail reduced from $7,500 cash to $5,000. When he reminded the Magistrate that he had power to reduce the bail, the latter smiled and said he also had power to increase it. The request was refused.

New Directory Jan. 1.

It was announced last night by Ralph L. Polk, President of the Polk Company, which now publishes the Trow City Directory, that the next issue will come out on the first of January, 1915. Heretofore the directory has appeared in August. The change is due to the fact that Oct. 1 has supplanted May 1 as moving day. To catch the new addresses the directory will come out hereafter at the beginning of the year.

ing to make a formal report of the company's condition, because if the actual earnings were made known the Public Service Commission would undoubtedly order a further and probably ruinous reduction in the price of gas."

That the earnings of the defendant have actually increased in a larger degree than any of the other great gas companies in the United States.

That the company has been managed, not for the protection of its property and its stockholders, but primarily for the benefit of the Standard Oil Company, which supplies the defendant company with oil. The price the defendant must pay for the oil is determined absolutely by the said Rockefeller through the control exercised by him over the individual defendants.

"The defendant Leggett was an officer of the Long Island Loan and Trust Company and one of its principal stockholders," the complaint sets forth. "As such he is the chief beneficiary of the enormous funds unjustly withheld from the stockholders and corruptly kept on deposit with the said company. One purpose of this action is to compel the said Leggett and the said trust company to account for all profits made by the misuse of funds belonging to the defendant corporation and repay the same to its treasury."

Jourdan Denies the Charges.

An affidavit made by Mr. Jourdan in answer was filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office in Brooklyn. In this Mr. Jourdan admits that some of the earnings of the company have been withheld from the stockholders, but says in explanation:

"It has been the policy of the company from the beginning to use a portion of its earnings in betterments and in the extension of its plant and the increase of its manufacturing capacity to attain a maximum efficiency, to the end that the cost of manufacture and distribution might be kept at a minimum."

He denies that the Directors of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company have established a system of so keeping the accounts of the corporation as to conceal its true earnings from the stockholders and the public authorities, and points out that in 1909 the Public Service Commission of the State of New York established a uniform system of accounting for gas companies and compelled the use of this system by the defendant corporation and others. Ever since that date, he says, the system of accounting used by the defendant corporation has been the uniform system of accounts thus described.

In regard to the $500,000 borrowed from trust companies, Mr. Jourdan says the notes were not made at the full rate of interest. The rate charged to the gas company was a low one, and this advantage was obtained through the influence of Mr. Leggett, who was a stockholder and Director in one of the trust companies.

Books Tell the Whole Story.

"It is not true," Mr. Jourdan's affidavit says, "that expert accountants were denied access to certain books and papers of the corporation. The plaintiff alleges that many of the assets of the defendant corporation are purposely concealed. All the books of this company were examined by expert accountants and every asset of the company and every liability is shown upon these books, and every item to be taken into account in estimating the surplus appears upon their report."

Mr. Jourdan also denies that the Brooklyn Union Gas Company is managed for the benefit of the Standard Oil Company, and in this connection says:

"It is not true that William Rockefeller controls the policy of the company. The measures I have initiated and recommended have been formulated by me after consultation with Arthur F. Staniford, one of the Vice Presidents, and the company's engineers. It is not true, as the plaintiff alleges, that the price the defendant corporation must pay for oil is determined by the defendant Rockefeller. The price is made by bargaining between a representative of the Standard Oil Company and myself, and the closest bargain possible has been made by me in every instance, and I have never paid more than the current market price for gas oils delivered in New York City."

Efforts will be made by the defendants to vacate the order of examination before the date set.

HUERTISTAS INVITE REBELS TO CONFER

Send Word Through Mediators of Their Readiness to Negotiate.

CONFEREES LEAVE NIAGARA

Mediators' Farewell Note to Delegates—Pleased with Carranza's Response.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, July 2.—Final notes exchanged today between the principals in the Mexican peace negotiations marked the actual ending of the mediation conference, which was begun at Niagara Falls on May 20.

The most interesting and significant communication was addressed to the mediators by the Huerta delegates, with a request that it be transmitted to the Constitutionalists' agency in Washington. In it the plenipotentiaries of Gen. Huerta expressed their willingness to confer informally with representatives of Gen. Carranza, with a view to choosing a Provisional President of Mexico and adjusting the domestic problems that have torn the country asunder in the last four years.

Text of Huerta Delegates' Note.

The full text of the note to the mediators follows:

"Your Excellencies: The courteous note of your Excellencies of yesterday's date informs us that the chief of the Constitutionalist Party, Señor Carranza, answered the invitation which your Excellencies addressed to him to send representatives who would confer with us on the pacification of Mexico by setting forth the need he has of a short term in which to consult other military chiefs as to the appointment of delegates, both to authorize the modification of the revolutionary plan and to insure the fulfillment of any arrangement which might be arrived at. The note we have the honor to refer to adds that, to make effective and to carry out the international agreements concluded, all that remains to be done is to organize and establish a provisional Government in Mexico, a work of patriotism exclusively reserved to the delegations of the two parties there contending. And in this connection your Excellencies are pleased to add that the mediators continue disposed to help the parties in the struggle with their good offices in that work of harmony for the success of which you hope as a result of the patriotic efforts of the delegations.

"We thank you for communicating to us the facts referred to, and with a full appreciation of its worth, your offer to continue using, for the achievement of internal peace in our country, the same good offices which have already and so efficaciously served to solve the international conflicts, and, in accepting them with the best of good will, we assure your Excellencies that your appeal to our patriotism finds it already active, as the first element which has inspired and guided our conduct.

"The undersigned delegates, foreign to the struggle of which Mexico is the scene, and perhaps because of this circumstance selected to form the delegation, did not come to the international conferences to represent any party, because the national honor and external peace are the highest interest of all parties and of all Mexicans. Neither do we need to represent any party in the conferences we may possibly hold with the delegates of the other, because it suffices us to represent the national aspiration for peace, which is the real national sentiment, and which is above all the animosities aroused by civil war.

"Our powers authorized us to confer in the name of the Government constituted in Mexico and presided over by Gen. Huerta; before receiving them we had taken soundings to see of what resolves the Chief of the Government was capable, and we came to the conferences in the confidence, which he has not betrayed, that he would make every sacrifice of his personality which was not incompatible with his dignity, always provided that it was for the nation's good. This has been done, and nobody can deny the high merit that lies in those personal concessions, without sacrifice of either national or personal decorum, which have brought to a close the peace negotiations.

"The basis of the agreements which will insure external peace, the restoration of internal harmony, and, in a word, national rebirth and national honor lies in the organization of a provisional Government in Mexico. If it is organized, all that will remain to be done will be the execution of the agreements which promise these boons; if it is not organized, the agreements, lacking their base, will be destroyed and Mexico's situation will be the same as before—uncertainty for the future and evil for the present.

"As your Excellencies say, it is the patriotism of rival Mexicans which must now work to save Mexico. Both the Government he presides over and Gen. Huerta in person have done all that has been necessary on their part to bring the situation to the point at which it now stands. We delegates have put forward our utmost efforts, which we are still ready to exhaust, to the end that the peace agreements may be carried out by means of the organization of a provisional Government effected in accord with the Constitutionalist delegates.

"We must trust that patriotism will do its part among the Constitutionalists, but should this not be the case we will not bear the burden of so grave a responsibility.

"We have made this exposition of our conception of the present situation, as we wish to put it before the respectable authority of your Excellencies and so that, if you see fit to do so, you may deign to communicate it to the responsible agent of the Constitutionalist Party, as a step we take toward the rapprochement which your Excellencies wish to bring about and maintain.

"Once more we reiterate to your Excellencies our deepest thanks for your noble effort to obtain the pacification of Mexico, and we beg you, should you wish to communicate either your orders or your views to us, to address them to the first of the undersigned, in the care of the Mexican Consulate, New York.

"We again have the honor to offer to your Excellencies our respectful and courteous consideration.

"EMILIO RABASA.
"AUGUSTIN RODRIGUEZ.
"LUIS ELGUERO.
"Niagara Falls, Ont., July 2."

A second note from the Huerta delegates, addressed to the mediators, gives the viewpoint of the Huerta Government on the settlement of its difficulties with the United States and says, formally that "peace has been happily concerted between Mexico and the United States; for even if the basis of the agreements is the organization of a provisional Government in Mexico, such organization is exclusively reserved to the parties contending in the civil war in our country."

The communication closes with the expression of the delegates' congratulations on the work of the mediators and of their thanks for the latter's courtesy and sincerity as shown in the negotiations.

The mediators today made public the text of Gen. Carranza's response to their suggestion that he send representatives to confer with the Huerta plenipotentiaries. This response was sent in Gen. Carranza's name by the Constitutionalists' agency in Washington. It expresses sympathy with the purpose of the mediators and explains that it is necessary, before making a final answer, to consult the Generals of the Constitutionalist Army, to obtain a modification of the revolutionary plan of Guadalupe, which provides that Gen. Carranza shall become Provisional President of Mexico when the Constitutionalists take possession of the national capital.

Carranza Note Favorably Regarded.

The Carranza note is regarded as generally favorable to the proposal that the Federals and the Constitutionalists shall come together, with the purpose of settling their country's domestic problems by amicable agreement, and it has encouraged some of those connected with the mediation movement to believe that a conference of the Huerta and Carranza representatives will be held.

The mediators made public also the text of the identical farewell note addressed to the American and Mexican delegates. Most of this note is taken up with summarizing the Carranza communication. The mediators express the opinion that it is not necessary for the American and Mexican delegates to remain here while waiting for a response from Gen. Carranza, declare that the international questions affecting Mexico and the United States have been adjusted satisfactorily, and offer to assist the two Mexican delegations to reach a conclusion should the proposed informal conference take place. A note thanking the mediators for their efforts was sent by the Mexican delegates today.

The text of Gen. Carranza's communication to the mediators, sent through the Constitutionalists' agency in Washington, is as follows:

Carranza's Note to the Mediators.

"The confidential agency of Gen. Carranza at Washington has replied to the note of the mediators addressed to him June 21, stating:

"'The Chief of the Constitutionalist Government duly appreciates the noble purpose of the mediators in addressing him an invitation to treat directly with delegates of Gen. Huerta on the organization of a provisional Government capable of bringing about in a prompt and consistent form the pacification of Mexico. But, notwithstanding his good will to give to the country an organic and durable peace by any means which will not bring to naught the great sacrifices which the Mexican people have made in the present struggle, he is compelled to consult the opinion of the Generals of the Constitutionalist Army before deciding on the appointment of delegates to confer on his behalf with those of Gen. Huerta regarding the possibility of reaching an agreement putting an end to the war.

"'This obligation arises from the promise made by Mr. Carranza and by all Constitutionalists faithfully to carry out the plan of Guadalupe, which proposes to restore the constitutional order by means of a provisional President, and which would be modified if such Government were made to emanate from a possible agreement with the delegates of Gen. Huerta, as well as from his earnest desire that any agreement reached be strictly fulfilled.

"'With this end in view and in furtherance of the efforts of the mediators to procure a peaceful solution of the struggle which the Mexican people has been compelled to sustain in the defense of its institutions, the First Chief has already addressed the Generals of the Constitutionalist Army in consultation, and only desires to request the mediators to allow him a short period of time during which he hopes to receive answers from his companions in arms in order to appoint delegates to treat with the delegates of Gen. Huerta.'"

Mediator's Formal Notice of Recess

This is the identical farewell note of the mediators to the American and Mexican delegates:

"We have the honor to inform you that the representative at Washington of the chief of the Constitutionalist Party of Mexico, Mr. Carranza, has caused to be sent us his reply to our communication of the 21st ultimo, of which we advised you at the full session of the 24th, and wherein we invited him to appoint representatives to discuss and agree directly with the delegates of Gen. Hnerta upon the organization of the provisional Government called on to consolidate the pacification of the country and provide for the re-establishment of normal conditions.

"In said answer the representative referred to informs us that, while Mr. Carranza duly appreciates the well-inspired purpose of our invitation and is prompted by an earnest desire to see permanent peace established in Mexico, he feels nevertheless that he is compelled to consult the opinion of the Generals of the Constitutionalist Army on the appointment of delegates, both on account of the necessity of authorizing a modification of the provisions of the plan of Guadalupe and the assurance of a strict fulfillment of any arrangement which may be reached. Therefore, he adds, Mr. Carranza has already addressed said Generals, asking their counsel, and only desires respectfully to request that he be allowed a short term within which he hopes to receive the replies from his companions in arms, in order to appoint delegates to treat with the delegates of Gen. Huerta.

"The undersigned believe, in view of the communication of which the foregoing is an extract, and taking into consideration the terms of the agreements protocolized at the session of June 24, that what remains to be done in the discharge of the task which it was their good fortune to initiate two months ago, does not at the present time require their presence at this place, and that the work—now a matter falling to the Mexican delegations—may be resumed without any inconvenience whatsoever whenever the arrival of the representatives of the Constitutionalist Party is announced.

"As a matter of fact, and as the protocol of June 24 has settled satisfactorily all matters connected with the incidents which gave rise to the good offices and the subsequent mediation by the Governments of Argentina, Brazil and Chile in the conflict which arose between the United States and Gen. Huerta, all that is left to be done is to organize and establish a provisional Government in Mexico, a work of patriotism exclusively reserved to the delegations of the two parties there contending.

"Therefore, the presence of the undersigned here during the days of the term referred to in the communication of the representative of Mr. Carranza would answer no useful purpose; but it is unnecessary to add that, when the time arrives for the Mexican delegations to initiate their common work the mediators stand ready, wherever it may be, to continue to further, as they have promised, the work of approximation and accord which the patriotic efforts of said delegations will undoubtedly be able to consummate. Any notification from you may consequently be addressed to the Ambassador of Brazil, 2,419 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C.

"Upon temporarily parting from you by reason of this recess, it is a source of peculiar gratification to us to acknowledge the perfect courtesy and lofty spirit with which each and every one of the members of the delegations accredited to the mediation have contributed to the atmosphere of serenity, harmony and distinction which have always surrounded the discussions, as is commensurate with representatives of such high standing and the dicussion of matters of such great importance as those in which we have been engaged."

Mediation Colony Breaks Up.

Of the three mediators, only Minister Suarez Mujica of Chile remains here. He will probably start for Washington tomorrow, with his secretaries and his young son. Ambassador da Gama of Brazil left tonight to join his wife at Long Branch. Minister Naon of Argentina motored to Buffalo this evening with Secretary Enrique Gil and Romulo Naon, Jr., and will depart thence for Washington tomorrow.

Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehmann, the American delegates, accompanied by Mrs. Lamar, Secretary Dodge, Secretary Rose, and other attachés of the American mission, left Niagara Falls for Washington tonight. It is expected that conferences will be held in Washington on Friday and Saturday between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, and the American delegates. Minister Naon will probably consult with the President, the Secretary of State, and the Constitutionalist agents in Washington, with a view to furthering the effort to have Gen. Carranza appoint peace delegates to confer with the Huerta plenipotentiaries.

Mexican Feeling Against Lind.

Among the Mexican delegation the feeling is understood to exist that the unfriendly attitude of the United States Government toward Gen. Huerta is due largely to the influence of John Lind, ex-Governor of Minnesota, who was President Wilson's special confidential commissioner in Mexico for many months. According to the Mexican understanding of Mr. Lind's mission, he was to observe and make unbiased reports of conditions in the perturbed country. For Mr. Lind's discretion and bearing while in Mexico some of those connected with the Mexican peace delegation have nothing but praise; but they have gained the impression that Mr. Lind made biased reports that influenced the Washington Administration in a way that was greatly to the detriment of the Mexican Government.

Delegates to Report to Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Secretary Bryan said this afternoon that he expected the American delegates to return to Washington tomorrow. Here the delegates will confer with Mr. Bryan and the President, giving their detailed personal impressions of the course of the conversations that have held them at Niagara Falls. It is not believed, however, that the President will map out for them future policies at this time.

MEXICO ANNOUNCES AGREEMENT WITH US

Foreign Minister Ruiz Says Peace Has Been Definitely Arranged.

THANKS TO A B C NATIONS

Sends Huerta's Formal Acknowledgment to Mediators and Their Governments.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 2.—Señor Esteva Ruiz, Acting Secretary of Foreign Relations, made the following statement today:

"Yesterday peace was definitely arranged between Mexico and the United States. After the explanations requested respecting the clauses of the final protocol had been received, it was approved and was signed yesterday by the delegates of the United States. The Mexican delegates had signed it the evening before.

"It is not possible to communicate the protocols to the public before they are submitted to the Senate, but in them the national sovereignty and dignity were saved. Nay, more; the United States has not exacted any war indemnity and has waived satisfaction from the Government of Mexico for the Tampico incidents. The copies which I hand you of telegrams which the Mexican Chancellor has addressed to the mediating powers and their representatives make manifest the importance in the international history of America of the mediation of the three South American powers which has led to the peaceable adjustment of this conflict without any impairment of the integrity, honor, or interests of the Mexican nation."

Following is the telegram sent by Esteva Ruiz to the Foreign Offices of Argentina, Brazil, and Chile.

"By instructions of the ad interim constitutional President I entreat your Excellency to be pleased to transmit to your Government and people the thanks of the Government and people of Mexico for the task of mediation in which the Argentine Republic, in conjunction with the Republics of Brazil and Chile, took so disinterested and efficacious a part in respect to the conflict with the United States, and which has led to the peaceable adjustment of the international differences which had arisen and has thrown into relief the solidarity which should exist among all the nations of America, which, by their common traditions and interests, are bound together in aspirations of an identical civilization. This event marks undoubtedly an epoch in the history of international law in America and paves the way for the juridical solution of political differences among nations which will be a glory for the three illustrious mediating powers.

"At the same time, I take pleasure in recognizing once more the prudence, impartiality, and intelligent endeavor of the plenipotentiaries who in the Niagara Falls conferences worthily represented the mediating powers."

Señor Esteva Ruiz also sent telegrams of thanks to the three mediators, personally congratulating them on the results of the conference.

Gen. Huerta today made the following statement for THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"It is utterly false that I have sent my family to Puerto Mexico. Neither I nor my family have departed, or think of departing from the capital."

Gen. Blanquet said the rebels had done some damage to the Necaxa electric transmission line, which carries the Mexico City light and power supply, but that the damage had been repaired. The Zapatistas have been driven from the neighborhood of Xochimilco, the chief source of the city's water supply.

The Government's financial bill authorizing a loan of 60,000,000 pesos and the issue of legal tender Treasury notes passed the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon and was sent to the Senate.

Deputy de la Mora alone spoke against the measure, characterizing it as mischievous. A delegation of the Chamber of Commerce saw the Finance Minister this afternoon to make some observations on the project, but apparently it was satisfied with the explanations given by the Minister, as the Chamber has waived further action.

VERA CRUZ, July 2.—Sharing the apprehension felt by most foreigners in Mexico City, several Germans from the capital arrived at Vera Cruz today. They said the German Minister, Admiral Paul von Hintze, on Tuesday advised his countrymen to purchase foodstuffs sufficient to last at least eight days, and to store them in a concentration house chosen far from the centre of the city.

In the same house there are a number of Japanese, whose Government has provided them with rifles and machine guns, and in case of necessity they will join the Germans in defense.

Anticipating disturbances in the capital, five American nuns who had been attached to the School of the Sacred Heart as instructors, also arrived here today.

PANUCO CONDITIONS BETTER.

Admiral Mayo Obtains Promise of Protection of Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Uneasiness in official circles over disturbed conditions in the Tampico and Panuco oil regions, where oil operators have been dilatory in paying contributions to the Constitutionalist cause, was considerably allayed today by a report from Admiral Mayo. Secretary Daniels gave out this statement based upon the report:

"Advices at hand say that Admiral Mayo visited Panuco yesterday in company with the American Consul and had an interview with the military commander and a number of Americans and received promises from the military commander for the protection of foreigners. Admiral Mayo feels that his visit has had a good effect and there will be no further cause for complaint. Oil company officials have been sufficiently reassured by the representations made to Admiral Mayo to direct the return of their employes to the oil fields. The employes will go back to work today."

Admiral Mayo made no mention of a reported order for the surrender by Americans in the Tampico district of all arms and ammunition to the civil authorities. This order was said to have been issued to remind the oil operators that the authorities expected contributions to a fund which they said would be used to protect the oil fields.

SILLIMAN STARTS TODAY.

Goes to Represent This Country at Saltillo, Carranza's Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Fully instructed on the Washington Government's attitude toward every phase of the Mexican problem, John R. Silliman will leave here tomorrow for Saltillo to represent the United States at the temporary capital of Gen. Carranza, First Chief of the Constitutionalists.

It is understood that he goes virtually as President Wilson's personal agent to talk with the revolutionary leader, to lend a hand, if occasion offers, in healing the Carranza-Villa breach, and particularly to impress upon the Constitutionalists the urgent necessity of early peace in Mexico through the establishment of a provisional Government, as proposed in the Niagara Falls mediation conferences.

Mr. Silliman, who was a classmate of President Wilson at Princeton, is the regularly accredited Vice and Deputy Consul at Saltillo. He returns to his post, now Gen. Carranza's headquarters, under permission recently given by Gen. Huerta. A few weeks ago he was a prisoner there, charged by Huerta officials with aiding their enemies, and his release was granted only on condition that he leave Mexico not to return.

REBEL MEDIATORS GATHER.

Villareal and Santoscoy Reach Torreon for Villa-Carranza Parleys.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Felix Sommerfeld, personal agent of Gen. Villa in the United States, today received a dispatch from Villa stating that three mediators had arrived at Torreon in an endeavor to adjust the Villa-Carranza differences, and that the prospects for a settlement of the trouble are encouraging.

The mediators include Gen. Antonio Villareal, Military Governor of the State of Nuevo Leon, and Gen. Jesus Santscoy. Both are officers of the Army of the Northeast, of which Gen. Pablo Gonzales is commander, Gen. Gonzales having lent his influence in the direction of bringing Villa and Carranza to an adjustment of their troubles. Mr. Sommerfeld announced tonight that Gen. Villa had informed him in this telegram that he felt "that everything will be arranged satisfactorily."

Information to the effect that there would probably be a real adjustment of the Villa-Carranza difficulty was also brought to Rafael Zubaran, special envoy of Gen. Carranza, in messages received from Mexico today. This was considered very encouraging.

More than all else, the Constitutionalists here are anxious to have this controversy settled. They feel that an absolute break between Carranza and Villa would be most unfortunate, not only in its bearing upon the plans for a meeting between the Carranza and Huerta representatives for the adjustment of the Mexican internal trouble, but because of its effect in setting back the success of the revolution indefinitely, if not irretrievably.

Señor Zubaran and members of the Carranza junta expected to have a telegraphic conference with Gen. Carranza at Monterey, via Laredo, tonight, but did not receive from Gen. Carranza any final answer to the invitation for a meeting between the Carranza and Huerta delegates.

Constitutionalists here who have been recommending to Gen. Carranza that he send delegates to meet those of Gen. Huerta were gratified over the news dispatches from Niagara Falls stating that the Huerta delegates had today addressed to the mediators for transmission to the rebels a communication agreeing to discuss peace terms with representatives of Carranza. Señor Zubaran said tonight that he had received no such communication from the mediators, but would be glad to forward it to Gen. Carranza as soon as it arrived in Washington.

Mr. Sommerfeld left Washington on the midnight train for New York.

LETS OFF MOTHER OF 20.

Mrs. Lynch, Charged with Pummeling Man, Gets Suspended Sentence.

Mrs. Katherine Lynch, 47 years old, mother of twenty children, fifteen of whom are living, nine boys and six girls, received a suspended sentence in the Long Island City Court yesterday. She was charged with having whacked George M. Woods, 22 years old, over the head with a loaf of stale bread.

Mrs. Lynch is about the medium height and of generous build. One of her sons, George Lynch, has just served out an enlistment in the regular army. Her husband is Michael Lynch. They are well to do and run a big grocery store in 1,098 Van Alst Avenue, Astoria, several blocks away from a store kept by Woods, the complainant, at 805 Crescent Street. Several months ago Lynch sold this store to Woods and difficulties soon developed. Woods asserted that Lynch was taking away his customers and there is now pending a suit for damages instituted by Woods.

The incident that brought both sides with their friends to court yesterday occurred on June 2, when, according to the story told on the witness stand by Woods, Mrs. Lynch invaded his store and first attacked him with a loaf of bread and next tried to hit him with a sugar scoop. This was denied by Mrs. Lynch, who said she simply went to the store to warn Woods against trusting two customers who did not pay their bills, when she was attacked by Woods, and that she simply used the loaf of bread in self-defense. Magistrate Fitch pondered long over the case and finally said:

"Mrs. Lynch, you have fully paid your tribute both to the State and nation. Your large family has need of your services and in suspending sentence I also direct that you remain away from the Woods store and let the Woods family alone."

FIRST ROOF PLAYGROUND.

Commissioner Ward Speaks at Opening Exercises Atop Hendrik Hudson.

The first roof playground on a New York apartment house was opened yesterday atop the Hendrik Hudson, Riverside Drive and 110th Street, with Mrs. Helen Speer, who designed it, as hostess. Most of the residents of the house turned out to watch the children enjoy themselves, and Park Commissioner Ward also was present and made a speech.

"I have drafted a law," said Mr. Ward, "which provides that all apartment and flat houses built in future shall have the roofs so constructed as to allow playgrounds to be added. At present an astonishingly small number of roofs are fit for that purpose; most of them slope at too steep an angle, or are broken up by partitions. I have inspected the roofs of all the armories lately and find that few of them are available in their entirety, though nearly all have a little space which could be used. But roofs are going to be one of the most important factors in solving the playground problem for the children. We have done something with playgrounds under bridges, something with spaces between the bulkheads in the unused docks, and we are gradually getting consent from owners of vacant lots for their property to be used for this purpose. But that work is necessarily slow. We cannot spare another foot of park space for playgrounds, and to utilize the roofs as they ought to be utilized will require the awakening of the pride of property owners all over the city."

Miss Sophie Irene Loeb also spoke, declaring that America was falling far behind other countries in scientific care of children.

It was hard work to keep the youngsters quiet while the speeches were going on, for they were too busy enjoying the numerous amusement devices. The walls of the corridor which leads to the playground are decorated with painted geese and pictures of children hurrying to play. The garden itself, walled high all around so that not even the most adventurous child could fall off, is frescoed with landscapes and castles, and trees so lifelike that a sleepy baby could very well imagine himself in Central Park.

The playground was built by the American Real Estate Company, which owns the property, and has already built three outdoor playgrounds in the Bronx.

DELAYS ACTION ON JONES AND WARBURG

Senate Committee to Examine Reserve Board Nominees Before Reporting on Them.

FAVOR THREE OTHERS NAMED

Harding, Miller, and Hamlin Indorsed by Committee, Which Adjourns Till Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Senate Committee on Banking and Currency voted today to report favorably the nominations of three members of the Federal Reserve Board, W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, A. C. Miller of San Francisco, and Charles S. Hamlin of Boston. Action was withheld on the nominations of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago and Paul M. Warburg of New York, although most of the two sessions of the committee was devoted to the discussion of these nominations.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Jones, in accordance with committee action, asking him to appear before the committee on Monday. Although a similar course was not ordered in the case of Mr. Warburg, it is probable that he also will be asked to meet the committee in Washington.

There was no objection to the confirmation of either Mr. Miller or Mr. Harding. Members of the committee discussed at some length the report that Mr. Hamlin for many years received an annual retainer of $10,000 from the Boston & Maine Railroad, but this was not regarded as sufficient cause for withholding favorable action on his nomination in committee. As one member of the committee said after the meeting:

"It is extremely hard to convince a group of lawyers that there is anything wrong in receiving a retainer."

A majority of the committee is made up of lawyers.

Despite President Wilson's letter respecting Thomas D. Jones's connection with the International Harvester Company, the committee was not satisfied that his association with that corporation should not be further scrutinized. Mr. Jones was a defendant in an action by the Department of Justice against that corporation, and the committee appeared to be more anxious to have a full explanation of that fact than to discuss President Wilson's statement that Mr. Jones, holding one share of stock, went into the corporation to reform it.

Senator Nelson, Republican, of Minnesota, voted against a favorable report on Mr. Jones when the nomiantion was in subcommittee, basing his objection to the nominee's connection with the "Zinc Trust," and it was suggested in committee today that Mr. Jones should be asked to explain his connection with that industry when it appeared that he was a trust organizer rather than a trust reformer.

In the discussion of Mr. Warburg's nomination particular attention was paid to the fact that he had been a naturalized citizen for only three years. It was suggested that other members of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were not American citizens, and that foreign influence in the make-up of the Federal Reserve Board should be inquired into.

When Mr. Warburg appears before the committee, as it apepars certain he will be invited to do, it is probable that he will be asked to explain his connection with the financial operations of the Chicago & Alton Railroad and the acquisition of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Immediate interest marks the latter subject because of the failure of the Cincinnati road to meet interest obligations due July 1.

There was nothing said in committee today respecting the partisan character of the board, although Democratic members stated afterward that they expected Republicans to air fully on the floor of the Senate the fact that all seven members of the board are Democrats. It is probable that Republicans who are inclined to twit their Democratic colleagues thereon will also lay stress on the point that none of the seven Democrats proposed for the board have voted for W. J. Bryan for President of the United States. The committee adjourned over July 4 to take up its work again on Mr. Jones's appearance before it.

LOVE THE BEST EUGENICS.

Laws of Little Avail Unless of Universal Application, Says Physician.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 2.—In a paper on sex hygiene read to-day at the meeting of the Bureau of Sanitary Science of the American Institute of Homeopathy, Dr. J. Richey Horner of the Cleveland Homeopathic Medical College asserted that old-fashioned love was really the best and highest form of eugenics.

"As long," he said, "as man is attracted by beauty and woman by strength, eugenics will in a great measure take care of itself.

"Eugenics and sex education go hand in hand," he continued. "Children should, however, be given instruction before the age of 9, and the instruction should be given individually rather than in classes. The child should be taught to hold his mother in respect, else he will hold no other woman in respect."

He added that eugenic laws were of little avail unless they were of universal application.

Dr. Anson Cameron of Chicago, Chairman of the institute's Bureau of Pedology, said that the expense of saving the 8,000 babies who die needlessly every year in New York would be no greater than the expense of burying them. He urged better education of the public in infant hygiene.

New Orleans, Portland, Oregon, and Long Beach, N. Y., are being considered for next year's convention.

LASSEN ERUPTION NO. 15.

Lasts Half an Hour — Ashes Fall Twenty Miles Away.

REDDING, Cal., July 2.—For the third time in the last forty-eight hours Lassen Peak broke into eruption again today. The outburst is the fifteenth in the series that began May 30, and, except that its duration was not so great, was almost an exact duplication of yesterday's.

A meteorological phenomenon hitherto unmentioned was reported today. Observers on the slopes of the mountain sent word that all of the recent eruptions had been followed by severe thunder storms at the summit.

Today's outbreak continued with unabated vigor for half an hour. Again there was the sudden upshoot of ash-laden steam, gradually spreading out into a huge overshadowing cloud. Ashes fell at distances of from fifteen to twenty miles.

TWO MEN MISSING IN JERSEY

Stone Disappears from Dumont and Mueller from East Rutherford.

The disappearance of two persons in New Jersey, both of whom were seen last on Tuesday, was reported yesterday. Thad Stone, well known in Dumont, who is connected with a brokerage concern in New York, is one of those who are missing. He has not been seen since he left his home on Tuesday morning to take a West Shore train to New York.

The other person who has disappeared is August Mueller, 53 years old, of Randolph Avenue, East Rutherford. He was last seen at the Twenty-third Street Ferry, where he parted from his nephew. He intended to return that afternoon to East Rutherford for the funeral of a friend, and the funeral service was held up an hour, but he did not come.

ROOSEVELT AGAIN CRIES 'BLACKMAIL'

Challenges Wilson or Bryan to Answer—Disregards Du Bois Letter.

TREATY IS "DISCREDITABLE"

Attacks Mexican Policy and Says Administration Has Forfeited All Right to Respect.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 2.—Another severe arraignment of the Wilson Administration was made tonight by Col. Theodore Roosevelt after he read the statement of James T. Du Bois, former Minister to Colombia under President Taft, who asserted that President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan were entirely justified in offering to pay the Colombian Government $25,000,000 and inserting in the proposed treaty an "expression of regret."

Col. Roosevelt brushed Mr. Du Bois aside and did not attempt to answer his argument. He repeated the charge of blackmail and then grasped the opportunity to charge the Administration with failing to provide protection to American subjects in Mexico, a condition of affairs which, the Colonel said, did not surprise him, in view of the general foreign policy of the Government.

The treaty with Colombia he characterized as a "discreditable transaction."

"I have nothing to say about Mr. Du Bois," the Colonel said. "He was merely an instrument. Mr. Wilson is responsible for the attempted payment of the blackmail to Colombia. Whether he did it on his own initiative or on the instigation of Mr. Bryan is wholly unimportant and it is of infinitely less importance what particular subordinate was chosen to carry through the discreditable transaction or to apologize for it in the public press.

"Neither Mr. Wilson nor Mr. Bryan can answer my statement. The payment of belated blackmail and the mere proposal to make it is an outrage on the honor and a blow to the interests of the American people. There is small wonder that hundreds of Americans in Mexico have been endeavoring to become British, German, or French subjects in order to get some protection from some Government. An Administration that will conclude such a treaty as this treaty for the payment of blackmail to Colombia has forfeited all right to the respect of the people of the United States."

In view of what Col. Roosevelt said about the Wilson policy in Mexico it will be recalled that his friend, Medill McCormick, leader of the Illinois Progressives, who was a correspondent for The London Times during the period when war with Mexico was believed to be inevitable, traveled to Mexico City from Vera Cruz on the strength of a letter from the Brazilian Minister. McCormick was permitted to pass through the lines of the Federals while some other correspondents, who had only their credentials as American citizens, were turned back, although there had been no declaration of war.

Col. Roosevelt took a thorough rest today. Instead of working with his secretary in the morning, as usual, he went for a long tramp with his son Archie. He refused to see visitors and did not give any consideration to political questions until the Du Bois statement was called to his attention.

It is understood heer that Col. Roosevelt fondly hopes that President Wilson or Mr. Bryan will accept the challenge contained in his attack of tonight, to answer the former statement he made about the condition under which the canal was built. The Colonel, it is believed here, would like nothing better than to engage in a controversy with the leading figures in the Administration over the canal. He feels that he acted within his rights: that the American public was with him, and that any controversy of the nature he invites would result to his benefit.

To enter into a newspaper controversy with Dubois, whom he classifies as an "instrument" only, the Colonel does not believe would be a good plan. It not only would tend to end his hopes of a debate with Mr. Wilson or Mr. Bryan over the canal issue, but would make it necessary, in fully answering the arguments of his enemies, to discharge most of his ammunition.

MITCHEL AND COLONEL CONFER

Talk State Politics, but Mayor Says He's No Candidate.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 2.—Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York was the guest of Col. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill tonight, and upon leaving to return to his home in Manhattan he admitted that "in a general way" State politics was discussed. He was asked if his visit was to be taken as an indication that he would, under any circumstances, throw his support to a sort of Progressive-Fusion or anti-boss ticket.

"I have been so busy that I am not prepared to talk about the political situation," he said. "If the time comes for me to do so, I will be prepared to talk."

"Were State politics discussed by you and the Colonel?"

"Well, in a general way," he said.

"Were candidates discussed?"

"If you mean names mentioned," replied Mr. Mitchel, "we talked a lot about municipal affairs. I outlined to the Colonel what we were trying to do in New York, and we had a most interesting talk."

The Mayor motored to Sagamore Hill from New York with Mrs. Mitchel and Judge and Mrs. William J. Ransom of Brooklyn. Judge Ransom is one of the Progressive Party leaders. The Mayor and his party had dinner with the Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt and left for New York in their motor car at 10 o'clock.

When the Mayor was asked if he would consider the nomination upon an independent ticket in the event the tickets of the old parties were of the boss-ruled type, he said emphatically:

"I am not a candidate for a nomination of any kind on any ticket. Of that you may be assured."

"Did Col. Roosevelt say whether he would run for Governor?" was the final question.

"If I answered that question the way I am going to," he said, "you will probably misconstrue what I have to say. But I am going to answer it. I was at Col. Roosevelt's home and I do not feel that I should discuss anything the Colonel had to say about his personal plans. But you have no right to draw any deductions from that, as I do not mean to convey any."

Mayor Mitchel said with a smile that he and Col. Roosevelt had discussed jungle fevers and headaches.

"You see it was purely a social visit," he said and laughed.

Policeman Lobdell, an attendant in the Mayor's office, had brought a big bundle of papers here, and the Mayor said they concerned a matter which had come up when Roosevelt was Governor.

"But," he added, "we were so busy talking about other matters that we did not get to them at all."

The fact that the Mayor called upon Col. Roosevelt at this time, at the height of the agitation over the plans of the Progressives for the Gubernatorial campaign, was considered highly significant. One man suggested that the Mayor's visit might have the effect of frightening the Democratic Party of New York into the selection of a ticket which was not controlled by Tammany Hall. But no one was able to figure out how that would help the Colonel.

Col. Roosevelt was satisfied to leave the matter in doubt, although it was apparent that he was mightily pleased by the interest which Mayor Mitchel's visit stirred up. All the Colonel would say was that it was a social visit.

50 YEARS FOR STEALING 50C.

Negro Paroled by Alabama Governor After Serving Twenty Years.

MOBILE, Ala., July 2.—Fifty years for stealing 50 cents. That is the sentence that a Hale County, Alabama, jury imposed on Frank Williams, a negro who in 1894 robbed another negro of a half dollar.

After serving more than twenty years of the fifty-year sentence, Williams has been paroled by Gov. O'Neal, the Governor extending clemency to the negro last night.

COLLECTOR VICK RESIGNS.

Michelena Wins in Fight of Banks for Dominican Deposits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Walker W. Vick, Collector of Customs under the American treaty receivership in Santo Domingo, has resigned, the resignation to take effect at the pleasure of President Wilson, but no action has been taken on his resignation, and a successor has not been chosen. Mr. Vick was Executive Secretary of the Wilson-Marshall Inaugural Committee. He is a North Carolinian, but now has a home in Rutherford, N. J. He was an original Wilson Democrat and was Secretary of the Wilson Campaign Committee.

The resignation of Mr. Vick was announced at the White House today following the publication in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning of a special cablegram from Santo Domingo stating that the receivership depositary has been withdrawn from the Banco Nacional by Mr. Vick, and that the Banco Nacional intended to fight the withdrawal, using powerful influence at Washington and refusing to pay the checks of the Dominican customs receivership.

Official dispatches received here today from Santo Domingo verified this announcement and added that Receiver General Vick had designated the banking firm of S. Michelena & Co. as the depositary for the Dominican customs. The firm of Michelena was formerly the depositary. Last year the customs receipts amounting annually to $5,000,000, were transferred to the Banco Nacional, which agreed to pay 2 per cent. interest on monthly balances, something the other banks had not done.

It is reported that there have been differences between Minister Sullivan and Receiver General Vick over the fight of the banks for the possession of these funds. The statement is made, however, that Mr. Vick is resigning because of ill-health and because the members of his family want him to rejoin them in New Jersey, Mrs. Vick being unable to remain in Santo Domingo on account of the climate.

More than a month ago, under instructions from Washington, Mr. Vick called for proposals from banks for handling the customs funds. The Banco Nacional did not bid. The Royal Bank of Canada and the house of S. Michelena & Co. were the only bidders.

I'M PRIMED, SAYS PENROSE.

Will Reply with Unwritten History if Roosevelt Attacks Again.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 2.—In speaking of his controversy with Theodore Roosevelt, Senator Penrose said today:

"I have nothing to add at this time to my statement of Tuesday. If Roosevelt attacks me again I will have aplenty to say. There is much ammunition in my chest and I propose to defend myself against all attacks.

"I have plenty of unwritten history stored away where I can conveniently lay hands on it. Much of this concerns Mr. Roosevelt, and if he continues to make me a target for his abuse I shall divulge a few things that will make interesting reading for some people. It is likely that much of this unwritten history will show the former President up in an entirely different light from that in which he is accustomed to pose before the public.

"I have been the target for attack from political holier-than-thou charlatans since I first entered the arena, and I have no doubt I shall be abused by the same class of people as long as I remain in public life and possibly even after I retire. But that sort of thing has palled on me, and from this time on I shall do a little gunning myself."

Pittsburgh Progressives are jubilant over word received through William Flinn that Theodore Roosevelt will take an active part in the Fall campaign in Pennsylvania, delivering a number of speeches, at least one of them in Pittsburgh, after a rest of about six weeks.

ROOSEVELT QUIZ CUT SHORT

Wales Charges It Was to Bottle Up Further Strike Revelations.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 2.—Plans of Theodore Roosevelt when President for settling the 1902 coal strike, as described by the Colonel in a deposition made for E. Day Clark, as referee, in New York, occupied the attention of a jury in the Supreme Court today hearing evidence in an action brought by A. D. Wales, an attorney, against the United Mine Workers of America and John Mitchell to recover $200,000 for services in settling the coal strike.

Mr. Wales contends that the plan for forcing the coal companies to mediation was advanced by him. Col. Roosevelt does not sustain this contention. At the hearing in New York he declared that it was his determined stand which brought the companies to time, it being intimated to the operators that he was ready to use the military if necessary to assist in operating the mines for the benefit of the country.

M. Wales caused a sensation by asserting that Referee Clark, working with Senator Harvey D. Hinman, who represented the defense, cut short his cross-examination of Col. Roosevelt to prevent him from bringing out material facts. Senator Hinman testified there was no intention of shortening the cross-examination—that Col. Roosevelt had said he was very busy and desired the hearing conducted expeditiously.

McANENY BOOM READY.

If He Consents, Friends Will Work for Gubernatorial Nomination.

George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen, is being discussed by a group of influential Democrats of the independent type as a possible candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket. Among the men who are prepared to spring a McAneny boom, should they receive permission to do so from Mr. McAneny himself, his candidacy is looked upon as the one thing that might unite Democrats of all factions at the polls in the Fall campaign.

While Mr. McAneny is not by any means an organization man, and while most of his political activities have been exercised in the interest of independent thinking and freedom from boss dictation in political matters, it was said yesterday that his candidacy would be gladly accepted by what is regarded as the "organization" in the Democratic Party where the term inevitably includes Tammany.

Democratic State Chairman William Church Osborn announced yesterday that, following a business trip to the West which he must undertake next week, he would make an automobile tour of the State to confer with Democratic leaders. He will start on this tour from Buffalo, where he is due on his return from the West on July 13, and come all the way to New York by motor, making stops through the central section of the State and the southern tier of counties.

Mr. Osborn said yesterday that early next week he would announce the personnel of the Platform Committee he was authorized to appoint by the Democratic Conference at the Hotel Knickerbocker.

PICTURE FINDS MISSING BOY.

He Had Run Away from a Whipping and Adopted a New Home.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, July 2.—Joseph Hassum of 321 Union Street, Brooklyn, ran away on June 12, when threatened with a whipping. Next day he was brought to the Children's Home here. He told Supt. James Bratt that his name was John Ford, that he used to live in Hackensack, and that his father took him to Fairview and left him there.

He was placed in the family of Joseph Baker, in East Rutherford, and all was well until yesterday when his picture appeared in a newspaper with the news that his parents wondered whether he was dead or alive.

Today the boy confessed and was brought here to await his mother, who was notified that he was safe.

EXPECT $100,000,000 IN TAX RECEIPTS

McAdoo Predicts Tremendous Revenue from Corporation and Income Returns.

LAW WILL BE UNDERSTOOD

Better Collections Are Looked For in Present Fiscal Year—Surplus is Prophesied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo had a conference today over the remarkable results of the operation of the corporation and income tax law as shown by Tuesday's Treasury receipts. The President was highly gratified at the very large Treasury returns on the last day of the fiscal year. On that day's business, after deducting all disbursements, the net receipts to apply on any possible deficit were $32,999,432.

Every internal revenue office throughout the country was strained to the utmost to handle the day's business. In many places the demand for money made a distinct drain on local banks. The corporation and income tax up to June 30, 1914, brought the Government $71,386,156.13. So far as the Administration is concerned, the experience demonstrates for the future of Government finance the entire practicability of the income tax.

Secretary McAdoo said today that he would expect the corporation and income tax, corporate and individual, to produce in the present fiscal year fully $100,000,000 of revenue. There are numerous considerations on which he bases this tentative prediction. In the first place, the law will cover a full fiscal year, whereas, thus far, as to individual incomes, it has been in operation only ten months.

This will bring not only a complete business period within the reach of the law, but it will include dividend paying months in which very large amounts of income are taxable, these months having escaped from the operation of the law in the past year. It is also taken into consideration that the execution of the law and the Government's organization will improve with the second year. Furthermore, the country and the corporations and the individuals subject to the laws will become familiar with requirements so that collections will be more thorough and satisfactory.

The results shown by Tuesday's Government business encourage the President and the Secretary of the Treasury to believe that with good crops and anywhere near the same measure of prosperity that the country has had in the past year the Treasury will show a large surplus at the close of the present fiscal year, and they believe that the establishment of the Federal reserve banking system will help this condition.

This is what the President has had in his mind to accomplish in urging the passage of the new tariff and the reserve bank law. With the burden of expenditure on account of the Panama Canal lifted, to the extent of probably $25,000,000, allowing for necessities in completing the work, including fortifications and the exigencies of dredging at Culebra, the Government officials hope to have a substantial surplus.

JURY GIVES GIRL $13,700.

Miss Eckert Wins Third Suit for Injuries by Trestle Fall.

Miss Annie L. Eckert of West New York, who sued the Public Service Corporation this week for the third time for injuries she received on April 19, 1913, by being thrown from the trestle between Weehawken and West New York, and falling thirty feet to the ground, got a verdict last night of $13,700 from a jury in the Hudson County Circuit Court, presided over by Judge Campbell. Each time the young woman has appeared in court in an invalid chair, with an iron cast on her spine. The first time she sued the jury gave her a verdict of $20,000. On appeal the Public Service Railway Company had that verdict set aside as excessive. A month ago the case was tried again and a jury gave Miss Eckert a verdict of $25,000, the full amount she asked for.

Judge Campbell said he would have to set that verdict aside as excessive, but told counsel for Miss Eckert that if the injured girl would accept $15,000 he would let judgment be entered for that amount. Miss Eckert on advice of Warren Dixon, her lawyer, refused to accept $15,000. Now she gets $1,300 less. She was a stenogrpaher and music teacher. She will be maimed for life as the result of her injuries.

MAN TICKLED HER FEET.

Woke Mrs. Hull, Who Screamed, and the Burglar Fled.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, July 2.—Mrs. Eugene Hull of 52 Oliver Street awoke at 1 o'clock this morning because a burglar was tickling her feet. Her screams roused the household, and the intruder took fright and escaped through a window at the back of the house, smashing a grape arbor in his fall. To get out of the yard he smashed a gate.

When Mrs. Hull felt her feet being tickled and awoke, the tickling stopped but the hands stayed on her feet. She thought it was Miss Irene Perry, who lives with her. She asked what was wanted and got no reply. Then she raised herself in bed and screamed, for she saw outlined against the window the figure of a slim man, wearing a derby hat, and leaning with both arms over the foot of the bed. Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Perry, the police, the weather man—everybody in town, in fact—goes to the foot of the class when asked to explain why that burglar held those feet. One person advanced the theory that the burglar might have thought Mrs. Hull kept money in her stocking, but Mrs. Hull does not wear them at 1 A. M. usually.

TALKS TO PARIS AMERICANS.

Perry Belmont Would Curtail the President's Power.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 2.—Perry Belmont delivered an address today before the American Club on "Personal Government and Executive Officers in Congress." Ambassador Myron T. Herrick was among the representative audience.

"Under the present relation of the executive department to the national Legislature," said Mr. Belmont, "it is the office, not the man, that is accountable for the executive supremacy leading to personal government and that enables a President to initiate and undertake personal rather than national policies at home and abroad. A complete change of attitude would undoubtedly be brought about if the intercourse between the legislative and executive branches of the Government were open, direct, and more responsible to public opinion.

"A discussion on the floor of either house between the leaders of the legislative branch and the heads of departments or members of the Cabinet would go far toward restoring the equilibrium that should exist between the great co-ordinate branches of the Government of the United States."

DELAYS PEACE CONFERENCE.

Action of Dutch Government Marks the Abandonment of Our Plan.

THE HAGUE, July 2.—The Dutch Government today sent an invitation to the nations which participated in the second Peace Conference to appoint delegates to a committee to formulate a definite programme for the third conference.

It is proposed that the committee assemble at The Hague on June 1, 1915.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The action of the Dutch Government today in issuing a call for the assembly of the International Committee on Programme next year marks the definite abandonment of the American plan to save a year's time in the formalities necessary to reconvene The Hague Conference.

Under the terms of the resolution adopted by the second conference, the Committee on Programme was to meet in sufficient time to complete its work, submit the draft programme to the various signatories, and convene the third conference in 1915. Through general neglect no movement was made in 1913 to bring this committee together.

At the suggestion of Senator Root, the State Department last January called the attention of the Governments which participated in the second conference to the omission, and suggested that the Ministers of the various nations resident at The Hague and constituting the Administrative Council be authorized to discharge the duties of the Programme Committee. This proposition was made through the Dutch Government, but was not accepted.

FIVE BOMBS READY FOR THE ARCHDUKE

Gabrinovics Confesses—Bomb Throwers Had Poison with Which to Commit Suicide.

VICTIMS' BODIES IN VIENNA

Anti-Servian Rioting While the Funeral Cortege is on Its Way from the Station to the Hofburg.

VIENNA, July 2.—Nedeljo Gabrinovics, who threw the bomb at Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, while they were proceeding to the Sarajevo Town Hall last Sunday, preceding their assassination by Gabrio Prinzip, today made a complete confession, according to dispatches received from Sarajevo.

In his confession Gabrinovics says that, after learning while at Belgrade that Archduke Francis Ferdinand was going to Sarajevo, he communicated with Prinzip, with the result that they resolved to go there and kill the Archduke, the Duchess, and their suites, and die themselves for the Fatherland.

To obtain bombs they applied to Major Milan Pribitchevitch, Secretary of the Pan-Servian Union and formerly an officer in the Austrian Army. Through him, Gabrinovics says, bombs and revolvers were obtained from the Servian arsenal at Kraguyevatz.

Gabrinovics undertook to find four other bomb throwers, and it was agreed that when the Archduke was seen approaching each should hold a bomb in his right hand and a bottle of poison in his left hand, and that the bomb thrower should drink the poison after throwing the bomb.

Gabrinovics succeeded in finding accomplices. One of them was a Belgrade student named Grabes. The conspirators traveled separately to Sarajevo, where the bombs were divided among them in a confectioner's shop on the morning of the attempt. According to Gabrinovics, Prinzip told him that he had given bombs and poison to three other comrades, whose names he did not divulge.

Prinzip, who had previously denied that he had any accomplices, broke down under examination and exclaimed: "I now regret my crime, for my comrades deserted me in a shameful manner. They should have thrown the bombs, but the cowardly scoundrels did not. Consequently, I revenge myself on them by betraying them. Leave me alone until tomorrow, and I will give more details."

Grabes has been arrested and admits having received bombs and poison.

Arrival of the Bodies at Vienna.

The special court train from Triest conveying the bodies of the murdered Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, arrived at the Southern Railway station here at 10 o'clock tonight. Prince Montenuovo, the Court Chamberlain, and other high officials were in waiting.

Escorted by halberdiers and Life Guardsmen, the coffins were carried to the imperial waiting room, which had been converted into a temporary chapel. There they were blessed by court chaplains and then carried out and placed in two great black court hearses.

The funeral procession, which in the meantime had formed outside, started for the Hofburg. Two outriders, carrying lighted lanterns, led the cortège. They were followed by an advance guard of cavalry. Then came an official on horseback, known as the "hofeinspanier," dressed in the picturesque costume of a Spanish cavalier.

The court carriages were next in line. Two outriders preceded the hearses, each of which was drawn by six black horses. On either side walked non-commissioned officers and court footmen. A special guard of twelve halberdiers and twelve mounted Life Guardsmen with drawn swords followed the hearses, and two carriages with the suites of the Archduke and the Duchess completed the cortège.

No troops were stationed along the route, but the procession made its way between the lines of a moving military guard. At the Hofburg the Master of Ceremonies and the palace clergy awaited the cortège at the foot of the Ambassadors' staircase and walked slowly forward to meet it, preceded by the boy choir of the court chapel, chanting the "Miserere."

The procession then advanced to the chapel, with the Austrian and Hungarian Life Guards and halberdiers walking beside the coffins, which were attended by four noble pages dressed in sombre costumes and carrying huge lighted wax tapers. The Court Chamberlain and other officials brought up the rear. The coffins were placed on an elevated catafalque, entirely covered with gold brocade, with a swinging canopy.

After a short benediction, the Chamberlain of the late Archduke handed the keys of the coffins to Prince Montenuovo, the chapel was locked, and all departed.

The Hofburg Chapel is very small, accommodating not more than 200 persons, and it will prove utterly inadequate for such a ceremony as that of tomorrow. All the seats have been removed and the walls and floors are covered with black cloth. On one of the walls hangs an escutcheon consisting of the Archduke's arms. It is surmounted by silver sconces, with lighted candles. The arms of the Duchess similarly adorn the opposite wall. Silver candlesticks holding lighted wax tapers surround the catafalque, at the foot of which are cushions bearing the Archduke's crown and the Austrian Archducal two-pointed hat, his General's plumed hat and sword, and all his orders and decorations.

At the foot of the coffin of the Duchess repose her orders, a pair of long white kid gloves, and her fan, in accordance with the Austrian custom.

Heir to Throne Meets the Bodies.

The only member of the imperial family who attended the ceremony tonight was Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, now the heir to the throne, who at the last moment decided to go to the station to meet the bodies.

Immense crowds gathered around the station and along the whole route to the Hofburg, standing bareheaded and in profound silence as the cortège passed.

The populace displayed great emotion during the passage of the cortège, which, except for the military display, was of an extremely simple character. The hearses were plain, square-built vehicles, with a lighted lamp at each corner and entirely devoid of ornamentation. They were far plainer in appearance than those frequently seen at middle-class funerals. An Archduke's funeral ranks in Court etiquette as "third class," "first class" being reserved exclusively for the Emperor and "second class" for an Empress.

At all the stations between Trieste and Vienna on the journey today, silent homage was paid as the funeral train passed. At each of them were crowds and representatives of the corporations and municipalities.

It was officially announced tonight, to the disappointment of the Viennese populace, that an attack of lumbago would prevent the German Emperor from attending the funeral.

The anti-Servian agitation, which is becoming an exceedingly dangerous sympton, shows no sign of abating. Even while the funeral cortège was on its way to the Hofburg, hundreds of excited students were engaged in a desperate struggle with the police to reach the Servian legation, within three blocks of the procession.

Strong forces of mounted and foot gendarmes have guarded all the approaches to the legation ever since the serious demonstration on Tuesday, and when it was seen that the attack would be renewed 500 reinforcements were hastily summoned. They rushed to the scene. The crowd hooted and yelled, but the police succeeded in controlling the situation and finally, after a great struggle, dispersed the students.

After discussing the matter with Archduke Charles Francis, the Emperor today decided, in view of the small personal fortune left by Archduke Francis Ferdinand and the great expense involved in the upkeep of three country seats, to allow the orphaned children an appanage equal to what would have been granted to them had their father succeeded to the throne. Archduke Charles has agreed to continue this arrangement when he comes to the throne.

KAISER DIPLOMATICALLY ILL

Symptoms of Lumbago—Won't Go to Archduke's Funeral.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 2.—An official announcement, which is not taken seriously in all quarters, was issued at midday today to the effect that the Kaiser had suddenly been compelled to abandon his intention of going to Vienna tonight for the funeral of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife on account of "slight indisposition," which overtook him early in the day.

It is stated that his Majesty has pains in the back resembling those from lumbago, which attacked him after his usual morning ride in the park of Sans Souci, near Potsdam.

Prince Henry of Prussia, who was to accompany the Emperor to Vienna, proceeded there alone tonight.

One version of the Kaiser's indisposition is that it was brought on by a cold due to his having become overheated in a boat-ride at Havele last evening.

One encountered in political quarters today quite a common belief that the Emperor's illness is what is known as "diplomatic indisposition," due either to a sudden decision on his own part that his presence at the Archduke's funeral, as the only foreign sovereign might be open to misinterpretation, or to an intimation from Emperor Francis Joseph that it would be better on the whole if the funeral ceremonies were to be quite private.

NO ROYAL VISITORS.

Prince Arthur of Connaught Cancels Trip—Anarchists Feared.

LONDON, July 2.—Prince Arthur of Connaught has canceled his proposed visit to Vienna to represent King George at the funeral of Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

It is understood that the sudden cancellation of the visit of the German Emperor and all other foreign royal guests is due to the express wish of the Austrian Emperor that the ceremony should be as private as possible.

There have been unconfirmed rumors that the Archduke's will set forth the desire that no imperial personages should attend his funeral, but it is believed that the real reason for the cancellation of the visits is the fear that the lives of foreign royal visitors might be endangered.

FRANCE MAY BAR AMERICAN AGENTS

Methods of Treasury Employes There Are Denounced by the French Press.

A "BUSINESS SPY SYSTEM"

San Francisco Fair May Suffer from Alleged Vexatious Interference with Importations.

PARIS, July 2.—The opinion prevailed here today that United States Treasury agents would in future be excluded from France in consequence of the exposures of their methods in the course of an appeal by Henry Monroe, a banker, against a jail sentence and a fine for refusing to disclose the amounts paid in France by Miss Dolan of Brookline, Mass., for dresses seized by American customs officials on their arrival in Boston.

The French Foreign Office some time ago made representations to the State Department at Washington in regard to the irregularity of the United States in maintaining secret agents in France who were not recognized by the American Embassy or Consulate-General.

Much comment, some of it in angry terms, appears in the press today about what is called the "business spy system of the United States."

Arthur David-Mennet, President of the Chamber of Commerce of Paris, today refused to request the Minister of Commerce to ask the Chamber of Deputies to withdraw its opposition to an appropriation for the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. He says he will do nothing until the United States ceases its vexatious and unreasonable interference with the importations of French goods.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—While no protest had been received today at the State Department against the operations of American customs agents in France in connection with the Monroe case, it is generally understood that the French Government holds the same objection to the secret work of these officials as it did to the efforts of American inspectors to look into the books of French exporters and manufacturers.

Vigorous protests by the French Ambassador last year in connection with the Limoges pottery exports led to a considerable curtailment of the activities of the inspectors. The United States Government, however, has persistently refused to abandon its asserted right to make inquiries at the place of origin of manufactured goods necessary to prevent undervaluations. Moreover, it is said that any attempt on the part of the French Government to prevent what the Treasury Department regards as legitimate inquiries would probably result in the refusal of the collectors of customs in American ports to admit to entry the goods of the French merchants who obstruct the inquiry.

SAYS WE GO TOO FAR.

Bitter Article in a Paris Paper About American Methods.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Friday, July 3.—In regard to the American customs case The Eclair says this morning editorially:

"The Americans are past masters in the art of annoying. The French Chamber of Commerce in New York says in one of its reports that the Draconian regulations attached to the tariff itself form a real provocation to all nations exporting products to the United States. The American customs administration has an organized system of police, the proceedings of which surpass imagination.

"Really, the American Government goes a little too far! At this moment President Wilson's policy in Mexico is causing the loss of hundreds of millions of francs to France. The United States seems bent on alienating all European sympathy.

PARIS, July 2.—A favorable report on the appropriation bill for the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco was made today by the Appropriations Committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

ENGLISH BUILDING LOCKOUT.

Employers Decide on It to Force Settlement of London Dispute.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—Definite steps have been taken to declare a lockout of building employes throughout the whole of this country in order to force a settlement of the London dispute, which has now lasted twenty-two weeks. The following official statement was issued today:

"The National Federation of Building Trade Employers met in London today and completed all preliminary arrangements for a national lockout. Voting papers will be issued forthwith."

Five of the men's unions have already approached the employers' association with a view to sectional settlements.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, July 2.—M. Pichon and M. Hubert, the labor members of the Governmental commission appointed to investigate the recent fatal subsidences in the streets of Paris, resigned today, declaring that the inquiry was merely intended to be a "whitewashing" one.

ROME, July 2.—The Right Rev. Nicholas C. Matz, Bishop of Denver, Colo., was received in private audience today by the Pope, to whom also a party of forty American pilgrims was afterward presented by the Vice-Rector of the American College in Rome.

STOCKHOLM, July 2.—The Swedish Parliament received a monster petition today, signed by 350,000 women, in favor of women's enfranchisement. A bill having that object is now in the Diet and has the support of the entire Liberal Party, but it is expected that the First Chamber will reject it.

LORDS FEAR WAR IN IRELAND IS NEAR

Will Support Amending Bill to the Home Rule Bill to Avert a Calamity.

'HORRIBLE,' BUT NECESSARY

Lord Londonderry's Expression—Duke of Abercorn Says It Is the Only Loophole He Can See.

LONDON, July 2.—The debate in the House of Lords today on the bill to amend the Irish Home Rule bill was characterized by general recognition on the part of the Unionist peers of the fact that some means of settlement must be found and that the amending bill offers the only chance for accomplishing this object.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Unionist leader, had already announced that it was necessary to find a way to prevent the calamity which threatened, and that, therefore, the Unionists would give the amending bill a second reading and introduce amendments during the committee stage.

The Duke of Abercorn, speaking today as an Ulster volunteer, said that he looked upon the bill as the only loophole he could see for the avoidance of a most awful calamity.

The Marquis of Londonderry, Chairman of the Ulster Unionist Council, said that the bill was a "horrible one," but that he would support it in order to avoid civil war.

The Marquis of Salisbury announced that he would support the amending bill for the same reason, much as he disliked it. He expressed the hope that Lord Willoughby de Broke could be induced, in the interests of a settlement, to drop his amendment for the rejection of the bill.

The Earl of Halsbury, once the most irreconcilable of the "die hards," said he hoped so, too, for nothing could be more urgent than the necessity of making some sacrifices in order to avert civil war.

NATIONALISTS GET ARMS.

800 Cases Landed at Dublin—Chicago Has Sent Only $1,000.

DUBLIN, July 2.—In the absence of the police the Irish Nationalist Volunteers succeeded tonight in landing here 800 cases of rifles and 400 cases of ammunition.

The arms and ammunition were taken from a vessel which had been hovering about the coast off Dublin for two days.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Irishmen of this city are not showing any great enthusiasm over the appeal of John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, for funds with which to arm the Irish Nationalist Volunteers. Up to date only $1,000 has been contributed in this city and forwarded to Mr. Redmond.

According to John A. McGarry, ex-President of the Irish Fellowship Club, who is in charge of a local committee to raise funds, and who forwarded the $1,000 check to Mr. Redmond, it is not likely that any additional funds will be forthcoming from Chicago until the convention of Irishmen from all over the United States has been held in New York next Sunday. At this convention Mr. Redmond's proposals will be discussed, a national committee will be appointed to work with the provisional committee in Dublin, and a programme will be formulated for raising funds. Chicago Irishmen seem suspicious of the motives underlying Mr. Redmond's desire to equip.

MILITANT AN HEIRESS.

Woman Who Fights Like a Wild Cat in Court Inherited a Fortune.

CARNARVON, July 2.—A scene of great violence was created today by two militant suffragettes, Georgina Lloyd and Phyllis North, when they were brought up for trial at the Carnarvon Sessions on charges connected with a window-smashing campaign on June 2 at Criccieth in the constituency of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George.

The prisoners fought like wildcats, and it took five wardens to keep them in the prisoners' inclosure.

A detective from Scotland Yard told the court that Miss North was a member of the "arson squad" which set fire to the pavilion in the Botanical Gardens at Kew several months ago, and that a short time since she had inherited a fortune of $450,000.

Each of the women was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

SUING BERNHARDT'S HOST.

Tradesmen Bring Action as Sequel to Lavish Entertainment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—The story of John Wesley de Kay's lavish entertainment of Sarah Bernhardt at his Curson Street house amused the Appeal Court today.

Mr. De Kay was appealing against a judgment for $10,000 odd against him in favor of a London jeweler and a firm of art dealers. According to the jeweler, Oscar Callow, Mme. Bernhardt had accepted Mr. De Kay's play, "Judas," for production in America. Naturally delighted, Mr. De Kay wished to entertain the French tragedienne, who was then appearing at the London Coliseum.

Mr. De Kay's Curson Street house being somewhat large and bare, Mr. De Kay asked Mr. Callow to loan him some fine French furniture and ornamental articles to make the place fit for the reception of such a famous actress. Mr. De Kay, it was said, liked to be regarded as a man of "literary and artistic pursuits."

The jeweler said he agreed to loan the elaborate furnishings in question, and did so. After Mme. Bernhardt had been lavishly entertained by Mr. De Kay the latter took a great fancy to the loaned articles, and discussed the purchase of certain pieces. According to the jeweler's counsel, Mr. De Kay, airily snapping his fingers, exclaimed: "I will buy the lot."

It was regarding the price for these articles that the dispute arose. Mr. De Kay's counsel told the court that his client's version of the story was something totally different.

WANTS HONORS FOR WOMEN

Freedom League Presents a List for King George's Consideration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—The Women's Freedom League has written to the King and Premier Asquith, suggesting the names of a number of distinguished women for royal honors.

In the letter to his Majesty it is noted with "serious concern" that year after year the list of birthday and New Year honors contains no mention whatsoever of the many noble and public-spirited women who render invaluable imperial and social service throughout the dominions.

In the letter to the Premier the writer speaks of the "callous disregard of the great and invaluable services of women" displayed in the lists of names submitted for honors, and expresses the hope that in future such services will meet satisfactory recognition.

The list submitted by the Women's Freedom League includes the names of Lady Lugard, Lady Henry Somerset, Mrs. Annie Besant, Miss Haldane, Mrs. Bramwell Booth, Lady Frances Balfour, Mrs. Flora Annie Steel, Olive Schreiner, Mrs. Alice Meynell, Lady Gregory, Ellen Terry, Lena Ashwell, Clara Butt, Dr. Ethel Smyth, Mrs. Hertha Ayrton, Lady Huggins, Violet Markham, Miss Edith Durham, and Lady Aberconway.

ONE TREASURE FOR ENGLAND

Titian's Portrait of Caterina Cornaro Bought by Herbert Cook.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—Titian's "Portrait of a Lady," traditionally known as "La Schiavona," and long reputed to be a portrait of Caterina Cornaro, Queen of Cyprus, has been purchased by the English collector, Herbert Cook, who intends to add it to the collection of his father, Sir Frederick Cook, Bart., at Richmond.

The picture formerly belonged to Signor Crespi of Milan. It was bought in 1911 by the Paris dealer, Wildenstein. Hopes were entertained at one time of selling it to an American collector, and it is understood that it was actually taken to New York with that object.

The price paid by Mr. Cook has not been disclosed.

AIRBOAT AMERICA IN SWIFT FLIGHT

Distances Curtiss School Craft, Although Carrying a Load of 2,000 Pounds.

HYDROPLANES WORK WELL

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONDSPORT, July 2.—Rodman Wanamaker's transatlantic flier, the America, made its most successful trial flight this afternoon, according to Glenn H. Curtiss, the builder, when it climbed out of the water and flew, carrying a load of approximately 2,000 pounds. This is at least 100 pounds more than the load which the airboat will have to carry when it makes its start from Newfoundland on its flight for the Azores, the first and most distant stage in the attempted crossing of the Atlantic.

While the flight was not timed, Mr. Curtiss believes that the America made a greater speed than sixty miles an hour for a distance of about two miles.

"The speed showing the America made was not the important thing," said Mr. Curtiss. "Our previous trials had shown us that it could do great work in the air, and we were not surprised at its exhibition today. Our trouble so far has been in bringing the America to the surface of the water so that it could climb out into the air. Today we made by far the greatest advance in overcoming that trouble.

"The hydroplaning boards on the sides were extended by several square feet of surface today and the angle slightly altered. This worked admirably in helping the America out of water, and the showing today convinces us that we have solved the problem we have been working on since the craft was launched.

"We used the Olmsted propellors today and they worked very well. Whether they will be adopted for the transatlantic flight I cannot say. The question of propellors has not given us any trouble, and we are not so much interested in them as in the hydroplane boards."

Mr. Curtiss and George Hallett, who piloted the America today, carried five passengers with them. The flight was made over the entire two miles within four or five feet of the water.

Mr. Curtiss says he will begin next week to make flights to determine whether it is possible to fly with one of the twin engines dead. The substitution of two 100-horsepower engines for a single 200-horsepower engine, when the original plan was radically changed, was one of the most important experiments.

The ability to fly with one engine would be of greatest value, as it would enable George Hallett, the assistant pilot, to climb through the network of wires over the cabin of the America and do repair work on the dead engine while the America continued to fly.

The tests that have been made so far do not encourage the builder to believe that the America can do as much with one engine as was expected. Mr. Curtiss, however, believes the America can be steered successfully and kept in the air with one engine dead while it carries only a fraction of its load. In other words, it is the opinion of Mr. Curtiss that the America can fly on one engine on the last half or the last third of its journey to the Azores, when its load is lightened by the consumption of gasoline. As smaller quantities of gasoline are required for the flights from the Azores to Vigo, Spain, and from Vigo to Plymouth, the America, if Mr. Curtiss is right, could fly on a single engine over the greater part of those two stages.

PORTE HERE, TELLS OF PLANS.

No Row with Curtiss—May Fly in Races Tomorrow.

Lieut. John Cyril Porte, the air pilot for the attempted transatlantic voyage of the America, arrived in this city yesterday morning, and said that he probably would remain here until Sunday night, when he would return to Hammondsport and make further trials with the craft. Lieut. Porte said he would be ready to sail for Newfoundland from here on July 11 if he was satisfied with the condition of the America at that time. Meanwhile he will fly in the Fourth of July races around Manhattan if a machine can be provided for him, it was announced at the Aero Club of America last night.

Lieut. Porte denied the statement that he had given only brief notice to Glenn H. Curtiss of his departure from Hammondsport on Tuesday. He said his plans had been known to Mr. Curtiss for several days.

"I have had a number of telephone calls from persons asking me if I had had a misunderstanding with Mr. Curtiss," he continued. "Nothing of the kind has happened. We have worked together in perfect harmony. We have naturally had different opinions about certain minor details in our experiments with the America, but nothing of any consequence.

"The performance of the America during the past week has been highly encouraging. The delays have been trying, but on the whole the progress made by Mr. Curtiss has been very rapid, and the America is now nearly as perfect as it can be made. The responsibility for accepting the airboat rests on me, and Mr. Curtiss, as the builder, has complied without hesitation when I asked for changes."

Lieut. Porte said that the postponement of his trip to Newfoundland did not mean that the start of the transatlantic flight, which is now scheduled to take place shortly after July 20, would also be postponed.

A statement was given out at the rooms of the Aero Club of America yesterday by Henry Woodhouse of the Marine Flying Committee, saying that the development of the America was not giving any anxiety to the Aero Club. It continues:

"There was little expectation at first that such a machine could be built in time to make the Transatlantic flight in the good season this year. Recognizing that fact, Rodman Wanamaker was willing to have three machines constructed in succession, each to have the improvements suggested by experiments with the preceding.

"It was a pleasant surprise to everybody to find that the first machine was so efficient that it seems possible to use it for the flight without necessitating radical changes in construction.

"If, therefore, it should become necessary to give up the America and construct a new machine, there would be no reflection on the proposition. There is, however, no reason to believe that the America will not succeed."

ASYLUM FOR FIRST BOYLAN LAW CASE

Man Take nfrom Gutter, Crazy with Drugs, Sent to Central Islip for Treatment.

MANY ILLICIT DEALERS HELD

Another Bundle of Blackwell's Island Letters Found—Volunteers Aid Police.

The first commitment on a charge of habitually using drugs, under the new Boylan Anti-Drug law, was made yesterday by Magistrate Herbert in the Tombs Police Court, when he sent Michael Flaherty to the Central Islip Insane Asylum.

The second day of the law's operation also witnessed a number of arrests. According to detectives, the accelerated crusade is attracting wide attention, and much valuable information regarding illicit drug traffic is coming from volunteer informants.

The man committed yesterday was found a week ago in the gutter at Church and Dey Streets, kicking his feet against the curb and screaming. When arraigned next day, charged with drunkenness, he begged the Magistrate for a narcotic. He was remanded to the Tombs for investigation. Probation Officer Weeks said yesterday that Flaherty was of excellent family, and had formerly been a successful lawyer and writer for magazines. His parents lived in North Adams, Mass., and were wealthy, and the prisoner was a graduate of Holy Cross College. He said he became addicted to morphine three years ago, when he broke his arm, and a surgeon gave the drug to deaden the pain. The drug ruined his law practice in Boston. He will receive medical treatment at Central Islip.

More letters from Blackwell's Island prisoners to outsiders, asking that drugs be smuggled to them, were intercepted yesterday. They were found in a bundle near the bridge, and it is supposed they were to be given to a driver to mail in New York. Several of the letters contained suggestions of novel methods for smuggling drugs to the island.

"This is no longer the Grand Hotel de Blackwell since Katy Davis has been running things here, so please send the stuff in a bar of soap," one of the letters said.

John Finn the driver employed in the Department of Charities, who was arrested on Wednesday charged with having twenty letters from prisoners to friends asking for drugs, waived examination before Magistrate Campbell yesterday and was held in $500 bail for trial.

Helen Van Allen, 24 years old, was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Levy in the Harlem Police Court charged with having an opium layout in her possession. She was arrested at the home of Wing Gee, a Chinaman, 207 East 105th Street, on Wednesday night. Detectives Conway and Caster raided Gee's laundry at 2,035 Second Avenue earlier in the evening and, they said, found opium hidden in the place. They then decided to visit his home. Wing Gee was also charged with having policy slips. He was held in $1,000 bail.

Willie Sing, a Chinaman, who was arrested at the home of "Cola" Sam, 201 East 105th Street, late Wednesday night, was also held in $1,000 bail. "Cola" Sam will be examined today on the charge of having policy slips, and on Monday on the Boylan law charge of having habit-forming drugs.

Detectives Erb and Miller were instructed by an informer how to get into a "dope" house at 176 Third Avenue about midnight on Wednesday and, after giving the necessary signals, a key was lowered to them on a string from a window above. They arrested Joseph Madden, and say they found 1,000 morphine tablets, some heroin, and a hypodermic needle in his rooms. He was held for examination.

HARVARD OARSMEN WIN---TENNIS

Meikleham So Terms Columbia at Banquet to Winning Oarsmen.

More than 200 graduates gathered at the Columbia University Club last night at a banquet to celebrate the recent victory of their crew at Poughkeepsie last Friday. Five members of the winning crew and Coach Jim Rice were the guests of honor. The banquet was attended by many old Columbia oarsmen.

William A. Meikleham, who captained the Columbia crew of 1885 and has been referee at the Yale-Harvard regattas for eighteen years, was one of the speakers, and he said that he considered this year's Columbia crew the best college eight-oared crew in the last thirty-one years. He said his opinion was supported by oarsmen from many other universities who saw the race.

C. F. McCarthy, stroke of this year's crew, gave some interesting facts on how the race was won. He said he was almost exhausted at the half-way mark and Capt. Irving W. Hadsell noticed that he was slacking up. The latter cried out: "Mac, we've got to make it." It was that spirit on the part of the Captain and his fellow-members of the crew, McCarthy thinks, which made possible Columbia's first victory in nineteen years.

Jim Rice does not waste words as a rule, but he conceded a point or two when called upon to speak, and said something about the victory. He gave all the credit to the crew.

Rice's part of the victory was not forgotten by any of the speakers except himself, however. In fact, the dinner became almost as much a testimonial to the veteran coach as a mere impersonal celebration.

Some of the other speakers were Morton G. Bogue, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, and a former coxswain; Francis S. (Teddy) Bangs, one of the principal alumni backers of the Columbia rowing; E. J. Williams, who rowed No. 3, and E. K. Richards, who stroked the second crew. The other members of the crew present were Steddiford Pitt, No. 5; Norman Bratton, No. 6, and H. Naumer, bow.

Among those at the guest table was Dr. Walter Peet, who coached the Columbia crew of 1895, the last crew before the present one to win at Poughkeepsie. Charles Halsted Mapes, '85, an old oarsman, acted as toastmaster.

The dinner last night was an informal affair, and the facilities at the club were not sufficient to accommodate a larger number than attended. It is planned to have a formal celebration of the victory at a banquet at some hotel in the Fall, at which arrangements can be made to accommodate 500 or 600.

The entire crew could not attend last night, as many of them have left the city.

A suggestion that congratulations be sent to the Harvard crew upon their victory at Henley was promptly adopted. The following cable was dispatched:

Mr. Herrick, Harvard Crew, Henley, England:

The Columbia University Club, assembled at dinner to our crew, congratulate Harvard on great victory today and wish final success. COLUMBIA.

"Sparrow" Robertson to Coach.

William H. (Sparrow) Robertson may be selected to coach the Irish-American A. C. track and field team, to succeed Lawson Robertson, who has been chosen to train the athletes of Hungary for the next six years. Five years ago, when Ernie Tjertberg resigned, Robertson prepared the Winged Fist athletes for two months, and turned out a successful squad. Previous to that "Sparrow" trained at Cornell for two years. Up to the time he took charge of the Cornellians they had not scored a point in twenty years in the intercollegiate championships, but in his first year Robertson had a team that tied with Princeton for third place, and in the succeeding title games was just beaten by the Tigers for the same position. Other business forced Robertson to retire from his training berth.

Lawson Robertson is expected to tender his resignation to the Irish club this week. It will be accepted. It was said yesterday that the once great sprinter is to receive $5,000 per year from Hungary. Robby's wife and child will accompany him across the Atlantic.

Johnny McHugh Goes Abroad.

John McHugh, Athletic Supervisor of Public Schools, accompanied by Bill McLoughlin, an A. A. U. official, sailed for Europe yesterday for a three months' vacation. McHugh, while abroad, may assist one or two European countries in the formation of a school athletic league, much on the plan of the P. S. A. L. here. McLoughlin has received an offer to train the athletes of Denmark for the Olympic Games in Berlin, and will consult with the Danish authorities regarding the proposition.

Mace to Train Davis Cup Tennis Men

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 2.—Walter Mace, who has been trainer of Yale football and baseball teams for eight years, was today engaged to look after the physical condition of the members of the American tennis team in the Davis Cup matches. Mace will leave here on Monday and will return when the Yale football squad reports Sept. 8. Mace came to Yale with John Mack, who has been track coach and football trainer for ten years, acting as Mack's lieutenant during the football season and taking complete charge of the baseball players during the Spring.

McLoughlin and Bundy Coming Here

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—Maurice F. McLoughlin, national tennis champion, has gone to Los Angeles, where he will spend a week in practice with Thomas C. Bundy, with whom he holds the United States doubles championship. He then will go east for the tennis season and the Davis Cup matches. Bundy will accompany McLoughlin to New York, where they will participate in the Seabright tournament. Later they will compete in the Longwood singles and the Southampton invitation tournament.

Miss Ryan Defeated at Tennis.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 2.—Mrs. Larcombe today defeated Miss E. Ryan of California in the final round of the all comers ladies' lawn tennis singles championship by two straight sets, 6—3, 6—2. Mrs. Larcombe, who was champion in 1912, will have to play the holder, Mrs. Lambert Chambers, for the title.

Oulmet's Brother Wins a Title.

BOSTON, July 2.—Raymond Ouimet, 17 years old, brother of Francis Ouimet, the open golf champion, today won the first Massachusetts junior golf championship. The younger Ouimet defeated his opponent in the final round, five up and four to play. He competed as a student of Brookline High School.

AMERICAN OARSMEN WIN HENLEY RACES

Harvard Beats Leander and Boston Clubmen Easily Defeat London Crew.

HARVARD NOW FAVORITE

Grand Challenge Cup Likely to be Brought to America for a Year—Crimson Rows Mayence Next.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—A few minutes before the victorious England polo team sat down with members of the Pilgrims Club at luncheon today and received the congratulations of Lord Roberts on rewinning the cup from America, British crack oarsmen were being swept out of the chief events of the Henley Regatta by American, Canadian, and German crews.

For the first time in the history of the Henley Royal Regatta not a single English crew reached the semi-final round for the Grand Challenge Cup, the most coveted prize in the world for eight-oared crews. All four English eights were defeated today, and the cup will be rowed for by two American, one Canadian, and one German crews. Rowing experts declare this the greatest setback the English oarsmen have ever received at Henley. It was a great day for the Americans. The Union Rowing Club of Boston crew simply romped home in the heat against the London Rowing Club. Then followed the race of the day between Harvard second crew and Leander. After a tight struggle the British crew went ahead, but suddenly it faltered, and Harvard fought forward inch by inch. At the half-way post the Americans were level, and at the three-quarters had a lead, but Leander still rowed desperately. The crowd was roaring with excitement as Leander came almost level. "Leander, Leander, Leander," cried the British. "Harvard, Harvard, Harvard," rang out the American reply. It was a scene almost of frenzy, but the Leander crew was clean rowed out and Harvard had enough energy left to cheer the beaten crew and follow it with their war cry—entertainment that got them a great cheer from the crowd.

Harvard came back with applause, and as the crew landed a pretty American girl threw her arms about the neck of one of the winners. Harvard, therefore, gained a double triumph, for the Union Boat Club crew is composed of Harvard graduates, who rowed for their university.

Winnipeg's victory over the Thames Rowing Club was fully expected, as Thames practically was the scratch crew, entered to maintain the club's tradition of competing for the Grand Challenge every year. The last hope of England went with the defeat of Jesus College by the Mayence Rowing Club of Germany. The race produced a magnificent struggle, and the manner wherein the Germans fought led the rowing men to prophesy the final will be contested between them and Harvard.

Harvard's victory not only was popular with Americans present, but also with many English rowing men.

HARVARD NOW FAVORITE.

Crimson Will Row Winnipeg and Boston Takes On Germans Today.

By The Associated Press.

HENLEY-ON-THE-THAMES, England, July 2.—The Grand Challenge Cup, "the blue ribbon" of English rowing, is going abroad this year, for the fifth time in nine years. The probabilities are that America will be its resting place for the ensuing year, after which it must be returned to the Stewards of the Henley Regatta, to be competed for again.

In the first series of heats for the Grand Challenge Cup in the Royal Regatta today the English crews were eliminated. The Harvard second eight disposed of Leander, the Union Boat Club of Boston defeated the London Rowing Club, Winnipeg had an easy victory over the Thames Rowing Club, and the German crew of Mayence won from Jesus College, Cambridge, in the fastest time of the day and hard pushed at the end.

The four crews will compete tomorrow in the second series; and the winners will row the finals on Saturday. Harvard will row Winnipeg shortly after 10 o'clock, and the Boston and Mayence eights will measure blades two hours later.

From the form shown today the Harvard men are favorites, although, with the exception of Mayence, the others were not extended. The Union crew of Boston merely paddled over the course. It started with a 39 stroke, and eased off to 32. It did not find it necessary to again extend itself, but it hit up a faster stroke just before it crossed the line.

Harvard had a harder race, but the manner in which the men handled themselves showed they had a lot in reserve at the finish.

E. D. Horsfall of the Leanders, the defeated crew, said: "It might have been a better race, but the result could not have been different. We intend to make ready for next year. While the American style gives a quick stroke, this had nothing to do with the result."

Winnipeg is better than Leander, and the Harvard eight will have to extend themselves tomorrow. The Boston crew also have a harder race ahead against the Germans, but Coxswain Abeles said: "Having succeeded today, we are more confident of tomorrow's result."

Robert F. Herrick, graduate director of rowing at Harvard, would not say anything beyond venturing a sort of prediction. "It will be great," he said, "to see two American eights scratching up the Thames on Saturday."

The London papers give unstinted praise to the American successes, employing such headlines as "An American Henley," "Stars and Stripes Day."

"The Harvard-Leander race," says The Pall Mall Gazette, "stands out as one of the best and most thrilling performances ever witnessed on the river. It is the best showing that an American eight has yet made at Henley."

The Grand Challenge Cup was won in 1906, 1907, and 1909 by a Belgian crew. In 1912 it was carried to New South Wales by an eight representing the Sydney Rowing Club.

James B. Ayer, Union Boat Club, Boston, the only representative of the United States left in the contest for the diamonds after the first round, was beaten by the Italian, Giuseppe Sinigaglia. The Italian's tactics in his race with Ayer, although it made no difference as far as the result was concerned, were severely criticised. He took his opponent's station and gave Ayer his wash, which is considered unsportsmanlike at Henley, and there were cries of "Play the game."

Dibble will meet Sinigaglia in the semi-finals and C. M. Stuart, Trinity Hall, Cambridge, will row against E. G. Williams, Vikings Club.

PIPING ROCK CLUB GOLF.

James R. Hyde of South Shore Qualifies Best Win, 78.

In a field that had forty starters James R. Hyde of South Shore Field Club won the low score prize in the qualifying round of the Piping Rock Club's special golf tournament yesterday. J. N. Stearns, 3d, who recently won the championship of the Nassau Country Club, was three strokes higher, and McKim Hollins, who won the national links tournament last Fall, but has not been doing much competition play this season, was still further away with a card ten strokes higher.

Hyde seemed likely to get a 76 when his iron tee shot on the 143-yard seventeenth hole landed within six feet of the pin. But the dropping of the balls from the high pitches of the preceding players had raised lumps that made it hard to make a long putt. Stearns, who had played just ahead of the South Shore golfer, managed to run down his putt for a two.

Going to the 494-yard home hole Hyde would have lost all chance of a four if the hole had not been moved down to the foot of the hill during the shifting of the road about thirty feet back from the hill and the new trapping of the hill.

He sliced his drive to the rough, but got out well to the green for two putts. The scores:

Dr. Rosenbaum Wins Two Hard Matches—New England Intercollegiate Champion Loses.

Play in the Kings County lawn tennis championship tournament yesterday on the courts of the Kings County Lawn Tennis Club at Brooklyn was advanced to the sixth round in the men's singles and third round in the doubles, and with a continuation of the fine weather the tournament will be brought to a close with tomorrow's matches.

Dr. William Rosenbaum scored a double victory and came through to the fifth round in fine style. His first opponent was T. Ackerland, who proved a difficult opponent to beat in the first set, but failed to tally a point in the second. C. G. Burrows gave Dr. Rosenbaum a good fight in the second match, but the winner was at his best when the points counted most and won in straight sets.

The defeat of C. L. Johnston, Jr., the New England intercollegiate champion, was hardly expected, especially in view of the fact that he won a good match from C. C. Chambers. Johnston won the first set of the match with Chambers on Wednesday, when rain stopped the play. When the contest was resumed Chambers equalized in the second set, but Johnston came back strong in the third and won cleverly. He met his Waterloo with Frederick G. Anderson, the former Long Island champion, whose high placement shots and steadiness proved too much for the Amherst champion. Anderson won the first set with little apparent effort, but when Johnston changed his tactics in the second set a good struggle followed. The match was carried to deuce before Anderson qualified for the fifth round.

Before his defeat at the hands of Dr. Rosenbaum in the fourth round C. G. Burrows disposed of R. H. Boggs in two hard-fought sets, while J. W. Anderson won from H. R. Burroughs in an interesting contest. The summary:

Men's Singles, Kings County Championship: Third Round.—C. G. Burrows defeated R. H. Boggs, 6—4, 10—8; Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated T. Ackerland, 6—4, 6—0; C. J. Johnston, Jr. defeated C. C. Chambers, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

Fourth Round.—Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated C. G. Burrows, 6—3, 6—3; Frederick G. Anderson defeated C. J. Johnston, Jr., 6—3, 7—5; J. W. Anderson defeated H. R. Burroughs, 6—2, 6—4.

Fifth Round.—Frederick C. Boggs vs. Benjamin M. Phillips, 6—6, unfinished.

Men's Doubles: First Round.—E. Henderson and F. Mesereau defeated Mr. Pounds and Mr. Jones, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1; George S. Groesbeck and Allan Behr defeated Mr. Gutwilly and partner by default.

Second Round.—George S. Groesbeck and Allan Behr defeated E. H. Henderson and F. Mesereau, 7—5, 6—3; Mr. Lake and Mr. Ross defeated K. B. Fisher and L. W. Fisher, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

FORMER CHAMPIONS WIN.

Larned and Clothier Show Good Form in Nassau Tennis Tourney.

Many candidates for positions on the American Davis Cup team competed in the Nassau County Club invitation lawn tennis tournament yesterday on the club courts at Glen Cove, L. I., and an interesting series of matches resulted. It was the first appearance of several of the ranking players in the Metropolitan district this year, and their work was closely watched by the members of the International Cup Committee.

William A. Larned and William L. Clothier, former national champions, showed excellent form. Larned was drawn against W. A. W. Stewart and scored an easy two-set victory, his opponent securing but two games in the match. While the test was not a severe one for Larned, the result was satisfactory. Clothier won his first round through a default of C. F. Watson, Jr., and faced Leonard Beekman, the Columbia interscholastic champion, in the second. The Philadelphian showed much of the form that won for him the national title, and outclassed Beekman in two sets. Clothier's long reach aided him in scoring many points, and he gives evidence of becoming an important factor in the cup defense.

The defeat of Dean Mathey, the former Princeton Captain, was a big surprise, as he has been doing excellent court work this Summer. On Tuesday he won a hard five-set match from W. A. Larned in the final round of the Rockaway Hunting Club tournament. He put up a strong defense against Frederick C. Inman, but weakened under the aggressive attack of his opponent. The first set was carried to deuce before Inman won, but in the second set Mathey fell away and Inman scored an easy victory.

Charles M. Bull, Jr., Crescent Athletic Club, maintained his winning form by defeating E. P. Larned 6—1, 6—1, and Walter Merrill Hall found little opposition in his match with F. B. Doubleday. The only other important match was Lyle E. Mahan, the old Columbia champion, and Walter L. Pate, in which the former won in straight sets. The summary:

Men's Singles, Nassau Country Club Invitation.—First Round—William L. Clothier defeated C. F. Watson, Jr., by default; Leonard Beekman defeated Lindley Murray by default; Frederick C. Inman defeated Karl H. Behr by default; Dean Mathey defeated Irving C. Wright by default.

Second Round—Walter Merrill Hall defeated F. B. Doubleday, 6—4, 6—1; Charles M. Bull, Jr., defeated E. P. Larned, 6—2, 6—3; William L. Clothier defeated Leonard Beekman, 6—0, 6—3; Frederick C. Inman defeated Dean Mathey, 9—5, 6—2; Theodore R. Pell defeated Fennimore Cady by default; Lyle E. Mahan defeated Walter L. Pate, 6—1, 9—7; William A. Larned defeated W. A. W. Stewart, 6—1, 6—1.

The Equitable Building a new era in efficiency

The Equitable Building is more than a building—it is a new era in efficiency.

Under one roof it combines every improvement in construction and every innovation in service, and it supplements these important considerations with a centrality and accessibility of location unmatched by any other Downtown business structure.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

News and Art Shown in Pictures

The Picture Section of next Sunday's Times will present a happy combination of news and art pictures, printed, as many experts believe, better than any other newspaper section in the world.

Among the pictures will be a really notable photograph of the finish of the great 'Varsity race over the Hudson course, with the winning Columbia crew crossing the finish line, made exclusively for the Picture Section of The Times; the three cup defenders side by side for the first time; American delegates to the Salvation Army Congress marching along the Thames Embankment in London; New York police in riot drill at Brighton Beach; Nathan Straus driving his cup-winning gray gelding Denver on the Speedway, and a full page of beautiful children who one day will be among the buds and beaus of New York City.

There will be also several artistic and beautiful prize-winning photographs submitted in a nation-wide amateur contest, and a page of favorite actresses who are to star in attractions which will open the new season.

GIANTS PLAY POORLY AND LOSE--YANKEES WIN--TURF

'RUBE' A SOFT MARK FOR DODGER BATSMEN

All Sorts of Hits Made Off Marquard and Giants Lose to Brooklyn, 7 to 2.

Eddie Pfeffer, a bit of pitching furniture from Grand Rapids, took it all upon himself to beat the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday. After Eddie had accomplished his purpose almost single-handed, the other Brooklyn players woke up and heaped the defeat on thickly. The score was 7 to 2. With Pfeffer, in the conspiracy against the Giants, was Red Smith, who always happened to be sunning himself on the bases every time Pfeffer came up to make a hit.

McGraw's team had every appearance of being about to be shut out until the eighth inning, when Mike Donlin committed a base hit. Mike's principal occupation hereabouts lately has been talking, but the New York Club felt that in talking only Mike wasn't earning his salary, so he was sent to work.

All the rallying that was noticed about the Giants yesterday was concentrated in Donlin. This hasn't any particular bearing on the game, because by this time the Giants were roundly beaten anyway. Mike starts more rallies when they don't do a bit of good than any pinch-hitter in the league. But it's just as Mike says: "I can't be expected to win games all alone." When Mike made his hit the Giants only needed six runs to tie the score. His hit pushed Sweet Piez, who was traveling on the bases for Meyers, around to third, after which he scored on Bob Bescher's sacrifice fly.

Donlin only got as far as first base, where he spent the rest of the time in the game talking over the Mexican situation with Jake Daubert. Mike knows more about Mexican affairs than any pinch-hitter on the Giants.

Outside of the dozen hits which the Dodgers got, "Rube" Marquard was in pretty fair shape. Red Smith was very fond of "Rube's" pitching, and said so with a home run and two doubles. The Giants' fielding was a perfect match for "Rube's" pitching. They made more errors than their worst enemy will admit. There were two right spots, however, in the afternoon's offering. Dave Robertson made a glorious one-hand catch of O'Mara's truant drive in the fifth inning and in the ninth, Bescher picked Cutshaw's drive out of the sky with one hand. It makes it appear a lot more difficult to take them with one hand, as catching them with two has become quite common in the game.

Red Smith doubled in the second, went to third on McCarty's out and scored on Pfeffer's single. The same thing happened in nearly the same way in the seventh inning. Red doubled and counted on the big pitcher's bang to right. The Dodgers had a picnic with Marquard in the eighth. Daubert beat out an infield hit and Dalton got a life on Meyers's fumble. Wheat fanned and Cutshaw spanked a roller to centre, scoring Daubert. Silent John Hummel, swatting for Stengel, hoisted a sacrifice fly to deep centre, scoring Dalton. Red Smith then obliged with a home run into the starboard side of the steerage deck and pushed a run home ahead of him.

In the Giants' eighth Meyers singled and Piez ran for him. Donlin, as everybody now knows, then made a hit which pushed Piez into place whereby he could score on a sacrifice fly.

The other Giant run happened in the ninth. Fletcher beat out a hit and went to second on O'Mara's bad toss to first. He went to third on Merkle's infield tap and counted on Larry Doyle's sacrifice rocket. Brooklyn broke even on the series, each of the combatants winning two games. The score:

Cubs Strengthen Their Position.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Chicago strengthened its hold on second place today, defeating Cincinnati, 5 to 3, and making a clean sweep of the series. Saier's home run in the third with two men on the bases gave the locals a three-run lead, but the visitors landed on Pierce's delivery in the fifth and tied the count on three singles and a triple. Bresnahan walked, stole second, and scored on Leach's double in the local's half of the same inning. Saier added another run in the eighth by making his second home run. The score:

DUNN'S CLUB MUST STICK.

International League Won't Transfer Baltimore Nine to Richmond.

The baseball troubles of the International League were aired at a special meeting of the club owners and managers at the Hotel Imperial last night, and after a discussion which lasted several hours it was voted that there would be no change in the circuit this season. The discussion, however, is not finished, and the club owners will hold another meeting today.

Jack Dunn of Baltimore offered the motion that his Baltimore franchise be transferred to Richmond, Va. Dunn stated that he already had lost $20,000 in Baltimore this season, and that the offer of $62,000 by the Richmond promoters was very inviting.

A new angle of the trouble appeared yesterday, when the Jersey City Club made it known that if there were any change in the circuit Jersey City should receive the benefit of it. It is stated that the "Skeeters" are big losers on the season. At yesterday's meeting the Fogarty interests were looked after by "Big Bill" Devery, who is said to have a financial interest in the club. The Jersey City Club is willing to be transferred if there is a change to be made.

President Barrow stated last night that the International League circuit would remain intact for the remainder of the season. He said that all the club owners were in favor of sticking together. The Federal League has made inroads into the patronage of the International League in Baltimore and Buffalo, and the patronage in Jersey City has fallen off.

It is believed that when the league meets today that some action will be taken to aid the clubs which show a financial deficiency. However, if Baltimore insists on receiving aid, it is quite probable that Jersey City and Buffalo will also ask for protection until the strong competition in the baseball business has become normal again.

Those present at the meeting yesterday were President Edward G. Barrow, J. J. Stein, Buffalo; C. T. Chapin, Rochester; Jack Dunn, Baltimore; Thomas Fogarty, Jersey City; J. J. McCaffery, Toronto; C. H. Ebbets, Sr., representing Newark; Bill Donovan, Providence. Montreal was represented by proxy.

It is expected that the difficulties of the league will be satisfactorily adjusted at today's meeting.

RICHMOND, Va., July 2.—Local promoters tonight abandoned their efforts to bring the Baltimore International League Club to Richmond because the Virginia League demanded $15,700 for the transfer of the Richmond franchise to Lynchburg. The promoters offered $3,200.

Brooklyn Gets New Pitcher.

The Brooklyn Nationals have purchased Pitcher John Enzman from the Newark Club of the International League, and he will report to the Dodgers at Cincinnati on July 7. Enzman has been signed for 1914, 1915, and 1916. He has made a fine showing in the International League. The Newark Club, from which he was secured, is partly owned by President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club. Enzman is a Brooklyn boy and got his first experience in baseball with the amateur teams there.

SHAKE-UP PUTS LIFE INTO YANKEE NINE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.—This being one of those days when it isn't necessary to seek an alibi for the Yankees, the principal thing is telling how the glorious victory was achieved. The score, it might be said, was New York 6, Washington 1.

In the first place, it was pretty certain Frank Chance wasn't going to sit on the bench indefinitely and watch his hired men lose ball game after ball game without doing something about it. And the Peerless Leader of the downtrodden Yanks ran true to form.

When the Yanks lined up today the folks in the stands saw two new faces in the infield. Also when they referred to the score cards, without which they were assured they couldn't identify the players, and for which they had paid the small sum of only a nickel—half a dime—they found the score cards were away off, having been printed when the Yanks first came to town.

Frank Chance had been doing things to his batting order. He benched Truesdale, put his latest acquisition, Mullen, on first base, sent Boone in at second, displaced Cook with Holden in right, and had Roy Hartzell batting in second place instead of fourth and Daley in fourth place instead of sixth.

The effect of all this on the Yanks was marvelous to behold. They went after two Washington pitchers like champions, while Ray Caldwell held the Senatorial batters in the hollow of his big, oily glove.

With a siege of double-headers staring him in the face, Clark Griffith trotted out Bentley, a recruit from the sand lots in one of the Washington suburbs, to do battle with the Yanks, and the things which the Yanks did to Mr. Bentley were most painful from a Washington point of view. They hammered his left-handed delivery for a total of eleven hits, and when another recruit, Harper, faced them in the ninth inning, they made a run off him for good measure.

Mullen, who has been demonstrating to the patrons of the Western League how first base should be played, made his appearance in a big league uniform today and did a very neat job of first-basing for the Yanks. His fielding was fast and peppery and he drove out a clean single.

Working under a one-run handicap the Yanks evened things up in the third inning on a double by Nunemaker and two outfield flies. They took the lead in the fifth on successive singles by Holden, Nunemaker, and Boone, and stored the game safely away in the seventh when Nunemaker walked with one out and Boone, Caldwell, and Maisel followed with singles, three runs scoring.

The final run came in the ninth with Harper pitching for Washington. Holden walked to start the inning, went to second on an infield out, and scored on Boone's single.

Thus it will be seen that young Mr. Boone was very much in the limelight on his first day at second base. Having displaced Truesdale, he gave every appearance of a man in love with his job and with his trusty bat drove in three runs for the Yanks and scored one himself. At second he played as if he had been born in the immediate vicinity of the bag, worked well with Peckinpaugh, and handled seven chances cleanly, one of them being as the relay man in a double play.

Roger Peckinpaugh also came to life with a vengeance, covering practically the whole left side of the diamond, accepting ten chances without a slip-up, and fattening his batting average with two beautiful singles.

Washington's lone run came in the second. Smith singled to start the inning and was forced out at second by Shanks. The latter stole and came home on Morgan's single. The score:

Dauss Beats Naps at Last.

DETROIT, July 2.—Hitting the ball when hits meant runs today, Detroit shut out Cleveland in the opening game of the series 4 to 0. Each of the Tigers' runs was batted in with a safe hit. The batting of Crawford, who got a triple, a double and a single in four times up, was a feature. Dauss held the Naps safe at all times. It was his first victory over Cleveland since 1912. Athletics Lose Two Games to Boston.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—Both games of today's double-header were won by Boston from Philadelphia, the scores being 7 to 6 and 7 to 1. A ninth inning rally gave the visitors the first game. They pounded out four runs on a pass to Henriksen, Carrigan's sacrifice, singles by Engle and Scott and Speaker's home run. In the second contest Coumbe had a battle with Pennock until the eight inning, when Boston knocked the home twirler off the rubber and piled up four runs on four hits, a sacrifice fly, a stolen base, and a wild pitch. Bressler took Pennock's place and stopped the rally. Score:

RAIN HELPS BROOKFEDS.

Stops Game with Buffalo While They Lead, 1 to 0.

The Brookfeds luckily got a run just before a heavy rain put an end to yesterday's game with Buffalo in the sixth inning and earned thereby a 1 to 0 victory. The sky was overcast from the start of the game, but the rain held off just long enough to give Brooklyn a chance to win. Ten minutes after Shaw had crossed the plate with the Brookfeds' one run in the fourth, the rain was coming down hard, and Umpires McCormick and Cusack decided to call off the struggle. One thousand persons were present.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Tom Seaton, who dared all kinds of injunction suits by scampering around with a Philadelphia sweater, and Krapp, the Buffalo boxman. Krapp had the better of the contest, allowing three hits to Seaton's five, but the Brookfeds made better use of their hits.

That one run, which was naturally the big event of the struggle, was scored by Shaw after he had started the fourth inning for Brooklyn by doubling to right field. Steve Evans followed him with a base on balls. Hofman pushed Shaw along to third on his grounder, but Evans was forced out at second. Westerzil hit another grounder, which Louden grabbed at deep short too late to get Shaw going home, although he got Hofman on a force-out at second base.

Louden made a gallant attempt to tie the score for Buffalo in the sixth inning, but was put out trying to steal home. Louden had got to first on a single and moved along to second when Bode made another single. With the rain just starting and his team one run behind, Louden saw that desperate methods were necessary, and promptly stole third. Louden's arrival at third seemed to infuriate the elements, and it began to rain all the harder. He took one more look at the sky, and then, while Seaton was winding up, started for the plate. The ball got there before him, however, and he was declared out. This ended the game, for the umpires and the players immediately ran for cover. The score.

R. F. CARMAN TURNS OUT STAKE WINNER

Lady Barbary Scores Her First Victory in Capturing Canarsie Purse.

Although the Canarsie Stakes for two-year-olds closed with forty-three entries and was guaranteed to be worth $1,000, there were only five starters for it, a fact which occasioned considerable comment because owners and trainers have been grumbling because "most of the purses are not worth running for, anyway." Here at least was a purse worth $700 net that R. F. Carman picked up because he persisted with his filly, Lady Barbary, which has not been quite good enough to get the big end of a purse in any of her previous races.

At Aqueduct yesterday Lady Barbary was very good, indeed, and she completely upset the calculations of all the wise ones by running away from her field, which included to two well-played horses, George Roesch and Al Reeves, both of which had won at their last appearances. It was a little singular that the crowd had forgotten or ignored Lady Barbary's second to Coquette in a very impressive race on Wednesday of last week, in the light of the more recent victories of the two named and played as good things for the dash.

To be sure Al Reeves got away very poorly, which was a good excuse for his not running into the money, but Lady Barbary, getting away well at the raising of the barrier, ran with such a show of speed as to lead the crowd to believe that even had Reeves gotten away flying, he would not have been able to beat her. She was so fast, in fact, that she had her field beaten at the end of a half mile, and Turner eased up on her, allowing her to romp in a half dozen lengths in front of Tinkle Bell, and he beat Sarsenet under a drive an even greater distance, with the two choices of the speculators bringing up the rear.

Gaelic acted as if he was going to make a runaway race of the other dash for two-year olds, which opened the afternoon's sport. He got away in front of the field of four that ran, and at the end of a half mile was half a dozen lengths or more in front of Razzano, with The Finn a hot favorite, absolutely last. Buxton appeared so sure of the race that instead of following "Old Pa Bill Daly's" instructions to his jockeys to "always make every post a winning one," he stopped riding Gaelic and began looking back over his shoulder to find out where the rest of the field was. He found out to his sorrow, for Turner, who had the mount on The Finn, came with a tremendous rush, at the last sixteenth, and not only caught Buxton and Gaelic napping, but was able to shoot by them with such a rush before they could get going again that The Finn was a half dozen lengths in front of Gaelic as they went by the judges, Buxton about as surprised and astounded a jockey as ever sat in the saddle. He has now learned, what John Madden said before the race, that "The Finn is slow to get going, but when he does start he has a world of speed and is liable to beat anything in any race no matter how much of a lead he has."

The best finish of the afternoon came in the last race, for which Orotund was the favorite and Belle of Bryn Mawr second choice. The latter and Sonny Boy had the contest between them all the way, and it was only by the most vigorous of riding that Butwell drove Belle of Bryn Mawr by the judges a short head in front of Sonny Boy, with Orotund a very poor fourth. The summaries:

RIVERSIDE YACHTS SAIL.

Wild Thyme Defeats Twinkle in Special Class on the Sound.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERSIDE, Conn., July 2.—There was only a small fleet of starters in the twenty-sixth annual regatta of the Riverside Yacht Club off here today. The yachts that started had an excellent scrap, notwithstanding the fact that a strong southwest breeze was "killed" by a short rain squall, causing late finishes in all of the classes.

Interest principally centred in a special race between Twinkle, owned by S. C. Hunter, and Wild Thyme, the winner among the Larchmont inter-club yachts. The contest was won by the latter craft.

Four of the new R boats of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club started, and the winner was Yaqui. Vega won in the Star class, and Jean II. led home the Greenwich dories. The race was managed by R. H. Nexsen, Chairman of the Regatta Committee. The start and the finish was off Little Captain's Island. The summary:

TWO CUP YACHTS GET THEIR RATINGS

Vanitie and Defiance Measured by Prof. Webb—Boats to be Ready by Sunday.

The official yard stick was applied to both Vanitie and Defiance at City Island yesterday, in preparation for the actual trials for cup yachts off Newport next week. Prof. Harold W. Webb of Columbia, the New York Yacht Club's official measurer, took all Vanitie's dimensions, as that sloop had been hauled out, and upon these figures the Cochran candidate will be rated for the coming races.

Prof. Webb also took the waterline measurement of Defiance, and when she is hauled out today he will probably complete the job. The owners of each boat were told what the figures were, but they were not made public. Vanitie's bronze underbody has been scraped and she will be lowered back today to have her new hollow steel boom fitted on. As soon as she is off the ways the tri-city yacht will be hauled out for a scraping. It is expected that both boats will be ready to tow to Newport by Sunday.

For Defiance a new suit of headsails is being cut at Ratsey's, and when she next appears she will carry a jib and ballooner that set from the topmast.

George M. Pynchon, managing owner of the tri-city syndicate yacht, denied emphatically last night that there was any truth in the report of dissension between members of the syndicate and George Owen, the designer.

YACHTS AT NEWPORT.

Annual Cruise of Eastern Yacht Club to Start Today.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 2.—The Eastern Yacht Club fleet gathered here today in preparation for its first cruise south of Cape Cod in eleven years. Heavy weather during the last three days prevented a number of small sloops from arriving in time for the rendezvous, but they are expected to join the fleet tomorrow night at Vineyard Haven, together with a number of steam yachts.

Nearly a score of Captains attended the meeting in the cabin of the flagship Christabel this evening where Commodore Herbert M. Sears briefly outlined the programme for the five runs which will take the yachts to Vineyard Haven, Mattapoisette, back to Newport and thence to Block Island and New London.

The climax of the cruise will be reached on July 7 when the club, at the annual regatta off Brenton's Reef Lightship, will start the cup class yachts Defiance, Resolute and Vanitie on their two weeks' series of trial races.

The fleet will sail tomorrow for Vineyard Haven, the racing portion having a thirty-seven mile contest from Brenton's Reef to West Chop.

The weather off Narragansett Bay today was tempestuous, but it cleared tonight and strong following winds from the northwest are predicted for tomorrow.

College Athletes for Illinois A. C.

CHICAGO, July 2.—The Illinois Athletic Club, considered a likely candidate for team honors at the Central A. A. U. championship meet at Dayton, Ohio, July 4, strengthened its chances materially today. It added to its list of athletes Bond of Michigan, who won the 100-yard dash in the Intercollegiate meet at Cambridge last May; Kohler, the Michigan weight man, and Brodt, the Cornell hurler. The I. A. C. squad of twenty-five men, and the squad of twenty-eight men representing the Chicago Athletic Association left for Dayton tonight. The C. A. A. team is also strong. The University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin, and Northwestern University squads will follow the others from Chicago.

"Buck" O'Brien Passing Along.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 1.—Thomas ("Buck") O'Brien, a pitcher, today was released by the Indianapolis American Association Club to the Memphis Club of the Southern Association. O'Brien came to Indianapolis from the Boston American League Club.

NO WIND FOR YACHTS.

New York Y. C. Fleet Unable to Raise a Sailing Breeze on Sound.

The fickle breezes of Long Island Sound capped the climax of an erratic season yesterday, and for the first time in ten years the New York Yacht Club was unable to start one of its scheduled races. Fourteen yachts managed to get to the line off Prospect Point to sail for the Glen Cove Cup, but there was not a breath of air stirring, and at 12 o'clock the Regatta Committee signaled a postponement. All hands waited patiently for two hours, and then Harry Payne Whitney notified the committee that he was tired of the delay and was going to quit. There were six fifty-footers on hand, and W. Butler Duncan volunteered to sail Mr. Whitney's Barbara. Mr. Duncan went aboard the Whitney sloop, but even then the wind stayed away.

Over on the north shore there was a faint zephyr all day. The Regatta Committee, figuring this breeze would work across the Sound, set a signal for a 3:10 P. M. start, but the breeze did not come and at 3 o'clock Chairman H. de B. Parsons and J. M. Macdonough decided to abandon the race entirely.

"The wind seems to be suffering from psychological depression," remarked Mr. Macdonough.

The yachts which put in an appearance were Grayling, Carolina, Samuri, Barbara, Spartan, and Pleione of the fifties; Oriole, Alera, Nepsi, and Carlita of the thirties; the class F schooners Venona and Miladi, and the schoonerettes Moira and Alicia. There will be no race for the Glen Cove Cups this year.

Commercial Vehicle Men to Meet.

Plans are being perfected by the National Chamber of Commerce for a convention of commercial vehicle interests to be held some time in October to further advance the work that has been done during the past two years. The commercial vehicle department has advertised extensively the advantages of motor vehicles for business purposes and sought to oppose unfair legislation affecting trucks. In addition it has worked out standard speed ratings, body weight allowances, warranties, caution plate, frame widths and lengths, and schedule of demonstration charges which have been recommended by the chamber and are coming into general use in the trade; collected, analyzed, and published statistics of production of commercial vehicles, and issued numerous reports showing the economy of the motor truck in ton-mile cost of hauling, relief of traffic congestion, saving in street cleaning cost, &c.

Our 'Mugs' Need Ocean Trip—Lipton

CHICAGO, July 2.—In congratulating James A. Pugh on the launching of Disturber IV, which will compete for the Harmsworth motor boat trophy at Cowes next month, Sir Thomas Lipton cabled Mr. Pugh today as follows:

"I think the Harmsworth mug and the America's mug would both be benefited by trips across the ocean."

Disturber IV. will have speed trials here every day next week.

Jap Ball Team to Tour America.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 2.—The Meiji University baseball team arrived last night from Japan for a tour of the United States, during which forty-one games will be played, most of them in the East. Four games will be played with amateur teams in the vicinity of Seattle, after which the Japanese will leave for Chicago.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1914.

MEDIATION STILL POTENT.

Mediation is not dead, though its obituary notices prepared for purely political purposes have appeared in some of the newspapers. The South American envoys have not suspended their good offices, but are taking a recess. The Mexican delegates have addressed a most conciliatory note to the Constitutionalist agents at Washington in regard to the proposed conference between representatives of the two opposing factions in Mexico, and the hope is well founded that delegates representing the Constitutionalists will soon meet with those appointed by Gen. Huerta for the purpose of deciding upon a Provisional Government.

Carranza's letter to the mediators is perfectly coherent and reassuring. In Mexico there is a temporary lull in hostilities, but the great army of American non-combatant interventionists is as warlike as ever, and as much alarmed about the honor of this country. Peaceful and law-abiding Americans, however, are more and more of the belief that the national honor is perfectly safe in President Wilson's care and are grateful for our escape from a long and bloody war and the admirable results of mediation so far as it has gone.

LEGISLATION AND POLITICS.

The "conference" of Democratic Senators has resolved that Congress shall dispose of "at least" three named trust bills before adjournment. About what sort of trust bills shall be passed not a word is said in the resolution, but much was said in the debate upon it. One after another Senators reserved liberty of action upon most of the contentious proposals. If the bills shall be put into form to attract the votes which were practically cast against the bills as they stand, the bills will not be recognizable. Already they have been so done over by the Senate that the House bills have disappeared. Already the Senate itself has been of more than one mind on each of the bills. So lately as yesterday there appeared an entirely fresh version of the bill regulating issues of railway securities. There is talent enough at Washington to produce over night projects of law varying alike from all experience, and all previous proposals of those claiming license as reformers to regulate matters of business about which opinions cannot be settled until the results are known.

Political expediency is too largely the motive of legislation which ought first to be guided by the principles of business, morality, and prosperity. To carry the Fall election is the first object, of course without malice about the country's welfare. It is not the best way to carry elections, and it is the worst way to regulate business. Laws passed without the sanction of the business community cannot be enforced by the politicians. If the politicians attempt to enforce such laws they will react upon those who enact them, and defeat will be their reward. Those who have strong opinions against the merits of the bills might from a political standpoint ask nothing better than that they should be passed, as a first step toward retribution for their enactment. But clearly that is not the best politics. Only parochial statesmen could wish victory upon the faults of their opponents, rather than the merits of their own proposals. The opposition is not worthy consideration unless it is opposition upon principle, and opposition of that sort cannot base itself upon what it condemns in those whom it criticises.

It is welcome news that the President has begun to set Congress an example by consulting leading men of business. The Times has heretofore expressed the opinion that there could be no certainty in business until these bills were passed. It is even more strongly of the opinion that their prompt passage would be a public benefit if done as it might and ought to be done. The proper way to dispose of the bills is to make them conform to sound principles and good practice. Then politics and business could be left to themselves. Politics can be settled by majorities, but not laws or morals. A minority of whatever degree of virtue cannot enact virtue. Even a majority would not be equal to such a task. When Senators condemn the laws which they declare shall be "disposed of" in a hurry they betray a consciousness of the weakness of their position. They are in haste because they know that sentiment is not making in their favor, and must hurry to anticipate the protests of those subject to the laws they propose. The politicians have more cause to worry than business. It can adapt itself to almost anything, and can annul the unendurable. It has done so before and can do so as often as necessary. But bad legislation never can be good politics, no matter which side it puts in or out.

JUST TREATMENT FOR COLOMBIA.

There is nothing new in the latest statement of Mr. Du Bois, formerly United States Minister to Colombia, concerning the facts of the Panama rebellion and the debt of the United States to the Republic of Colombia. To his tribute to "the intelligence and respectability" of the public men of Bogota and his statement of the refinement and culture which justify the claim of that capital to be called the Athens of South America the fellow-citizens of Mr. Du Bois will take no exception. He declares that "Colombia wanted the canal dug and "wanted the United States to dig it." In view of the vast benefit the finished canal will be to Colombia, and the capacity of Americans to carry through enterprises of pith and moment, we fancy this statement does not exceed the truth.

What is more, most Americans believe that some settlement is Colombia's due. But the proposed treaty gives to Colombia privileges in relation to the canal which no other country will possess, and she may transport her products from one ocean to the other free of charge. Mr. Du Bois says that the expression of regret in Article I. of the proposed treaty is not intended as an apology; that Colombians understand that the United States intends no apology. What possible objection can there be, in that case, to a change in phraseology which will clearly indicate to everybody that no apology is intended? To make the expression of regret mutual would not materially alter the treaty. Make it read, "The United States and the Republic of Colombia regret." In view of the vast benefit Colombia is to obtain from the canal, the sum of $25,000,000 seems entirely too large to pay. If the money consideration were reduced to $10,000,000 and the simple change we have suggested were made in the first article of the treaty, it would be more acceptable.

Mr. Du Bois's sum in arithmetic which convinces him that Colombia's claim amounts to $36,000,000 will not convince his fellow-citizens. Sooner or later the right to build a canal on the Atrato route must be ceded to us, and perhaps that, with the two islands for the possession of which Mr. Du Bois negotiated without success, might justify further payment to Colombia. It must be borne in mind that we have incurred an expense of $400,000,000 in building a canal which has cost Colombia not one cent, and of which she will have free use.

SPEAKING ACROSS SEAS.

When deep calleth unto deep, it may hereafter be with the human voice. Mr. Marconi's announcement that he will try to bridge the Atlantic with the wireless telephone comes thirteen years after his successful attempt to project wireless waves from Poldhu, on the coast of England, to Newfoundland. What will the next thirteen years bring forth?

Now that all the great nations are planning for long-distance wireless service, and wireless telegraphy and telephony, provoking along the earth's curvature "a species of electrical earthquake," are exciting renewed wonder among men, the cable companies regard their position with concern. The installation and upkeep of the cables constitute a heavy expense. The universal ether bears the electric signals that select their receiver—especially the vocal signals—with a precise resonance like the response to a violin note from a piano wire attuned to its vibration. It bears them best through fog and in the night and over long distances, and it exacts no charge.

The improved wireless methods, which know no frontiers or political divisions, should make distant communications quicker and cheaper, and large classes of the people will use them.

FASHIONS IN REGICIDE.

There is something a little suspicious about the testimony of the assassin Prinzip, which seems designed to give the impression that he acted entirely on his own initiative in the killing of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife. He pretends that he knew nothing about the bomb which was thrown ineffectively before he fired his successful shots, but that when he heard it he exclaimed, "There are still people who think as I do," and that his resolve, formed after reading anarchist literature, was "further strengthened."

Most of the murders of European rulers have been committed by men acting on their own initiative; it is the anarchist way. Thirty or forty years ago there were elaborate conspiracies and reports of secret associations which designated assassins by lot or by agreement. Because of its obvious disadvantages the anarchists, when they began their malefic activities, threw aside this method and adopted a new fashion in assassination. Their way has been to preach murder until some individual in their ranks is induced by constant suggestion to take upon himself the task of removing the particular ruler against whom the preachments are chiefly directed, or who is most obnoxious to them at the time. It is a point of honor with the assassin not to reveal his intentions to the rest.

But all the evidence concerning the latest assassination shows it to be a reversion to the earlier fashion of crime. It bears all the marks of a carefully planned conspiracy involving many persons. The victims were doomed from the moment they entered Sarajevo. One of the assassins failed; another succeeded; and the finding of numerous bombs shows that if the second assassin in turn had failed there were others, stationed at different points along the route, ready to take up his work. For the purpose of concealing the conspiracy and averting suspicion from his accomplices Prinzip is trying to make it appear that he is an assassin of the modern type.

DEATHLESS TISSUES.

When a man of Dr. Alexis Carrel's eminence announces that the tissue of a chick, which he has kept in a nourishing medium outside the body for twenty-eight months, is "no "longer subject to the influence of "time"—that is, that its cells are immortal—speculations on the prolongation of life are in order. This tissue, from which cultures have been made through 358 "generations," is growing faster now than in the beginning. The fragments usually double within forty-eight hours. If animal tissues can be kept outside the organism in permanent life, and "permanent" is the word Dr. Carrel uses, what may be done in keeping the tissue-built body alive?

The blood and lymph are not the best media for growth, in itself considered. They contain elements that actually prevent growth beyond a certain point, and keep the parts and organs in subordination to the body as a whole. Rapid and continuous growth is not desirable except when the tissues are wasted, and then a means of controlling the process of repair is essential. But the secret of stimulating growth by the aid of an artificial "optimum medium" when the recuperative forces of the body are spent, as in illness and old age, should lie very close to the experiments Dr. Carrel is making.

FREEPORT'S MYSTERY.

The earliest accounts of the strange murder at Freeport, L. I., on Tuesday evening were sufficient to satisfy anybody with an ample memory for criminal incidents that this was a crime destined to be of note in the records and one to be talked of from one end of the country to the other as a celebrated case. We have the authority of the Ghost of Hamlet's father for recognizing degrees of interest in murder cases. This has seemed thus far to be as strange and unnatural as murder can be; to possess, in spite of the fact that the persons involved are known only in their own little communities, qualities which set it apart from the general run of murders, of which there are too many week after week for our boasted civilization to justify. To the conflicting character of the testimony offered in this case, which has not yet advanced as far as a Coroner's inquest, too much importance might easily be attached; but trained detectives and competent criminal lawyers never rely much on early statements made by persons in a state of high nervous tension.

The original story was, indeed, amazing. A woman called on a physician to consult him about some ailment of the existence of which her family seems to have had no knowledge. She did not know the doctor, and he had never seen her. She was a resident of another village, and had been visiting that day in still another. In the circumstances, the time of her visit to the physician was oddly chosen, after 8 o'clock at night. As the physician was opening the door for her departure she was shot by some person outside of the house. The shot was fired through a closed window, splintering the glass.

Variations of this first simple but puzzling narrative have since been made. The fact has been established that the physician's wife was jealous and suspicious. Doubt has been cast on the assertion that the patient and the physician were previously unacquainted. There is room for a wide range of theorizing. Suspicion may be fastened for a time on one or more innocent persons. The fact that Dr. Carman has been in politics and held office accounts for the belief that the fatal bullet was intended for him, that he has murderous enemies. None has yet been identified, nor has any local madman been connected with the crime in a convincing manner. The jealous wife has placed herself in a most unfortunate position, and as yet there has not been a fact divulged to account for her jealousy. The jealousy of physicians' wives, however, when it is manifested, is not necessarily based on any reasonable cause. The novelists know all about that, as well as the lawyers, civil and criminal, and the physicians themselves.

The Freeport murder mystery, however, is not to be solved by the possession of that knowledge. It is not to be solved, offhand, in any way. Many persons were near by when this woman was killed. There is no doubt that she was murdered. The frequently useful suicide theory is impossible. Yet on the third day only one of the three essentials of a murder is in sight—the corpse. The weapon and the motive may be quickly discovered. Thus far there is only conjecture.

Naturally, the approach of Orangemen's Day, July 12, has made all peaceable Britons, irrespective of party, just a bit nervous. Ulster is armed, while the vast and scarcely organized body of Nationalist Volunteers is armed, too, and not noticeably willing to submit to dictation from the Nationalist political leaders. The disposition manifested in the House of Lords to observe moderation in dealing with the Home Rule question is, therefore, timely, and there are signs that the Government is also in a compromising spirit.

At last the Court House matter has reached a stage where argument will not avail to postpone further the work of preparing for the building operations. The plan and the site have both been decided upon. Condemnation proceedings are still required to secure title to the new land on the easterly side of the site. Commissioners must be appointed, and it is to be hoped that they will manifest sufficient regard for the needs of the city to do all they can this Summer, so that their share of the work may be finished early in the Autumn. Real estate values in the new civic centre neighborhood were fairly well established in the proceedings of the Condemnation Commissioners who were employed last year.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Weapon Truly Dangerous.

While the dictograph—or dictagraph—how a word so ill-made is spelled doesn't make much difference—was used only by policemen, detectives, and prosecuting officials for getting at the secrets of criminals, those of us who are really out of that class were not at all disturbed by its existence. To be sure, we thought its installment in prison cells and the offices of assorted swindlers a rather unpleasant device for accomplishing desirable ends, and somehow violative of the spirit, if not the letter, of the cherished principle as to self-incrimination. The employment of the machine, however, as an extension of a spy's ears was on a level with many other tricks and betrayals to which detectives with recognized justification habitually resort, and with a resigned sigh even the most delicate fell back on the convenient old rule that truthful, open, and honorable dealing cannot be expected by public enemies.

But with the revelation this week that the concealed telephone both can be, and at least once has been, used for the purposes of domestic espionage, and that its possibilities in this direction are practically without limit, something of indignant apprehension is wakened in people whose records and tendencies are both quite innocent. For there is nobody who does not have more or less frequent occasion to say things that should be safe from morbid or vicious curiosity—things which, if they go further than to the person or persons for whom they were intended, will produce results embarrassing, injurious, or disastrous.

Life can hardly go on without what are called "confidences," and certainly it would be hardly worth living if confidential communications can be safely made nowhere except in the middle of a ten-acre lot—and in broad daylight, at that. It almost looks as if the dictograph would have to be put in the same category as revolvers and other deadly weapons, its possession permitted only under license issued for avowable and avowed reasons.

They Have a Real Grievance.

By the end for the attainment of which what is known in the navy as the "plucking board" was designed, entire and cordial approval is deserved. That was to accelerate promotions, and to save young, ambitious and able officers from the heart-breaking detention in the lower grades which results from the persistent holding of those above by men whose claim to them is of the negative rather than the positive sort—of men, that is, whose tenure is based on seniority instead of energy and capacity, and whose one aim is to hang on till retirement for age puts them out of the service with high rank and comfortable provision for the rest of their lives.

It is an unfortunate fact, however, that, in practical application, the instances in which the plan of making annually a predetermined number of retirements for other reasons than age, has resulted unsatisfactorily. Too often the "plucking board," in order to fill its list, has been obliged to magnify trivial faults or mistakes and to exclude from the service officers with really fine records, which they are both eager and able to extend for years to come. In some of these cases wholly undeserved humiliation has been inflicted, and though the victims of what amounted to unjust punishment were kept silent by the regulations, their grievance has been deep, and the protests of their friends have been vehement.

The problem of how to make promotion reasonably rapid without injury to any is a difficult one, especially in time of peace, when opportunities for brilliant achievement are rare. Then "influence" not infrequently comes into play, and it is always suspected when merely colorable excuses for involuntary retirement have been sought and found.

And Nobody Called It "American."

British tempers have evidently been severely tried by the recent discovery of a miserable little scandal in the purchase of military supplies. The dishonesty then revealed involved some army officers, as well as civilians, and in sentencing one of them Justice Darling said that the officer in question had been tempted to his fall by the wearer of an ancient and lofty name—no less a person than Lord Saye and Sele. "I myself," remarked the Judge, "if I belonged to such a family, would starve rather than get my living by cadging for orders for beer."

The nobleman whose vocation was thus irreverently characterized took comprehensible offense, and, rising in the House of Lords this week to protest against it, he not only told his titled colleagues that it was a "foul lie"—which would pass for strong language almost anywhere—but he added hot denunciation of "the mischievous idea that the possession of an illustrious ancestry debars a man from earning an honest living in trade or otherwise."

That was an admirable phrase, of course, and it is little wonder that many of its hearers applauded a sentiment at once so virtuous and so modern, but some of them must have shied at least a little at the words "trade or otherwise."

Incidentally, the enterprising Sir Thomas Lipton was mentioned in the course of this discussion as one whose connection with the condemned contracts was sufficiently close to make the noble commentator on it surprised that Sir Thomas did not seek at least temporary obscurity instead of seeking more advertising in "every conceivable way." That was most unkind, and what could it have meant? The Lords may have understood it, but on this side of the water the words will seem deeply mysterious.

Men of Varied Interests.

One notices with some astonishment that most of the men just arrested for kidnapping the little Longo boy did not wholly devote themselves to the collection of blackmail, but were tradesmen or laborers besides, and, seemingly passed for honest and industrious men. Some of them were bakers, like the boy's father, and one of them was the flour dealer from whom the elder Longo obtained his supplies.

We are accustomed to criminals who are more specialists than this, and do not divide their time and energies between innocent and nefarious occupations.

It is curious, too, that the brigand who served as the little boy's jailer, set him at work teaching his own children to read. That showed appreciation of education as well as an economical mind. But the young tutor says his pupils proved hopelessly dull!

VOCATIONS FOR GIRLS.

Educational Alliance to Open Six Weeks' Course for Graduates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On July 6 the Educational Alliance will open and maintain for six weeks, under the auspices of the Board of Education of the City of New York, a trade school for the purpose of preparing those girls for certain industries who, because of their graduation this month or for other reasons, desire to obtain employment in the Fall. Our course will be simple, practical, and planned with a view to increasing the girls' commercial value to an employer because of the instruction we have imparted. We shall do our best to procure remunerative employment for each pupil enrolled. Registration will take place in Room 11 on July 1 and 2 between 9 and 12 and 1 and 3.

It is well known to you that many girls must, for the first few months of their employment, accept small wages, partly because of their inability to do any one thing properly and because of their inexperience in any industry. We hope to be able to give our girls, in the six weeks of instruction, an experience and ability equivalent to many months of actual employment in a factory.

Girls who, without this instruction, procure employment now will in all probability receive wages of $3 or $4 a week, whereas we have reason to believe that at the end of their course with us they will be able to earn $7, and possibly $8, a week. From this standpoint our work should appeal even to those parents who have immediate need for the assistance of their children.

HENRY FLEISCHMAN,
Administrator Educational Alliance.

FEW MOTOR 'BUS ACCIDENTS.

Fifth Avenue Coach Company Proud of Its Record.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several sentences in your editorial, "The 'Bus Line Proposals," may be construed by some of your readers as reflecting upon the record of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, in which event it would be a serious injustice to us. During the past five years in the operation of over nine million 'bus miles the company has not killed or seriously injured a passenger, and only five fatalities have been caused by its 'buses to pedestrians and others in the street. Of these there was not one for which the company was legally or morally responsible; they were instances of boys stealing rides; hitching on with roller skates, &c. The company may perhaps be pardoned for taking pride in this record.

The routes for which the Fifth Avenue Coach Company has applied are short extensions designed to make the present 'bus service more useful and convenient. Only a mile and a quarter of streets already served by surface railways is included, and this only to reach important traffic centres, access to which is essential to the convenience of the public in the residential districts now served exclusively by 'buses.

The existing 'bus lines fill a definite place in the city's transit needs, as is indicated by the steady growth from year to year in the number of passengers carried.

President, Fifth Avenue Coach Co.

SHOE REPAIRING IN SCHOOL.

A Suggestion for Inculcating Thrift in Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have often wondered why it never occurred to the Board of Education that one of the best things to inculcate thrift in our boys is to begin in the "shop" by teaching them to mend and sole their own shoes. The shoemaker is a big drain on the average income of the workingman with a family. It costs him at least from $2 to $3 a week for mending shoes alone, which could be done by his boys at school. The average cost of a pair of soles would not be more than 20 cents, and the boy would take delight in mending his own and sister's shoes.

Every day we see hundreds of our boys running through the streets with shoes tattered, and torn, with no hope of getting another pair, until perhaps the mother goes to one of our charity societies and buys a pair for 25 or 50 cents, so that her little daughter and son can look respectable on Sunday. I believe that if the Board of Education took this matter up and installed shoe machinery in the school shop that thousands of our charitably disposed citizens would gladly contribute, and the money spent for shoes would go to furnish the necessaries of life for the poor man's table. If this were done the sympathetic teachers of our public schools would not have to ask the oft-repeated question: "Did you have your breakfast this morning, and are those your best shoes?"

JOHN LEGGETT,
Brooklyn, N. Y., July 2, 1914.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT.

Confession of Mothers' Club Proves It Must Be Widespread.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read and reread, filled with distress and disappointment, the open letter from Haverford, Penn., in your paper of June 22. I had been told that the customs of at least this part of our country were becoming largely free from severe corporal punishment for children, and here is a Mothers' Club which reveals so different a state of things! No wonder the Secretary, who writes the letter, remarks that some of the punishments are "brutal." "Well, I flog her till my strength gives out—a hundred blows or more," being the report of one mother.

If such things can be done, and freely acknowledged by the doer, one of a sisterhood of mothers, what must be the cruelties of parents in the low walks of life, who so gladly imitate the habits and views of those higher up, when their own self-indulgence of temper and vengeance is delighted to imitate?

What can be done to change this?

MARGARET MEREDITH.

ELIHU ROOT.

Statement That He Will Not Contest for Senatorship Deplored.

From The World.

Mr. Root is today one of the two commanding intellects in the public life of the country, the other being Woodrow Wilson. He will be remembered as a great Secretary of War who reorganized the United States Army after the military experts had muddled with it in vain. He will be remembered also as a very competent Secretary of State, and in the United States Senate he has upheld the highest traditions of that body.

Although his name is not identified in the public mind with any notable piece of legislation, Mr. Root is generally recognized as the ablest man in the Senate. His time and his talents there have been devoted exclusively to public questions. He has not been a patronage broker or a manipulator of bills or a party whip. Few Senators have shown such consistent independence, and he has debated no question without shedding light on it.

The World was a vigorous opponent of Mr. Root's election to the Senate, but it is pleased to testify that none of its misgivings was ever realized, and it sincerely regrets his determination not to be a candidate for re-election. There is nobody left in either party who can fill his place.

It has been said of many men that their retirement was a loss to the State and Nation, but in the case of Senator Root it is a very real loss, and a loss for which there are no compensations.

Nation-Wide Regret.

From the Evening Post.

Mr. Root's unqualified determination to retire from the Senate upon the close of his term next March will be received with sincere and profound regret in all parts of the country, and among men of all shades of political opinion. Ability such as his, devoted as it has been for the past fifteen years to the highest tasks of national Government, is too rare and too valuable to the country to permit the appreciation of it to be limited either by sectional or by party lines. His retirement will be a heavy loss to the public life of our country, nor does there seem to be on the horizon anybody who will fill a place resembling that which he has occupied. For his successor in the Senate, we can only hope that some man will be found whose qualifications indicate at least an attempt on the part of the people of New York to maintain the standard he exemplifies.

Belated Public Recognition.

From The Tribune.

Something that must be even sweeter to Mr. Root than the good opinion of his colleagues is the late recognition by the public at large of his character as a public man. He does not owe his position to popular vote, and the notion used to prevail that he was one of the men exceptionally qualified for almost any office within the gift of the people who had no popular strength and who could not be elected. But we do not suppose anybody doubts now that he would make the strongest possible candidate his party could nominate for the Senatorship. It has been said that direct primaries and popular elections would make it impossible for men of his stamp to enter the United States Senate. But if Mr. Root would accept it he could have the Republican nomination to succeed himself. And if any Republican can be elected to the Senatorship he could. Mr. Root's service in the Senate has done this much for him. It has made him understood and appreciated by the public as he never was before.

Of an Unrivaled Capacity.

From The Buffalo News.

There is no denying the fact that as Senator Root's term draws near its end, there is steadily gaining appreciation of his great public service and his immense intellectual ability which, in other words, means his unrivaled capacity to serve the people, just as he is one of the foremost men professionally in the service of his private clients.

It has been noted of Mr. Root that when he is in the public service he knows no feeling but the Government to which he is attached and he devotes all his powers to the public service when he holds the commission for it.

A Drawback of the Primary Method

From The Rochester Post-Express.

Did the old method of choosing Senators still prevail, and had a Republican Legislature re-elected Senator Root gladly and as a matter of course, it is conceivable that he might have given two or three years more of his life to public affairs. But he will not permit his name to go before the people as a candidate for office. He will not even appear to be scrambling at a popular primary for a burdensome honor he does not want.

That is one of the drawbacks of the new method of selecting Senators that lesser men will now intrigue and fight, circularize the electorate and go horn blowing through the State for an office which the party formerly conferred as a decoration on its worthy men.

Worthy of a Unanimous Nomination

From The Philadelphia Ledger.

Senator Root's declination to again become a candidate means that upon the expiration of his present term New York will lose one of the ablest representatives it ever sent to the national capital, and the nation one of its most capable legislators and statesmen. It is not surprising that Mr. Root is disinclined to endure the ordeal and expense of a State-wide primary campaign. If his services to the nation do not warrant his unanimous renomination, no man in public life ever deserved one. Yet the loss of so valuable a counselor in the Senate is a price the United States must pay for a change in the method of election of Senators, which the country will sooner or later realize was adopted without duly weighing the consequences.

Cross-Legged Passengers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Through widespread resentment, voiced in the newspapers, the end-seat hog has been almost exterminated. I now suggest that steps be taken for the elimination, or at least the reform, of the cross-legged reproach so frequently in painful and offensive evidence in our mediums of local travel. This cross-legged species of nuisance adds to his lack of gentlemanlike qualities an irritating stolidity. He seems utterly indifferent whether his projected clod-hopper trips you, impedes your rightful passageway, or rubs dirt or filth on one's attire.

Roof Playgrounds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The discussion with reference to the use of roofs of tenements presents an exceedingly worthy object in so far as increased breathing space for the people is concerned, but what have your readers to say to the effect on health of persons being within such close proximity to vent pipes on the roofs? It has been my experience that unpleasant odors from such pipes are noticeable on the average tenement house roof, and it would seem that a roof would not be a healthful place to stay for long periods of time.

INTERROGATOR.
Brooklyn, N. Y., July 2, 1914.

SOLDIERING.

Stupid speeches,
Tedious bills,
Summer heat
That nearly grills,
Routine measures,
Dull debates,
Bickering 'twixt
States and States.

And—per contra—
Shady bowers,
Cooling breezes,
Hammock hours,
Home-town gardens,
Making hay—
Now, who wouldn't Break away?

There's a threat
Of their arrest,
North and South
And East and West.
Must curtail
Their Summer fun—
Drag 'em back,
This land to run.

Shame! When fences
Each must build!
When his days
With bliss are filled!
Here's a scheme
For those who shirk—
Only pay them
When they work!

SUFFRAGIST HECKLERS.

Is Their Treatment of Mr. Wilson Approved by Women's Clubs?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Are militant tactics to be used to express "the moral support" pledged to the suffrage movement by the convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs? The first fruits of that pledge appeared on Tuesday, June 30, when 700 or 500 clubwomen—it matters little which—were assembled in the East Room of the White House. Their spokesman, Rheta Childe Dorr, attempted to cross-question the President, who, quite properly, refused to allow that lady the joys of an impromptu debate with the Chief Executive. There should be no surprise at the incident.

The Congressional Union, that suffrage body which boasts of its well-filled treasury, arranged this hearing of "representative clubwomen from all parts of the country." The Congressional Union's heart and hinge is Alice Paul, American citizen, who wears the badge of honor conferred on English militants who suffer or enjoy imprisonment. During inauguration week in 1913, Mrs. Pankhurst's colors floated over the headquarters of the Congressional Union in Washington, a hint, or, perhaps, a defiance to authority, that at least a wing of the suffrage party stood for direct action.

As the Congressional Union arranged the White House audience, so the friend and ally of Mrs. Pankhurst, her companion during her detention at Ellis Island, Mrs. Rheta Childe Dorr, spoke for the assembled women. At the termination of the meeting in the East Room, so The New York Times reports, "a single hiss rang out." Nor should this surprise any one who recalls the hissing of President Taft by members of the National Woman's Suffrage Association when, as their guest, he addressed their meeting in Washington in April, 1910.

Did those disputants of June 30 truly represent suffrage policy? If they did, will the Federation of Women's Clubs find their "moral support" interpreted in terms of direct action? Last May the clubwomen of California, after a scant three years' experience of voting, spread this resolution on the books of their federation:

> Resolved, That we protest against using the influence and agencies of State and District Federation to further partisan and political interests and that we work for the moral and educational movements on which women stand practically united.

Surely it is reasonable and timely to ask if her freedom from political entanglements does not constitute woman's distinctive power in furthering the moral and educational movements which are her most intimate concern. Meantime the clubwomen of the country may well ask if the disciples of English militants are to be their interpreters at the White House.

SAILING CUP DEFENDERS.

Not Essential That Skipper Should Have Dictatorial Powers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not agree with Mr. Demarest in his opinion that it is absolutely essential that the sailing master of the Vanitie or of any other sloop be a dictator in all matters concerning the sailing and rigging of his boat. Take, for instance, the last three cup defenders, including the Reliance. In each case the sailing master was Charley Barr, whose supremacy as a Captain was never even questioned. Mr. Barr was always advised and aided by his associates and by the designer, Mr. Herreshoff. There was never any friction as far as I can learn, and there certainly was never any criticism as to the management of the sloops.

I think that Mr. Demarest's opinion was more of a tribute to Capt. Dennis than a well-thought-out conclusion as to what policy should be adopted in the management of a cup contender. So far as it applied to the Vanitie before her change of skippers I believe he is right. Early in his career Capt. Dennis proved himself a genius at rigging or re-rigging a boat so as to get the most out of her. In the last ten or twenty years he has always been given a free hand in this phase as well as in the actual sailing of the boat. Consequently he is never at his best until he has rigged his charge according to his own individual ideas. Then, again, his method of handling a boat is decidedly individualistic. This accounts for many of the bits of criticism which were pointed at him in the races off Sandy Hook.

I still think that the Vanitie is the best boat, and that if the "Mayor of Greenport" had had a free hand he would have brought her out.

MISQUOTED, SAYS EVANS.

General Asserts That He Did Not Criticise the Administration.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Brig. Gen. Robert K. Evans, temporarily commanding the army Department of the East, in a report to Secretary Garrison today, denied that he criticised the Administration in a speech delivered in New York last week. Gen. Evans said that his remarks were misquoted in reports which represented him as having said "We need a large army because, with our great variety of interests, we are naturally the most meddlesome nation in the world."

When reports of the speech were laid before President Wilson he asked Secretary Garrison to obtain an explanation from Gen. Evans.

Secretary Garrison declined to make public Gen. Evans's letter. He will forward it to the President, upon whom further action depends.

GREECE TO GET SHIPS SOON.

Will Take Over Mississippi Next Week, Idaho at Naples a Little Later

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Arrangements for the transfer of the battleship Idaho, now at Naples, to the Greek Government were completed today, and the battleship Maine was ordered to sail from Philadelphia next Wednesday for the Italian port to receive the Idaho's crew and the Naval Academy midshipmen aboard her. The battleship Mississippi will be turned over to Greek sailors at Newport News, Va., next week.

A check for $12,000,000, the purchase price of the two warships, will probably be delivered at the Navy Department tomorrow. The Greek Government will not figure directly in the transaction, but will be represented by the agent of an American shipbuilding company.

HOPE FOR RUSSIAN TREATY.

Administration Expects Marye to Reopen Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—An official intimation of the purpose of the United States to reopen negotiations with Russia for a new treaty to replace the one abrogated about a year and a half ago was conveyed in a statement made at the White House today that George T. Marye, recently appointed as Ambassador to Russia, might take up that subject.

Mr. Marye will receive specific instructions, before he leaves Washington, as to the intentions of the State Department, which has had the btnefit of suggestions from Curtis Guild, the Ambassador who has just retired, regarding certain points on which negotiations for a new convention might probably be based with some hope of success.

TIMES SQ. SUBWAY CONTRACT APPROVED

Interborough's Last Fight Before Board of Estimate Is on the Bond.

IT FEARS ACCIDENT SUITS

Holbrook Corporation, However, Need Not Change Its $500,000 Indemnifying Bond.

The Board of Estimate approved yesterday by a unanimous vote the award by the Public Service Commission of the contract for the construction of the short section of Subway in Times Square, to connect the present Broadway line with the new Seventh Avenue line, to the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation. This was not done without a strong protest from the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which was the second lowest bidder for the job, and which has on other occasions raised the point that the extreme risk involved in modifying the present Subway structure while the regular schedule of trains was being maintained was such that it would not be safe to intrust the work to any other bidder than its own subsidiary, the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company.

Mayor Mitchel asked A. E. Mudge of counsel for the Interborough if the company was pressing this point at yesterday's meeting, but Mr. Mudge said that it was not and that it was founding its protest entirely upon the conditions of the five-hundred-thousand-dollar bond which the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation must give it to indemnify the Interborough for all damages arising to its property or passengers through the construction work.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Conway appeared as counsel for the Holbrook concern, and protested vigorously against the terms which the Interborough wished to place in the bond. Especially he objected to a clause which would hold the contractor responsible for all damages to property and injury to individuals which might result from the negligence of the employes of the Interborough.

Mr. Mudge pointed out that when it was said that the Holbrook concern had underbid the Interborough, it should be noted how it came about that it could quote a lower price. If the item of the cost of providing for the safety of the traveling public were omitted, he said, it would be found that the Holbrook concern instead of being the underbidder by $47,000 was really $24,000 in excess of the Interborough. Whereas the Interborough had estimated that it would cost $105,000 to take the necessary precautions, and the Smith & McIsaac Company $228,000, the Holbrook people had proposed to spend only $33,000 on this part of the work.

"This, in our opinion," said Mr. Mudge, "is the most difficult work in all the new subways, and in it we face a tremendous responsibility. Before the Public Service Commission we objected to the grant of the contract to any one but ourselves on account of the jeopardy to the lives of passengers involved and we were turned down. We shall not now appeal to the board on this score, but we do ask, considering that this risk exists, that we receive full support from the city in regard to our financial responsibility."

Mr. Mudge then asserted that it was absolutely necessary to insert in the bond the clause definitely making the Holbrook Corporation and its bondsmen responsible for all accidents, even if there had been contributory negligence on the part of the Interborough's employes, because some of the liability companies had served notice that they would not hold themselves responsible for these.

"Suppose a girder were to fall and a train ran into it," Mr. Mudge said. "It might be said that the motorman had contributed to the accident because he had not stopped in time. You cannot separate us from the circumstances surrounding an accident. We are the insurers of the safety of the public, and if anything happens the public will undoubtedly sue us."

Controller Prendergast said that if he had known that the difference between the bids of the Interborough and the Holbrook Corporation turned on the item dealing with safety precautions he might have asked for reconsideration. He said he knew the Holbrook Corporation had a very fine record and was doing work for the city in an entirely satisfactory fashion. He could not persuade himself that enough had been advanced to show that it could not perform this Times Square work efficiently and safely. He thought the Interborough was showing a rather captious spirit, and recommended that the contract be approved.

After some further discussion, in which Public Service Commissioner Maltbie pointed out that the conditions of the contract had been approved by the Interborough before bids were invited upon it, and that these should be the measure of the obligations imposed by the bond, the Board of Estimate without a dissentient voice approved the grant of the contract to the Holbrook Corporation.

President McAneny then informed Mr. Maltbie that the board had determined to put over till next Thursday the contract, which the commission had awarded to the Interborough for the construction of Section 1A of the Seventh Avenue line. This is at the Battery, and complaint has been made that the plans would inflict unnecessary damage on the Chesebrough Building at State and Pearl Streets.

The board also postponed action for one week on the grant to Booth & Flinn, Limited, and to the O'Rourke Engineering Company of the contract for the B. R. T. East River tunnel from Whitehall Street to Montague Street, but approved the grant of the contract for the Interborough tunnel from Old Slip to Clark Street to the same two firms. It also approved the Interborough's contract for the construction of the Lexington Avenue section between Fifty-third and Forty-third Streets, the contract with the Ramapo Iron Works for the supply of iron for the Fourth Avenue line, and the contract with the Thomas Crimmins Construction Company for the laying of the tracks in the Fourth Avenue Subway.

FLING AT BRYAN IN HOUSE.

Cabinet Lecturers Classed with Gaby Deslys and Evelyn Thaw.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Cabinet officers and Congressmen who deliver lectures for pay were classed with Gaby Deslys and Evelyn Nesbit Thaw by Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois in the House today. He referred to them as "performers," and said that many of them had "capitalized a gift of the people or a stroke of good fortune in lieu of real ability."

Mr. Britten is author of a bill pending in the House which would make it a penal offense for high Government officials to appear on the Chautauqua platform for compensation during their term of office.

"Gaby Deslys, the vaudeville actress," said Mr. Britten, "is quoted as receiving $2,000 a week, but any one who has seen her $5,000 worth of clothes and $50 worth of talent will readily agree she is capitalizing her associations with King Manuel, and not her ability to act."

Mr. Britten added that Evelyn Thaw was being kept before the public "at a high salary because of the capitalization of her association with the famous Thaw case."

"I merely cite these instances," he continued, "to show that Members of Congress and Cabinet officers are not the only imitation performers, and the sooner it is stopped the better for the dignity of the office." He said he had received hundreds of letters approving his bill.

BARS CUSTOMS MEN FROM SHIPS' TABLES

NEW ORDER FROM McADOO

Officials Grumble and Blame the Efficiency Experts Collector Mitchel Selected.

Acting upon instructions received from the Secretary of the Treasury Collector Dudley Field Malone issued an order, which went into effect yesterday, that customs officials, including Acting Deputies, Inspectors and Appraisers, in future must not eat meals on board the passenger liners as they have been doing for many years. This order, it was said yesterday on good authority, was promulgated by Secretary McAdoo at the suggestion of the high-salaried experts selected by Mayor Mitchel, when he was Collector of the Port, as an Efficiency Committee on the customs service.

This will affect about 450 men in the Surveyor's department and includes all customs officials who work upon the piers with the baggage after the ships arrive in port from abroad. The two Inspectors assigned to a ship while she is in port have been getting their meals with the officers in the saloon and the Acting Deputy Collectors who go down the bay to Quarantine have had their meals on the steamers coming up to the piers.

The chief stewards of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Kaiserin Auguste Victoria and Oceanic, which all arrived yesterday morning, could not understand when they saw the dining saloons empty and missed the cheerful crowd of men in gilt buttons. They said the saloon looked lonesome without them as on a big ship there were often more than 200 customs officials at breakfast, luncheon or dinner, as the case might be.

The meal was enjoyed by the men, and after working over the baggage in a hot shed for three or four hours it was pleasant to sit in the saloon of a big liner and partake of poulet à la Marengo or saumon à la Toulouse with iced tea followed by Canterbury lamb and salad and ice cream with Stilton cheese and coffee.

The Inspectors report for duty at 7 o'clock for the piers, and are sometimes switched from pier to pier in the Summer rush of the incoming passenger season without a chance of getting to a restaurant to eat. If they cannot take meals on the steamers, it was said yesterday, the Appraisers and Inspectors will have to knock off examining baggage at noon for an hour and find a place to get luncheon, which is not easy along the waterfront.

Those who are detained, without pay, until 9 or 10 o'clock at night examining baggage will need an hour from 5 to 6 o'clock to get their supper, because they cannot work all day and night without getting any refreshment, it was said.

Up to the present time the customs officials have worked right along until all the baggage was finished, and then gone on board to eat their meal before going to the next ship. Sometimes they get a hurry call to finish one ship in New York, and then dash across to Hoboken in the Hudson Tunnel. Yesterday the Oceanic arrived first, and made fast at her pier on the New York side, followed by the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, and Bremen on the Hoboken side. The overtime, for which the customs officials receive no extra pay, amounts sometimes to eighty days in a year. The steamship lines have not objected to giving the meals, because they realized it helped to get their passengers off the pier with the least possible delay.

The new order was not popular yesterday among the Inspectors on the piers, and they exclaimed, somewhat bitterly, to a TIMES reporter that this was about the only thing the efficiency experts had suggested to the Treasury Department that had been carried out.

One veteran Inspector said he would solve the problem by bringing his food down to the pier in an old dinner pail he had used before the civil war and sit on a stringer and eat when he had a chance.

PARK MUSIC PROGRAMME.

Nahan Franko Opens Central Park Series Tomorrow.

Park Commissioner Cabot Ward announced yesterday the formal opening of Central Park music for Saturday evening at 8 o'clock on the Mall. The first concert will be given by Nahan Franko's Concert Band. The same organization will play the following evening at the same place. Beginning on Tuesday evening Franko will give seven concerts, five on successive evenings and one on Saturday and one on Sunday afternoon. On Tuesday, July 14, the Arthur Bergh Orchestra will furnish the Central Park music for a series of seven concerts, then the Franko Band will resume.

Concerts will be given under park auspices on July 4 as follows: Battery Park, 4 P. M., William Schwartz Band; Carl Schurz Park, 8 P. M., Carl Lederhaus Band; Chelsea Park, 8 P. M., Thomas P. The Franz Kaltenborn Orchestra will give a concert at Curtis Field, S. I., on Sunday evening.

OX TEAM IN SUFFRAGE TOUR.

Women Will Use It in Crusade Through Sullivan County.

Mrs. Elizabeth Worth Muller of Monticello, N. Y., has engaged an ox team to help her wage a "votes for women" war through Sullivan County this month. The oxen will draw the women and a camper's outfit from place to place. When they come to a desirable place to stop the women will pitch their tents and do battle for their cause as long as there is an enemy in sight, and then move to conquer other fields. There will not be an "anti" in Sullivan County, the Women's Political Union workers of New York say, when they and the oxen have traveled through it.

All the strong forces of the Women's Political Union gathered yesterday morning at the headquarters on West Forty-fifth Street for an automobile ride down to the Woolworth Building and a call upon Secretary of State Mitchell May in his office there, but it turned out that the Secretary of State had received an unexpected call in another direction, so the visit was postponed until next week. The women wish to sharpen the memory of the Secretary as to the necessity of having the proposed amendments to the Constitution advertised in time. They do not wish to lose their possible enfranchisement through a mistake of the kind that occurred in New Jersey.

LUNCHEON TO POLO VICTORS

Roberts and Wimborne Pay Tributes to Chivalry of Americans.

LONDON, July 2.—Lord Wimborne and the members of the British polo team which won the Polo Cup at Meadow Brook, L. I., were guests today at a "welcome home" luncheon given by the Pilgrims. The warmly festive atmosphere that prevailed was heightened by the receipt of a congratulatory cablegram from George T. Wilson, Vice President of the American Pilgrims.

Field Marshal Earl Roberts, who presided, spoke of the intense gratification felt in the British Isles at the return of the Polo Cup and paid a tribute to "the true sportsmanlike spirit which had characterized all the struggles for it on American polo fields." He added:

"I feel I am echoing the wish of all present when I say that the chivalrous conduct of the American polo authorities in postponing the first match in consequence of Capt. Cheape's accident was a generous action which will live long in our memory, and I should like to add to this our appreciation of the impartial enthusiasm of the spectators at Meadow Brook and of the American press."

Lord Wimborne complimented the American polo players on their sportsmanship, and said if a member of the American team had met with an accident he would have hesitated to offer to postpone the match. He concluded:

"The Americans went out of their way to do an extremely chivalrous act."

Capt. Barrett spoke highly of American hospitality.

The guests included American Ambassador Page, Lord Charles Beresford, and Lords Grenfell, Decies, and Fairfax.

TAKES ASTOR ESTATE.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Leases Beechwood, Newport, for Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 2.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has taken for the Summer season Beechwood, the residence of Vincent Astor, on Bellevue Avenue and the Cliffs, which has never before been in use other than by a member of the Astor family. It is one of the largest places in the Summer colony.

Cisneros-Potter Engagement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—The engagement between Norman F. Potter of London and Marie Cisneros of New York is announced.

Maeterlinck's Play on Campus.

Maeterlinck's "Aglavaine and Selysette," which had its first American production a year ago, will be presented next Wednesday evening on the green at New York University under the auspices of the English department of the Summer school. The players will be professionals, and will include Ida Hamilton, who formerly played with Mrs. Fiske in "Mary of Magdalen," in the rôle of Aglavaine, and Zenaide Williams, who played Amelia Sedley in "Becky Sharp," as Selysette. Caroline Newcombe will appear as Maligraine. Wilmuth Merkyl, who appeared last in "Sari," will play the only male rôle, Meleander, and Margaret Shelby will act the child Yssaline.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Universal Film Company has engaged Christy Mathewson of the Giants on a year's contract to appear in a series of moving picture plays to be made by that concern. Next Winter "Matty" will make his headquarters at Universal City, Cal., where most of the film plays will be made.

The Pasquali American Company has been reorganized with the object of reproducing moving pictures in the United States from popular American plays and books. The company made a production in New York last year of "The Last Days of Pompeii."

The out-of-town representatives of the Atlas Theatres Company, at the conclusion of their short visit to New York, were last night the guests of President J. J. Hamilton and Vice President H. L. McElroy at a box party at the Strand Theatre.

Charles Bradford, former business manager for Lillian Russell, Mary Garden, Mme. Bernhardt, John Mason, and other noted stars, is in the Polyclinic Hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Announcement was made yesterday that Moss & Brill had taken over the McKinley Square Theatre, the Bronx, and would open it in the Fall as one of the Moss & Brill circuit of vaudeville houses, among which are the Jefferson, Eighty-sixth Street, Hamilton, and Plaza Theatres in New York City, and the Colonial Theatre in Albany.

John Cort, general manager of the Northwestern Theatrical Association, controlling practically every theatre west of the Missouri River in which traveling attractions are played, has leased for a term of years the Avenue Theatre, Vancouver, B. C., and hereafter all attractions playing the Northwestern circuit will be taken care of in Vancouver at the Avenue.

NONE HEARD HIS LONG CRIES

Fearing Weakness, He Put Food and Drink Near, but All Were Gone Long Before Aid Came.

What he described as a strange premonition that something had happened to his brother-in-law, Andrew Loeffler caused Leonard Schneider, a machinist of 34 Wyckoff Avenue, Williamsburg, to remain away from work and go to Loeffler's house at 253 Himrod Street, Williamsburg, early yesterday morning.

On reaching Loeffler's apartment on the second floor of the house he rang the bell, but got no response. The men had been intimate friends and each had a key to the other's apartment. Schneider let himself in and found his brother-in-law in bed. He was pale and seemed scarcely able to move. Loeffler feebly pointed toward an empty tumbler near the bed and Schneider hurried to get him some water.

Partially revived by the drink, Loeffler said that he had been in bed alone and helpless since last Sunday, when he had become suddenly ill. He weakly narrated how he had felt ill on Saturday and had retired after placing food and water within easy reach. On Sunday he had become so weak that he was unable to rise, and had eaten most of the food at the bedside.

Loeffler said he had called for help all day, but was too weak to make much sound. At night he was hoarse and ceased calling. On Monday he tried to attract the people in the apartment below by tapping on the floor, he said, but the agony of the exertion ended the effort after a short time. He drank sparingly of the half tumbler of water within his reach and made several futile efforts to get to the kitchen for more food and water. Wednesday, he said, the bit of food was exhausted and he drank the last of the water. From that time on he had had neither.

Schneider telephoned to the German Hospital for an ambulance. When it arrived Dr. Donohue, the ambulance surgeon, said Loeffler was dead. Death was due to natural causes, he said, but Loeffler might have lived had help arrived sooner.

Loeffler was a German, 51 years old, and for nearly five years, since the death of his wife, had lived alone in the four-room apartment in Himrod Street. He had no servant, but did the work about the house himself. He had saved considerable money, his brother-in-law said, and did not work regularly. While working he was employed as a machinist in Manhattan. Loeffler had been in the habit of paying Schneider a weekly visit, and had not appeared this week. Schneider said he was gazing out of the window at his home while it was raining on Wednesday night, and that suddenly he seemed to realize that something had gone wrong with Loeffler. So strong was the feeling, he said, that he thought of going to Loeffler's home immediately, but was deterred by the rain. The feeling grew stronger through the night, he said, and he determined to go to Loeffler's home early in the morning.

When members of other families in the building in which Loeffler lived heard of his condition yesterday they expressed great surprise. None of them had heard his calls for help, and, as they had not heard him enter or move about the apartment for nearly a week, they supposed that he was out of town.

MRS. GEO. F. BAKER'S JEWELS

Mrs. Florence Thompson Baker, the wife of George F. Baker, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank, left a net estate of $470,298, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court. Mrs. Baker was taken suddenly ill on July 25, 1913 while she was entertaining friends at the Baker country place at Tuxedo Park. She died within three hours.

Mrs. Baker's estate was made up as follows: Residence at 258 Madison Avenue, $267,800; bank accounts, $658; clothing, $1,005, and jewelry, $204,535.

The jewelry consisted of seventy-nine pieces. Among them were a single string of pearls, $80,000; double string of pearls, $21,500; emerald and diamond necklace, $40,000; collar of pearls and diamonds $28,500; ring set with emeralds and diamonds, $4,500; pendant of peacocks and marquise diamonds, $4,000; star pin containing a ruby and a diamond, $3,750; bracelet with a diamond and emerald, $3,000; long chain containing a sapphire and diamonds and a big pearl pendant, like a rosebud, $3,500; pair of bracelets, $2,300; pin with a diamond and green enamel dragon flies and a large marquise diamond, $2,000; bracelet set with a diamond and a pearl, $1,900; collar clasp containing a cock's head and three large pearls, $1,500, and a gold bag, $1,000.

Mrs. Baker's estate will be distributed among her husband, her sister-in-law, and her three children. Mrs. Florence E. St. George, her daughter, will receive an emerald ring valued at $4,500, an aquamarine pin valued at $300, and a half interest in the double string of pearls, which was appraised at $21,500. Mrs. Florence B. Loew, another daughter, will receive the other half of the string of pearls; a small ring valued at $200, and a diamond ring valued at $175. George F. Baker, Jr., receives an engagement ring valued at $200 and his mother's jewel box and trinkets valued at $50. Sada E. Baker, her sister-in-law, receives a watch valued at $15. George F. Baker, who was named as residuary legatee, receives a share in the estate appraised at $443,358.

Englishman Who Libeled Congressmen Is Farming in Canada.

The last financial tie binding Henry W. A. Page to this country was cut yesterday by a decision of Supreme Court Justice Weeks that $4,047 due him by the firm that bought out his business when he fled the country to escape imprisonment for libeling members of Congress should be paid to his wife, Mrs. Jeanie F. Page, who claimed it for alimony. Mr. Page is an Englishman. He was a linen merchant at 440 Fourth Avenue, and was doing well until he got into a row with Congress over the tariff. Early in 1912 he issued a pamphlet accusing Congressmen of perjury.

Mr. Page was especially bitter against Congressman Clayton. He was charged with libel and was held in $5,000 bail by United States Commissioner Shields. He was tried in Washington and found guilty, and was released on $5,000 bail, pending an application for a new trial. His application failed, and he was sentenced to five years in prison. Then it was discovered that he had left the country. His business was bought by Welsch & Culley, who admitted that $4,047 was still due.

Mrs. Page said in her application that Mr. Page was engaged in farming in Byrnmarl, Canada. As it appeared that he had no intention of ever returning to this country, the court ordered that the money due on the sale of the business be turned over to Mrs. Page. The amount of alimony awarded Mrs. Page was $4,000 a year. She said she had received nothing since last Fall.

WHY IT PAYS

Small mortgages are usually on small houses occupied by the owners, who pay their interest and taxes promptly and keep the property in good order. Such mortgages seldom have to be foreclosed.

A substantial sum invested in this way is well placed.

We have always for sale a large number of these mortgages. They yield 4½%, exempt from personal taxation in this State.

St. Thomas Church in West Farms to Celebrate Silver Jubilee.

St. Thomas's Church in West Farms became a parish twenty-five years ago next Sunday. Its membership then was hardly five hundred souls, and is now over five thousand. To mark the silver jubilee a solemn military mass will be celebrated on the church lawn by the Right Rev. Mgr. McMahon, assisted by the Right Rev. Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney as arch-priest and the Rev. Father Papi, S. J., master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Father McNamee of Mt. St. Vincent and the Rev. Father Lunny, S. J., of Woodstock, Md., as deacons of honor. The deacon of the mass will be the Rev. Bernard F. Brady, and the sub-deacon Rev. James Maloney, with Father Byrne and Louis Herz as masters of ceremonies. Archbishop Bonzano, Papal delegates to the United States, will preside. Gounod's Third Mass will be sung.

The procession will start from the church at 11 A. M., led by the Catholic Protectory Band and cadets, followed by the members of the Holy Name Society. The ministers of the mass will be preceded by sixty altar boys in cassock and surplice and the color guard of the Knights of Columbus, as a guard of honor, will escort the Delegate and Bishop Cusack to their respective thrones. The sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Mgr. Lavelle, V. G.

RICH BOSTON GIRL GONE WITH DRIVER

ELOPED, SAYS HER FATHER

Descriptions of Couple Sent to Many Cities, with Orders to Arrest Girl and Prevent Her Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 2.—An alleged elopement which has stirred the police of New England and Eastern Canada to activity became known today when J. H. Hallian, a Boston business man, whose Summer residence is at Hull, issued a frantic appeal for aid in the search for his daughter, Fern Hallian, 18 years old. Mr. Hallian said the girl disappeared last evening under circumstances which caused her parents to fear that she had eloped with Louis Eiseman, 23 years old, of the West End. He has been employed by the family as a chauffeur for about a year.

"I am anxious to have the couple arrested before they get married," said Mr. Hallian. "My daughter left her home early last evening to attend a moving-picture show near the Bayside station, and when she had not returned at a late hour we began a search for her, because we were anxious for her safety. We learned that she had been seen walking in Nantasket Avenue at 8:45 P. M. in the company of Eiseman."

Beyond that fact, the only thing learned by Mr. Hallian was that the couple were driven in an automobile to the Boston & Maine Railroad station.

"We have asked the police of all cities in Maine, chiefly Portland, and those of Montreal and Quebec to be on the watch for them," said the father. "I am anxious to have them arrested, to prevent their marriage."

Describing his daughter, Mr. Hallian said:

"Fern is 5 feet 11 inches tall and she wore a black gown, white tennis shoes, a shaggy yellow automobile coat, and a white Panama hat having a blue and white band about it and with a rubber band under her chin. She also wore a green veil about her hat and around her neck.

"I do not believe my daughter had more than $3 or $4 in money, although she wore some very valuable jewels at the time she disappeared. She had on two very valuable bracelets, a signet ring having her initials, 'F. H.,' upon the shield, and there were two valuable diamonds set one on each side of the shield of the ring. She also wore rings set with amethysts, turquoises, and opals.

"Eiseman had considerable money to his credit in savings banks, because he was frugal, and I fear the young man has drawn this money from his banks and carried it away with him to finance the proposed wedding trip. He is short and stocky and has a prominent nose."

While telling of the disappearance of his daughter Mr. Hallian was greatly excited, and he said with emphasis: "Understand me, I want the help of the police, the public, and the newspapers in the search for my missing daughter, and I insist that she be arrested when found and detained until I can reach her and take her into my charge."

Miss Hallian was active in the social life of the Summer colony at Hull and very well known in Arlington. Her father is a wealthy Boston business man.

PROF. WM. DRESSLER DEAD.

Composer Was of the Old School of American Musicians.

Prof. William Dressler, 88 years old, one of the last of the old school of American musicians, died yesterday at his home, 140 West Sixteenth Street. He was born in Nottingham, England, and his father was at one time Court Flutist to the King of Saxony. Mr. Dressler was graduated from the Cologne Conservatory of Music in 1847. Shortly after, he was first violinist of the Opera House in Wiesbaden and then became Conductor.

He came to this country in the early fifties as solo pianist and accompanist to Ole Bull. After traveling several seasons with concert companies, Mr. Dressler settled in this city and devoted himself to teaching, playing in churches and composing. He was a former choirmaster and organist of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church. He played in other churches, among them St. Charles Borromeo's, St. Peter's Roman Catholic in Brooklyn, and St. Peter's in Jersey City, where he remained for eighteen years. This long term in Catholic churches led him to compose much music for their services and many of his compositions have been used all over the world.

Prof. Dressler was for many years musical editor for the old publishing house of William Hall & Son & J. L. Peters. Mr. Dressler married Miss May Hyde of Norwich, Conn. He is survived by three children, all musicians. One daughter, Miss Mathilde Dressler, is a 'cellist, and Louis R. Dressler, his son, is organist and director of music at All Souls Unitarian Church.

Miss Mary Isabella Forsythe.

Miss Mary Isabella Forsythe, former Regent for the State of New York of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died at her home in Kingston, N. Y. She was a daughter of James C. Forsythe, and had been for years prominent in the work of the Daughters, the Colonial Dames, and other patriotic organizations. She founded the Industrial Home for Homeless Children in Kingston.

SIR BENJAMIN STONE DEAD.

Noted Photographer and Author of Books of Travel Was 76.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 2.—Sir Benjamin Stone, photographer and author of books on travel, died today. He was born at Birmingham in 1838.

Sir Benjamin Stone was a Commissioner for the St. Louis Exhibition. He was President of the National Photographic Record Association. He was formerly a manufacturer in Birmingham and later was Mayor of Sutton-Coldfield five times. In 1911 he was appointed by the King official photographer for the coronation. From 1895 to 1909 he was a Member of Parliament from East Birmingham.

Sir Benjamin traveled widely in Japan, China, the West Indies, the Rocky Mountains of British Columbia, Vancouver, Asia Minor, the Amazon River country, and Europe generally. His publications include books of travel on Japan, Spain, Brazil, and Norway, a "History of Lichfield Cathedral," and many scientific articles.

Mrs. Robert Hale Ives Goddard.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 2.—Mrs. Rebekah Burnet Groesbeck Goddard, wife of Robert Hale Ives Goddard, died at her home, Hopeton House, 100 Hope Street, early today. Mrs. Goddard was the daughter of William S. Groesbeck of Cincinnati, O., where she was born and educated. Her father was a native of New York City, but he went to Ohio when a young man, was graduated from Miami University there, studied law and later attained national distinction in his profession. Mr. and Mrs. Goddard were married in 1871 and came here immediately to live. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and a leader in many social and charitable movements. For many years she had been a communicant of St. Stephen's Church. Mrs. Goddard is survived by her husband and two children, Madeleine, wife of the Marquis d'Aligne, of Paris, France, and Robert Hale Ives Goddard, Jr., who married Miss Margaret Hazard, daughter of Rowland G. Hazard of Peacedale.

Evlyn D. Cummings.

Evlyn D. Cummings, Vice President of the Singer Sewing Machine Company until last January, died on Tuesday at the Hotel St. Andrew, Seventy-second Street and Broadway. Mr. Cummings was born in West Lebanon, N. Y., and entered the employ of the Singer Manufacturing Company in 1873 as a canvassing salesman. He was steadily promoted until after thirty-one years' service he was made Vice President of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, which position he held for nine years, only retiring on account of continued ill-health. His funeral will be held today at the Rutgers Presbyterian Church, at Broadway and Seventy-third Street, and will be attended by the officials of the Singer Company, who will accompany the body to Hudson, N. Y., where the burial will take place.

Dr. R. A. Douglas-Lithgow,
Author of "Heredity: A Study," etc.
8vo. Illustrated. Map. $2.50 net.

This is a book of far more than local interest. In a most entertaining manner the author has told the story of this quaint island world, so wholly individual in its type, from the earliest times to the present, with due attention to the decline of the whaling industry; and everywhere there is a delightful individuality of style that has a charm all its own. [illegible] a "find" of "off-islanders."

Aside from the reading-charm, this history—one is tempted to write "biography," [illegible] personality is awakened—has a [illegible] events and customs.

DEPOSIT AGREEMENT FOR CLAFLIN NOTES

Noteholders' Committee Sends It Out with a Statement of the Situation.

OTHER INDEBTEDNESS LIGHT

Paper the Company Indorsed for Subsidiaries to be Held Separately for the Maker's Creditors.

The committee formed to protect the interests of the holders of the notes indorsed by the H. B. Claflin Company sent out last night its circular letter to such noteholders, inclosing copies of the agreement under which they are invited to deposit their claims. Transferable receipts will be issued for the notes so deposited.

"The situation," says the committee, "appears at present to be as follows: The H. B. Claflin Company had outstanding no direct or primary obligations upon notes executed by it, and, excluding its merchandise indebtedness, obligations upon leases, and letters of credit, its sole indebtedness is its contingent liability upon, approximately, $30,000,000 of notes which are commonly known as 'Claflin receivables or indorsements.'

"The committee believes that the only notes so indorsed and discounted by the H. B. Claflin Company were notes executed by some twenty-seven corporations, practically all of the stock of each of which corporations was formerly owned by John Claflin individually.

"Notes executed by corporations or partnerships in which there was not this Claflin ownership were not discounted by the Claflin Company and are not now outstanding. The committee invites the deposit of all notes bearing the H. B. Claflin Company indorsement, because it is apparent that the affairs of all of the companies which executed notes indorsed by the H. B. Claflin Company are now involved with that corporation.

"The committee wishes to assure depositors that proof of the respective notes will be filed against the makers, and efforts will be made to collect as large a portion of the notes from the makers as is possible, thus reducing the contingent liability of the indorser. The committee will proceed against each of the makers on behalf of all noteholders holding obligations of that maker and will obtain information about each of the corporation makers, and will transmit such information to the parties interested. The policy of the committee will be that the assets of each maker should be separately held for the benefit of that maker's creditors, and not confused with the assets of other corporations.

"The committee wishes to emphasize that the members of the committee represent institutions holding notes purchased through note brokers or discounted by the company with its depositary banks, and that all of the notes are of the same general character.

"Receivers have already been appointed for a large number of these corporations, and others will be appointed in a few days. An attempt is being made to obviate the appointment of receivers for some two or three of these corporations, and for that reason a list is not given of the stores not now in the hands of receivers. There is inclosed, however, a list showing the companies for which, as the committee is informed, receivers have already been appointed.

"The committee will be glad to answer any inquiries from time to time, and trusts that it will have the co-operation of all the noteholders, and it will be helpful if there is no delay in the deposit of the notes with one of the depositaries of the committee."

The corporations referred to as being now in the hands of receivers, according to the committee's information, are:

Bedford & Co.	Brooklyn, N. Y.
J. Bacon & Sons	Louisville, Ky.
Castner-Knott D. G. Co.	Nashville, Tenn.
M. J. Connell Co.	Butte, Mont.
Defender Mfg. Co.	New York City
The Fair Co.	Cincinnati, Ohio
Joslin Dry Goods Co.	Denver, Col.
Kline Brothers	Altoona, Penn.
Lord & Gage	Reading, Penn.
Lion Dry Goods Co.	Toledo, Ohio
Geo. W. McAlpin Co.	Cincinnati, Ohio
Montgomery Fair	Montgomery, Ala.
People's Store Co.	Tacoma, Wash.
Root Dry Goods Co.	Terre Haute, Ind.
Spring Dry Goods Co.	Grand Rapids, Mich.
Whitehouse Co.	Spokane, Wash.
J. B. White & Co.	Augusta, Ga.
H. Batterman Co.	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Watts, Rettew & Clay	Norfolk, Va.
Thos. C. Watkins, Ltd.	Hamilton, Canada
Hennessy Co.	Butte, Mont.
MacDougall & Southwick Co.	Seattle, Wash.
Jones Store Co.	Kansas City, Mo.

The committee signing the letters consists of James S. Alexander, Chairman, President of the National Bank of Commerce in New York; Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank, New York; Howland Davis of Blake Bros. & Co., note brokers, New York; William T. Elliott, President of the Central National Bank, Philadelphia; Charles W. Folds of Hathaway, Smith, Folds & Co., note brokers, Chicago; Ernest A. Hamill, President of the Corn Exchange National Bank, Chicago; Seward Prosser, President of the Liberty National Bank, New York; Philip Stockton, President of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, and Festus J. Wade, President of the Mercantile Trust Company, St. Louis. B. W. Jones, 16 Wall Street, is Secretary of the committee. Its depositary is the Bankers' Trust Company, and the Northern Trust Company of Chicago, the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia, and the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston are agents of the depositary.

The deposit agreement recites that it is desirable that the noteholders should take immediate and concerted action for realizing on their notes by liquidation, collection, compromise, composition, reorganization, readjustment, or otherwise, for enforcing their rights, or for in some way reorganizing, readjusting, or settling the affairs of the Claflin Company and of the other corporations whose notes it indorsed, and any other corporation or concern in which the Claflin Company may be interested, so that the assets shall best be conserved.

Under the terms of the agreement the committee may fix the period within which holders of notes may deposit them, and extend or renew such periods and on such terms and conditions as they may deem proper. It is authorized and requested to formulate a plan and agreement for the reorganization of the Claflin Company or of any of its allied concerns and subsidiaries, or the readjustment or settlement of its or their obligations, or of any of them, and the discharge of the receivers, or in the discretion of the committee, to collect, compromise or otherwise adjust the notes without a reorganization.

Holders of certificates of deposit who shall not assent to such plan and agreement, if any is formulated, may at any time before a date to be specified, surrender such certificates and withdraw their deposited notes on payment of their pro rata shares, based upon the face value of the notes, of the expenses and disbursements of the committee, not including any compensation to the committee.

If the committee fails on or before July 1, 1915, to declare its intention either to attempt to collect, compromise, or otherwise adjust the notes without reorganization or to propose or approve a plan and agreement for reorganizing, readjusting, or settling the affairs of the Claflin Company or any one or more of the other corporations, the holders of certificates of deposit will be entitled, upon demand, to receive back the notes, upon surrender of the certificates.

Any member of the committee and the depositary and any of its officers, employes, or agents may become pecuniarily interested under any contract, syndicate, or reorganization connected with the affairs of the Claflin Company or of any of the corporations or concerns.

The committee is to be the sole judge as to when and whether sufficient amount of the notes have been deposited to warrant the carrying out of any of the purposes of the agreement, including declaring effective any plan and agreement that may be formulated by it.

The time within which the receivers of the H. B. Claflin Company and the Defender Manufacturing Company must call a general meeting of creditors, was extended yesterday by Judge Hand in the United States District Court. The ten days' notice of the meeting need not now be sent out till July 14, so that the meeting may not be held before July 24.

Messrs. Martindale and Juilliard, the receivers, in making application for this extension, explained that their accountants were at work on the books of the local companies and would be through in time for a meeting on July 14, as originally directed by the court, but that the reports of accountants compiling figures from the books of the twenty-seven companies in other cities, which were owned by John Claflin, could not finish up by that time.

POLL BOOKS IN EVIDENCE.

Supt. Voorhis's Counsel Attacks Municipal Research Bureau.

Hearing of the charges of incompetency, negligence, and dereliction of duty against State Supt. of Election of the Metropolitan District John R. Voorhis was continued yesterday at the Bar Association before ex-Judge John D. McMahon of Rome, N. Y., Gov. Glynn's special investigator. Leslie J. Tompkins, counsel for Supt. Voorhis, recalled James A. Taylor, an employe of the Bureau of Municipal Research, who investigated the Superintendent's office last year and made recommendations to Mr. Voorhis. Mr. Tompkins tried to get Taylor to admit that the bureau had started the investigation only after a prospective contributor to the Honest Ballot Association had forced it.

"Isn't it a fact," asked Mr. Tompkins, "that a man who had been asked to subscribe liberally to the Honest Ballot Association came to the Bureau of Municipal Reasearch and asked what the association amounted to? Don't you know that this investigation of Supt. Voorhis is directly due to the query of this wealthy man as to whether the Honest Ballot Association was really doing something worth while?"

"I do not know that," said the witness.

"Well, we know it," retorted the attorney.

Many poll books of 1912 and 1913 were produced in evidence after W. Cleveland Runyon, attorney for the Honest Ballot Association, had said that he would prove negligence on the part of Supt. Voorhis through them. He charged that forty voters against whom complaints had been made to the Superintendent had subsequently been allowed to enter their names in the poll books and vote without interference.

Mr. Taylor was made to tell all he knew about the Bureau of Municipal Research. He said William H. Allen and Frederick A. Cleveland received salaries. Mr. Taylor admitted that he had not had much experience with election law, and the attorneys for the defense tried to discredit in this way the investigation which Taylor conducted for the bureau. Other witnesses were John J. O'Donnell, a clerk of the Board of Elections, who brought the poll books with him, and Charles Hughes, secretary to the State Superintendent of Election. The hearing will be resumed at the Bar Association next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

FREED IN COURT, BUT HELD.

Police Detain Two Men Until They Get Them Indicted.

After Magistrate Campbell in Yorkville Court had dismissed the case against Frank Belsky of 92 Second Street and Patrick Smith of 320 East Twenty-fifth Street, arraigned for having burglars' tools in their possession, the prisoners were detained by the police yesterday until the General Sessions Grand Jury indicted them. Legally the men could not have been detained, but they remained ignorant of their rights long enough for the detectives to appear before the Grand Jury, have them indicted, and rearrest them on bench warwants.

The two were arrested on Saturday evening after three detectives had trailed them for more than an hour on Thirtieth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue. A number of loft thefts had been reported from that vicinity. When searched Belsky was found to have a so-called "jimmy" and a screwdriver concealed under his shirt. Smith had two small chisels.

Detectives Dribben, Cohen, and Fischel, who arrested the men, appeared as witnesses against them and testified as to their capture and the tools found on them. The prisoners admitted they had the tools, but denied that they were burglars' tools. Assistant District Attorney Bozzo asked that the men be held for the Grand Jury, but Magistrate Campbell discharged them.

Discussing his action last night Magistrate Campbell said:

"After a long hearing I decided there was not sufficient evidence to hold these men. The tool described as a 'jimmy' they described as an automobile tool. One of the men produced his brother, who swore that he had sent him for the tools. The other said that he was taking the tools to an automobile man, and the man testified to that effect. The officers produced nothing which proved criminal intent."

CAPT. RILEY'S BAIL BOND.

Whitman Won't Oppose Policeman's Move to Dismiss It.

Judge Crain in General Sessions will act today on a motion to dismiss bail in the case of former Police Captain Dominick Riley, who is under indictment for bribery. District Attorney Whitman will not oppose the motion. The amount of bail is $5,000.

Riley was indicted on Dec. 31, 1913, on a charge of accepting a bribe from Alexander Cohen, a former policeman, to allow George McRea and Frank Tarbeaux to work unmolested at a fake wiretapping game. Cohen was the principal witness against Riley, and the only corroboration was the testimony of a bartender, who swore that Riley got some money left in an envelope in a Bowery saloon.

Frank Aranow, Riley's counsel, has pointed out to the District Attorney that the time set for Riley's visit to the saloon was two weeks after the saloon was closed. If no corroboration can be obtained by October, the District Attorney will move for the dismissal of the indictment.

WOULD END REICHMAN CASES

Whitman Moves to Dismiss Two Grand Larceny Indictments.

District Attorney Whitman moved yesterday before Judge Crain in General Sessions for the dismissal of two grand larceny indictments against Joseph B. Reichman, former President of the Carnegie Trust Company, who was pardoned by Gov. Glynn on his conviction on a third indicement. Judge Crain reserved decision.

Reichman was convicted as a result of the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company and sentenced to four and a half months' imprisonment, but stayed out of jail pending his appeal on a certificate of reasonable doubt. Before the appeal was decided Gov. Glynn pardoned him.

In asking that the two remaining indictments be dismissed, the District Attorney merely called attention to the pardon.

Surgeons Sail for London.

Fifty-five well-known surgeons from New York and other large cities in the United States sailed yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic for London to attend the International Congress of Clinical Surgeons from Aug. 3 to 8. A second delegation will leave on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska for London tomorrow. It will include Dr. Florence Ward, one of the leading surgeons on the Pacific Coast, who is scheduled to read a paper at the Congress.

Locomotives Smoke; Fined $500.

The New Haven Railroad was fined $500 in the Court of Special Sessions, Bronx County, yesterday on a charge of violating the smoke ordinance. Forty exhibits of smoking locomotives and cinder-strewn property were made. The action was brought by the Department of Health.

FINDS LEASED WIRE ABUSES PERSISTENT

BIG CONTRACTS CANCELED

Public Lines Now Almost as Efficient as Private — Press Associations Best Patrons.

The investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission into alleged abuses in the use of wires leased from telegraph and telephone companies was continued yesterday at the Custom House. Commissioner H. C. Hall presided part of the time, and S. N. Smith, attorney for the commission, presided in his absence.

The witnesses were cross-examined by Henry Wollman, representing Logan & Bryan, a big "wire house," and D. A. Frank, counsel for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Their direct testimony was brought out by A. G. Gutheim, examiner for the commission. Henry S. Robins spoke for the Chicago Grain Dealers' Association, which contends that the brokers using leased wires have a big advantage over those who have to rely on public wires.

The chief abuse complained of is the alleged use of the leased wires by outsiders, which is forbidden by law. Most of the lessees who testified said this had been almost entirely eliminated since the traffic was put under the jurisdiction of the commission, but Charles A. Wilson, General Superintendent of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, said irregular use of the wires was frequent.

"All kinds of things are attempted on the wires all the time," he said. "It's a lively proposition to watch them."

In the last four or five years, he said, the company had canceled leases amounting to $400,000 or $500,000 a year because of these irregularities. At points where messages are "repeated" from one wire to another, he explained, it was possible for officials of the company to watch them, much as a telephone operator might listen to a conversation. Many of the cancellations were because the wires were found to be in use for the transmission of race track and bucket shop business. This testimony did not refer to wires actually leased by brokers, but to those engaged ostensibly for brokerage business.

Mr. Wilson said he was surprised that the telegraph companies did not use more diligence in ascertaining what went over their leased wires. He filed a statement of the company's leased wire business, as both of the telegraph companies had done on Wednesday. Five-sixths of the lessees, he said, preferred to use the wire for telegraph purposes, and in such cases it was used by the company simultaneously for telephone traffic.

Mr. Wollman's cross-examination of witnesses brought out that when messages were sent over brokers' wires for outsiders it was usually for a broker acting for the lessee or in connection with business in which both had interests. He also drew from witnesses that used public wires that their transactions were not delayed, but were handled almost as quickly as over leased wires.

N. J. Miller of Miller & Co., brokers in stocks, bonds, and commodities, was asked by Mr. Gutheim if a number of Chicago firms which he named sent messages over the firm's leased wires. Mr. Miller said two of the firms mentioned, who were designated by Miller & Co. as correspondents, did send messages over his leased wires. He said the messages were sent for compensation, a stipulated amount per month. The messages, he said, were orders, news, and gossip about the market.

Mr. Miller said his firm used a private closed wire instead of the usual commercial message on grounds of economy, quickness of dispatch, and privacy. He said no person or firm was permitted to use the wire except designated correspondents and the firm's own branch offices.

W. J. Brainard, of the Brainard Commission Company, grain brokers, of New York, testified that he had sent messages to E. W. Wagner & Co. of Chicago over the private wire leased by C. I. Hudson & Co. Mr. Brainard said that within the last ten days he had sent messages over leased wires of other concerns. eH said it was a matter of business, and the reason he went to these lessees of private wires was because he did business with them and they kept the wires for the use of their customers.

Robert Brandt, another broker, testified that by the courtesy of Lamson Brothers he had, not more than half a dozen times, sent messages over their wires. He said the messages were asking for certain information, and he asked Lamson Brothers' operator to get it for him. He said he regarded the private leased wire as a big asset in the brokerage business.

William Knight, a grain broker, said he had leased a wire in connection with Hornblower & Weeks, for which he paid Hornblower & Weeks $6,000 a year. He said he had no relation with the telegraph company in regard to the leased wire, and no relation with Hornblower & Weeks other than that of leasing the wire. Mr. Knight said he had used the private wires of other brokers with whom he was doing business. At another time he said he had been on a private leased wire with two stock brokers. Business has not been so good recently, he said, that a public wire would not serve a broker as well as a private wire for receiving or sending orders.

Robert Gwathmey, New York agent for the Bartlett-Frazier Company; Henry R. Proctor, agent for the Hancock Grain Company, and Edward Beaddy, grain broker, all told of the use of private wires by others than the lessess.

The use of leased wires for press dispatches was also touched on. C. C. Adams, Vice President of the Postal Telegraph Company, said the company considered that in case of a disaster the public could be better served by the press associations than by general public messages. He said that during the Ohio flood there were several hours that the Postal had just one wire to Cincinnati. For two or three hours that wire was given over entirely to the Associated Press, with the belief that the public might thereby be best served. He said the Postal made a custom of giving every facility possible to the press associations.

Mr. Wollman asked Mr. Adams to name the principal classes of business represented by leased wires. Mr. Adams said the press associations were the largest leased wire customers. Next in order were the various classes of brokers. A few lines were leased by the steel industry and the packing industry. These, he said, covered the bulk of leased wires. Various commercial houses had private wires connecting stores in different cities. Manufacturing establishments, he said, maintained similar service. Mercantile houses and manufacturers used the telephone more extensively than the telegraph, he said.

Mr. Wollman asked Mr. Adams if it would not be possible by the telegraph companies co-operating with their principal leased wire customers to stop the misuse of the wires by outsiders sending commercial messages over leased wires. Mr. Adams said the users of leased wires could stop the abuse if they wanted to.

He said he regarded the principal lessees of private wires as sincere in their desire to live up to their contracts. The bulk of the abuse, he said, was by the smaller concerns using leased wires. The hearing will go on today.

NEW BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

1914 Edition of the Phillips Publication Just Issued.

The Phillips Business Directory of New York City for 1914 has just been issued, and contains more names and listings than ever before. There are 1,218 pages, on which the marginal advertising does not impair the usefulness of the book, as is often the case in such works. The index is arranged alphabetically, and has been simplified until any firm wanted may be found with ease. This Business Directory was first published in 1870, and this is the forty-fourth edition.

There is only one possible drawback to the Directory; at the head of the index is the admonition: "To find a name, you must know how to spell it." The list of names covers every trade, business, and profession in the city.

NEW COURT HOUSE CONTRACTS CLOSED

Guy Lowell's Circular Design Approved and Map of Modified Site Filed.

BORING TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Court Will Be Asked Next Week to Appoint Condemnation Commissioners for New Tract.

As the result of steps taken yesterday by the Board of Estimate and the Court House Board, the modification of the site for the new Court House was accomplished, the preliminary plan for Guy Lowell's circular building was approved, and the final contract with Mr. Lowell, as architect of the Court House, was authorized. The map of the new site was filed in the Register's office, and the city map has been changed therefor so that the district south and east of the original site has been set apart for Court House purposes.

When the Court House matter was taken up by the Board of Estimate it was voted upon without discussion. The hearing, in which active opposition had been shown to the plan by the Rev. Father Luke Evers and other members of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church and by Lawrence M. B. McGuire on behalf of the Real Estate Board, had been closed, President McAneny moved the necessary resolutions, and the board permitted the roll pledging the city to the expenditure of another $4,000,000 on the site to be called in silence.

This vote was taken just before the luncheon adjournment, and immediately afterward the Court House Board met in its offices at 115 Broadway and the certified copies of the resolutions of the Board of Estimate were put before it. These directed that immediate action should be taken in acquiring the additional land required and approved the preliminary plan of the new building. The Court House Board then adopted and signed the map, and it was sent forthwith to the Register's office for filing.

Application will probably be made to the Supreme Court next week for the appointment of Commissioners to condemn the tract thus added to the site. It consists of part of the block bounded by Duane Street, Park Row, Pearl Street, and City Hall Place; part of the block bounded by Pearl, Park and Baxter Streets and Park Row, and the entire block bounded by City Hall Place, Duane, Park, and Pearl Streets. It involves also the closing of City Hall Place and Pearl Street between Park Street and Park Row, and the substitution of other thoroughfares.

The city can take title to this property at any time after three months have elapsed from the beginning of the condemnation proceedings, but it has not been decided when it will do so. President McAneny of the Aldermen has pledged himself to consult with Cardinal Farley on his return from Rome as to the future of St. Andrew's Church, and as only a small part of the tract to be acquired will be used for the actual site of the Court House, the present buildings may be permitted to stand for some time without delaying the construction operations.

The contract with the architect, Guy Lowell, was approved by the Board of Estimate as a separate item. This grants him 6 per cent. of the cost of the new Court House, which it is expected will be $10,000,000. Out of the $600,000 he will thus obtain Mr. Lowell must pay all his office expenses, and retain at his own cost whatever experts the Court House Board may from time to time direct him to consult on difficult problems. It is reckoned that he will receive in the end about $100,000 to $150,000 for a job which will take him nearly ten years.

The Board of Estimate also appropriated $80,000 for the current expenses of the Court House Board. President McAneny said that these had been pared down to the last cent and the vote was absolutely necessary to carry on the work. Of this sum $14,000 is to be expended in borings on the new site. These are to ascertain the nature of the subsoil as a guide to the architect and the consulting engineer of the board, E. P. Goodrich, in deciding on the exact spot on which the building will be begun.

The contracts for the borings will be let forthwith, and during the Summer the work of clearing that part of the old site to be used for Court House purposes will continue. Meanwhile President McAneny has submitted to a committee of architects a tentative plan which has been drawn for a circular street around the new Court House and a diagonal thoroughfare from the back of the Municipal Building to the Manhattan Bridge Plaza.

Hopes for a Union of Methodists.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 2.—Resolutions pledging the Epworth League to work for a united Methodism, North and South, were adopted at several of the sectional meetings of the ninth international convention here today.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Decisions by the Appraisers in a Variety of Cases.

It was decided yesterday by the General Appraisers that imitation coral strung on wire is not to be regarded under the tariff law as imitation precious stones. The coral, which was imported by the F. William Gertzen Company, was returned for duty under the act of 1909 at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of metal and paste. The importers claimed a rate of 20 per cent. as imitation gems or for 35 per cent. as beads. Neither of the claims are held by the board to be applicable, the Collector being affirmed.

The General Electric Company lost in a controversy dealing with the classification under the old law of so-called parabolic mirrors, otherwise commonly known as reflectors. It was testified that 90 per cent. of those imported are purchased by the United States Government for use in searchlights on ships of war. The Collector took duty at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for articles of glass not specially provided for. The articles were claimed properly dutiable at 11 cents per square foot and 5 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraphs 103 and 104 as cast polished plate glass, silvered or bent. A further contention was that if the mirrors are imported in metal frames the goods are dutiable at 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of metal. Judge Sullivan overruled the protest. The General Electric Company will carry the issue to the Court of Customs Appeals.

The attempt of importers to enter embroidery machines at the rate of duty accruing on sewing machines under the act of 1909 resulted in failure. They were classified by the Collector here under the provision in the law for such machines with duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem. The importers claimed the articles properly dutiable at only 30 per cent. under Paragraph 197 as "sewing machines." Judge Fischer, in overruling the protests, points out the difference between the two classes of machines. The Collector's assessment is affirmed. If the principle laid down in the board's decision is followed in the construction of the Tariff act of 1913 embroidery machines will pay 25 per cent. ad valorem duty under Paragraph 165, while sewing machines, if valued at not over $75, enter free. The importers included O. J. Ahlstrom and H. Bischoff & Co.

Richard Gibson was overruled in a protest arising under the Tariff act of 1897, relating to the classification of chemical glassware. Duty was collected at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 100 as glassware blown in a mold. The importer claimed duty at 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of glass, or at 40 per cent. under Paragraph 99. While Judge Sullivan says in his decision that there seems to be conflict of the authorities with reference to Paragraph 100 of the Dingley tariff, the testimnoy in the present case supports the Collector's assessment.

CROP OUTLOOK ABROAD.

Estimates for Hungary Shows Decline—Spain and Australia Advance.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Estimates of crop production in foreign countries received by cable today from the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome by the Department of Agriculture showed:

Hungary—Wheat, 133,509,000 bushels, 11.8 per cent. less than last year; rye, 50,986,000 bushels, 2.6 per cent. less.

Spain—Wheat, 120,314,000 bushels, 7 per cent. more than last year; rye, 29,012,000 bushels, 3.9 per cent. more; barley, 73,698,000 bushels, 7.2 per cent. more; oats, 30,572,000 bushels, 2.7 per cent. more.

Australia—Wheat, 103,874,000 bushels, 12.9 per cent. more than last year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

J. J. Roeder, who was formerly resident buyer of ready-to-wear lines for Loveman, Joseph & Loeb of Birmingham, Ala., and Cohen Brothers of Jacksonville, Fla., will shortly open a general buying office at 303 Fifth Avenue. It is said that he has already obtained several accounts.

At a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Silk Association of America, held yesterday in the rooms of the association at 354 Fourth Avenue, the following Pennsylvania firms were elected to membership: Berkshire Knitting Mills, Reading; Crane Brothers, Inc., Kingston; Emaus Silk Company, Emaus; Feldhedge Silk Manufacturing Company, Egypt; Lehigh Silk Dyeing Company, Allentown; McBride Brothers, Fullerton; The Meinig, E. Richard Company, Reading; The Narrow Fabric Company, Reading; Stunzi Sons Silk Company, Inc., Reading, and the Widmer Silk Company, Inc., Allentown.

The Board of United States General Appraisers will hold no more calendar calls of customs protest cases until after Labor Day. Only the more pressing tariff cases will be given hearings in the chambers of the members of the tribunal during the Summer. Judge McClelland is on his way to Europe and will not return until the middle of September. Other members are planning vacations of a month or longer. Each member of the clerical force is also entitled to a month off with full pay. Judge Somerville, having recovered from a long illness, plans to remain on duty during the Summer.

A supplement to the customs tariff of Cuba bringing up to date Tariff Series No. 27, published in 1911, has just been issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. It contains all the changes made since the issue in 1911, including those covered by Tariff Series No. 27A, now out of print. Copies may be obtained by application to the bureau headquarters in Washington, while copies of Series No. 27 are for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, for 10 cents.

DOING HOUSECLEANING.

Disposing of Customs Claims That Have Been Abandoned.

Judge Sullivan, President of the Board of United States General Appraisers, said yesterday he had decided to cut the proverbial red tape which for years has kept a great number of importers' abandoned protests cluttering up the files of the tribunal. They include claims filed under the Tariff acts of 1894, 1897, and 1909, and were abandoned by merchants or their attorneys owing to a variety of causes, among them being adverse decisions by the higher courts on test tariff questions affecting identical merchandise, inability to secure evidence in support of contentions, and for other reasons.

The procedure in the past has required the members of the board to go through practically the same routine with abandoned protests as with live issues. This has taken up much valuable time, which President Sullivan thinks had better be devoted to questions of real value. It is now proposed to waive the formality of notifying importers and lawyers when abandoned cases are up for decision and go ahead with their determination without further formalities. Since merchants or their legal representatives abandoned the protests the board sees no reason for holding them on the files any longer.

A start in this direction was made yesterday when several hundred protests from importers in all sections of the country were taken off the files and marked "overruled." The clean-up campaign just inaugurated will, it was estimated yesterday, dispose of 40,000 cases in a comparatively short time.

HOLLINGS EXONERATED.

Hearing of Charges Against Public Stores Examiner Ends.

John K. Sague, Appraiser of the Port, concluded yesterday his inquiry into charges preferred against J. G. Hollings, an Examiner of cotton goods at the Public Stores, and forwarded his recommendations to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. Hollings was charged with making incorrect returns on merchandise and with insubordination. He was suspended and had a hearing before the Appraiser.

The Appraiser said yesterday that the testimony developed no wrongdoing on the part of the Examiner, but did prove that he had erred in some of his classifications. As the evidence showed considerable friction between Hollings and other officials, the Appraiser asks the approval of the Treasury Department in assigning the Examiner to another division.

LINE GETS NEW PIER.

Austro-American Ships to Leave from Near 39th St. Ferry.

The agents of the Austro-American Line announced yesterday that, beginning on July 10, their steamers will leave from Pier 7, Bush Terminal, South Brooklyn, instead of the present pier, which is at the foot of Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn. The new pier is next to the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry house, within easy reach from Manhattan. New gangways have been constructed and the latest appliances for getting baggage ashore from the steamers as rapidly as possible, so that passengers will not be delayed on arrival in New York, have been installed.

The Kaiser Franz Josef I., which sails at 3 P. M. tomorrow for Trieste with every cabin filled with passengers, will be the last steamer of the line to leave from the old pier, its agents said.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C., and at the branch offices, 315 Custom House, by giving the number of the item referred to.

13,307. CANNED FRUITS, WINES, DRIED FRUITS, &C.—A business man in the United Kingdom desires to negotiate with Am. exporters of tinned fruits or other goods, wines, dried fruits, preserves, &c., in order to secure agencies.

13,308. DICTATION MACHINES.—The Secretary of a prominent and progressive wholesale hardware house in the United Kingdom has manifested an interest in securing the agency for a phonographic machine for registering dictated correspondence, &c. No machines of this type have as yet made their appearance in the district, which has a population of over 1,000,000, and includes a number of good-sized cities. The so-called clipper type of lawn mower would also be of interest.

13,309. TEXTILE FABRICS, HOSIERY, AND SPORTING GOODS.—A European agency is desired for the sale of Am. textile fabrics, hosiery, and sporting goods. The inquirer, who has been engaged in the silk lace and haberdashery business for about twenty years, furnishes references.

13,310. HOSIERY OF ALL KINDS.—A business man in the United Kingdom would like to represent Am. mfrs. and exporters of general lines of hosiery. He states that he already represents a number of German and English mfrs. of these goods, but would like to handle Am. makes.

13,311. CLOTHES CLEANERS, ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES, AND NOVELTIES.—The manager of an electric plant in the Far East desires quotations on clothes cleaners, to be used with either 200 or 210 volts direct current. He would also be interested in any electric appliances or novelties.

13,312. AGENCIES FOR AMERICAN GOODS.—A member of a business house in the Philippines is at present in China for the purpose of looking into commercial conditions in a certain region, with a view to establishing a branch house to introduce Am. goods.

GET ALLYN HOUSE OPTION.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 2.—Merry & Boomer, managers of the Hotel McAlpin in New York and the Hotel Taft in New Haven, who are heading a syndicate to erect a $2,000,000 modern hotel in this city, announced today that they had secured an option until Aug. 28 on the Allyn House, the leading old-line hotel in this city, conspicuously located at Trumbull and Asylum Streets. At the Allyn House tonight it was said that the deal probably would be put through, with John J. Dahill, manager of the Allyn House, as manager of the new house.

Among those said to be backing the syndicate are Morton F. Plant, the New London millionaire, and Major Louis E. Stoddard, the New Haven polo player, who is a member of Gov. Baldwin's staff. The Aetna Life Insurance Company, of which ex-Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley is President, is said to be willing to take a $600,000 mortgage on the project, and Hartford people who have been subscribing to various hotel promotions for the last three years now feel that soon they are to have something tangible.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

In Town.

EATON-IVES-STURGIS-WALTON COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed the Central Trust Company of Illinois ancillary receiver for the property here of the book publishing firm of the Eaton-Ives-Sturgis-Walton Company of 31 East Twenty-seventh Street, whose principal place of business is in Chicago, following the filing in Chicago on Wednesday of a petition in bankruptcy. The assets here are estimated at $50,000. The company was incorporated here in February, 1914, with a capital of $300,000, and was a consolidation of Sturgis & Walton of this city and Eaton & Ives of Chicago.

FREDERICK MEYER, INC., manufacturer of women's custom shoes at 15 West Forty-fifth Street, has filed a petition with liabilities of $7,778 and assets of unknown value. The largest creditor is Miriam K. Steckler, $6,000, money loaned. Louis Steckler is Secretary and Treasurer.

HERMANN ELKAN of 115 Nassau Street has filed a petition with liabilities of $4,072 and assets of $2.50. There are only three creditors: Alex Barile of Brooklyn, judgment, for $2,910; John H. Pape of White Plains, judgment, for $1,132, both on bonds in connection with the New York Terraine and Building Company, co-defendant, and the Otis Elevator Company, $29, for repairs.

LEVINSON BROTHERS & CO.—Samuel and Meyer Levinson, who composed the firm of Levinson Brothers & Co., clothing manufacturers of 27 and 29 West Fourth Street, have filed a petition with liabilities of $17,001 and no assets. Among the creditors are the American Woolen Company, $11,982, and S. Slater & Sons, $850.

HARRY M. ADELSON, manager, of 143 West 140th Street, has filed a petition with liabilities of $14,465 and no assets. Among the creditors are Patrick E. Whalen, $3,600, and Sigmund Adler, $1,500.

JACOB JAGORDA.—A petition has been filed against Jacob Jagorda, shoe dealer at 1,312 Wilkins Avenue, by these creditors: Thomson Crocker Shoe Company, $440; Thomas H. Logan Company, $50, and G. W. Harris Shoe Company, $84.

HARRY L. EBERLE, manager, of 243 West Fourteenth Street, has filed a petition with liabilities of $5,125 and no assets.

HARRY FRIEDMAN, a printing press feeder of 288 Seventh Street, has filed a petition with liabilities of $1,681 and no assets.

CARMEL OIL COMPANY.—Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on May 25 against the Carmel Oil Company of 114 East 110th Street. The referee reported that the petitioners did not prove their allegations.

I. & A. ZADEK.—Judge Hand has dismissed the petition filed on June 10 against I. & A. Zadek, manufacturers of women's hats at 679 Broadway, on a settlement with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar cash.

REISER HAT COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed Bertha Rembaugh receiver for the Reiser Hat Company of 20 and 128 Delancey Street, with authority to carry on his business for twenty days. Assets, $5,000.

JOHN FRISCHKNECHT, importer of embroideries at 13 East Twenty-second Street, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $203,519 and assets of $153,073. Among the creditors are Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, $54,983, secured; Eidaenessische Bank, St. Gallen, $20,000; Eisparnisantalt, St. Gallen, $22,400, secured, and Brettaner & Co., St. Gallen, $29,741.

BELA KANTOR, jobber in dry goods at 1,055 First Avenue, has made an assignment to Nathan M. Abramson. He began business in August, 1913.

ABRAHAM COHEN, dealer in dresses at 60 West Fifteenth Street, has made an assignment to Robert M. Gluck and Leo Schafran.

HARRIS I. PHILLIPS, trading as the Martin Knitting Works at 35 to 39 Sixth Avenue, has made an assignment to Isidore D. Morrison.

SAMUEL ROSENBERG, shoe dealer, of 133 Avenue C, has made an assignment to Benjamin Lesser of Lesser Bros., 299 Broadway.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT.—Trial desired in the County of New York.—ANNA ELIZABETH GERSHEL, Plaintiff, against GEORGE GERSHEL, Defendant.—Summons.—Action for a Separation.

To the above-named defendant:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer on the Plaintiff's Attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default, for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated March 18th, 1914.

CHARLES T. B. ROWE, Plaintiff's Attorney, Office and Post Office Address, 37 Wall Street, Manhattan, New York City.

To George Gershel, the defendant:

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of Hon. Eugene A. Philbin, a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, dated the 9th day of June, 1914, and filed this day, with the complaint, in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, in said State.

Dated June 9th, 1914.

CHARLES T. B. ROWE, Plaintiff's Attorney, Office and Post Office Address, 37 Wall Street, Manhattan, New York City.

When a property gets into trouble, investors very often become panicky and throw over good and bad securities at sacrifice prices. Clever investors know which are the good ones and hold on. We know of two bonds of properties in trouble which we believe are cheap, and would be pleased to receive inquiries.

The FARSIGHTED BUSINESS MAN

makes a systematic distribution of his surplus earnings. Part he puts back into his business, part he invests in Railroad, Municipal and Public Utility Bonds, and part in other kinds of conservative investments. He thus safeguards himself against adverse conditions which might have a particularly bad effect upon some one line of business, upon some one community, or upon some one form of investment. Summed up, the farsighted business man gives heed to the wisdom of diversification.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stock Trading Anticipates the Holiday — The Midyear Money Movements.

The money and investment markets, rather than the stock markets, narrowly speaking, held the centre of attention in the financial world yesterday. Both here and abroad the effects of the half-yearly settlements and payments were shown, but the ease with which the seasonal requirements are being met was strikingly manifest in the decline in discount rates in London to below 2 per cent., and in the absence in our own market of any higher call rate than 2½ per cent. A rise in British consols and a fairly diversified record of bond trading in this market were suggestive of the fact that we are in a period traditionally devoted to the processes of reinvestment.

A decline in French rentes, on the other hand, served as a reminder that the financing of that country's national obligations still lies ahead. But so amply does the success of the forthcoming issue seem to be assured that there is a good deal of reason for accepting the view that after the French loan has been floated the Paris money market will show the influence of the very great additions which have been made to the French gold supply not only through the shipments made from this side, but through the gold drawn from other quarters. The special bids for gold to arrive not later than July 7, which the Bank of France made this week, came too late to attract gold from this side, but they did bring gold in from London. The Bank of France's return yesterday showed another gain of over $16,000,000 in gold, while its circulation and discount items showed the effect of the usual half-yearly demands. That was true also of the statements of the German and English banks, and both of those in addition showed a falling off in cash, which was not large except in the case of the Bank of Germany, whose accounts at this season are subject to violent changes.

The Clearing House operations here resulted in the largest cash balance ever recorded in that institution. An unusual shifting of accounts occurred in connection with the heavy payments for interest and dividends as well as for the principal of maturing obligations on Wednesday. The payments on account of the income tax played its part, too. The excess in the hands of depository banks growing out of these tax payments are being turned over to the Sub-Treasuries, but in overnight balances the Government's deposits in the National banks have been running largely ahead of the amount of bonds held as security for these Government deposits.

Wall Street seemed about to make up its mind yesterday that the rate decision would not be forthcoming this week, and it was all the more willing, therefore, to yield itself to the holiday spirit which was making itself felt in advance of tomorrow's suspension of trading. The dealings on the Stock Exchange, which fell off sharply on Wednesday, were further reduced yesterday, the session's total being less than 90,000 shares. The volume of dealings in bonds was also considerably smaller, but that was due rather to the lessening of activity in such bonds as the Rock Island issues than to the narrowing of the market for bonds as a whole.

The visit of J. P. Morgan to the White House and reports which reached the financial district that President Wilson had undertaken to confer with leading bankers and business men throughout the country were noted with interest. It suggested possibly, it was thought, that the way was being opened to a greater degree of co-operation between business and Government in dealing with the matters which the Government has in hand which bear on business questions.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday copper was firm and slightly higher. Tin was steady; five tons of October sold at 31.25.

Copper—	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Spot	13.40	13.70	Spelter	4.90	5.00

August	13.40	13.60	Antim'y	7.12½	7.25
			Tin	31.00	31.25

The copper market in London yesterday closed strong, spot advancing 12s 6d, to £61 12s 6d, and futures were 13s 9d higher, at £62 6s 3d. Tin was firm, spot being 12s 6d off, at £140 2s 6d, and futures, at £141 15s, were down 10s.

The market ended firm. Spanish pig lead, £19, unchanged. Spelter, £21 10s, down 2s 6d. Cleveland warrants 51s, unchanged.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Poor Month on Missouri Pacific.

Gross earnings of the Missouri Pacific for May reflect continued dullness in the Southwest. Revenues for the eleventh month were $4,624,180, a decrease of $481,000 from the business done last year. Total net income was $1,075,573, a loss of $602,000. The gross earnings for the elven months were $55,106,000, a loss of $2,323,000, while the total net income for that period was $15,123,000, a loss of $822,000. Until the decrease incurred in May the company had maintained its net close to last year's figures.

Big Bank Balances.

Bank balances at the Clearing House yesterday established a new high record, with a total of $50,231,000. The nearest approach to that was made on Feb. 3 of this year, with a total of $48,000,000. Up to Feb. 3 the record was held by the total of $42,000,000, made on Oct. 3, 1905. Yesterday's clearances did not set a new figure, amounting to $666,000,000, as against exchanges totalling $736,461,000 put through on Nov. 3, 1909. Yesterday's big balances resulted from deposits of July 1 interest and dividend payments, and from the large sums received by the Government through the operation of the income tax.

New High for Sears-Roebuck.

Stock of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the big Chicago mail order house, moved up 9⅝ points yesterday to a new high record for the year at 195⅝. The parcel post, which was an important factor in making it unprofitable longer to operate the United States Express Company, has helped the business of the mail order concerns, and yesterday's advance was an appreciation of the increased profits in selling by mail.

And New Low for New Haven.

There have been more unfavorable developments in the affairs of the New Haven in the past year than most railroads encounter in a life time. The company meets one difficulty only to be confronted with another more serious. The passage by the Massachusetts General Assembly of an act enabling the Boston Railroad Holding Company to dispose of its Boston & Maine stocks, with the condition objected to by the New Haven Directors, was responsible yesterday for a further drop in the price of New Haven shares. The road's Directors announced last week that rather than try to sell the B. & M. stock with a proviso allowing the Commonwealth to call for the stock at any time at a price to be fixed by a jury the company would prefer to meet the suit threatened by Attorney General McReynolds to compel a separation from the Boston & Maine. New Haven shares sold yesterday at 63⅝, a new low price.

Little Trading Before Holiday.

The days immediately preceding holidays usually cost the brokers commission, owing to the unwillingness of traders to carry stocks while the markets here are closed. Yesterday's total was not the smallest in recent weeks, but the day's sales amounted to only 88,389 shares, and unless unforeseen developments occur to stir up interest a very dull session is looked for today. On the day before the Fourth last year, with the prospect of a double holiday on the Exchange, sales were 103,144 shares. The smallest day's business in many years preceded the Fourth in 1888, when a low record of 43,935 shares was established. That figure has not been equaled.

The Field for Foreign Branches.

Announcement of the intention of the National City Bank to establish branches under the new Federal Reserve act at Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires has brought out a flood of inquiries from manufacturers who have been kept out of the South American field by the lack of banking facilities. It now appears that other American banks will take advantage of the new law to go into foreign countries to make way for business houses which in the past have been forced to leave the field to the German, British and French exporters. R. O. Bailey and James C. Martine will sail for England on July 7, and will leave Southampton on the 16th for Buenos Aires, where they expect to start preparations for the new branch on Aug. 2.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Investment Stocks Advance in London—Prices Decline in Paris, Weak in Berlin.

LONDON, July 2.—Money and discount rates were easy today.

The stock market opened with a better tone. Home securities and investment stocks advanced on the better Irish outlook and the investment of dividend moneys. Consols gained three-eighths. Continental offerings caused some irregularity in foreign bonds and mining shares, while the uncertain Mexican outlook weakened Mexican securities.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the forenoon. Later the market improved quietly on light buying, and it closed steady.

PARIS, July 2.—Prices declined on the Bourse today.

Three per cent. rentes, 83 francs for the account.

BERLIN, July 2.—Trading was more active, but prices were rather weak on the Boerse today.

ASSAILS AS FARCE SENATE TRUST WORK

"Disgrace," Says Brandegee, "To Foist Half-Baked Legislation on the Country."

SEES INJURY TO BUSINESS

Cold Reception for Newlands's Suggestion of an Early Vote on Trade Commission Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Following the decision of the Senate Democratic caucus that the present session of Congress should continue in session until the pending trust bills are disposed of, Senator Brandegee, Republican, of Connecticut read the majority a sharp lecture today on the manner in which anti-trust legislation was being conducted.

Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa had resumed his speech on the Federal Trade Commission bill, and had deplored the casual manner in which the Democrats were dealing with the problem, when Senator Brandegee interrupted.

"I think it is a disgrace and a farce," said Senator Brandegee, "for the Senate of the United States to have its Judiciary Committee in session considering one far-reaching bill and its Interstate Commerce Committee in session considering another, and a third bill, all three involving the most intricate, far-reaching, and obscure questions, and a corporal's guard of Senators in attendance here, when the Senator who has made a study as exhaustive as that of any one in this body or in the country of all these bills is attempting to explain one of them. It is a disgrace to have his remarks punctured every five minutes by a declaration of one of his colleagues that he observes only four or six Senators on the floor and therefore he suggests the absence of a quorum.

"I call attention to this situation because it is a disgrace and a farce for the Senate and the Congress to attempt to foist upon the country legislation on these fundamental and grave subjects when Senators themselves will not pay any attention to them and when Senators themselves know, with the serious difference of opinion which exists among them, with this system of Senate hearings and Senate sessions going on at the same time, that they, finally, under the whip and spur of party domination and White House influence, are going to be forced, uninformed, to vote yes or no upon a lot of half-baked legislation containing definition which will require years of court decisions to define.

"All this is under the fake plea that the twilight zone under which business has been suffering and halting for years is going to be illuminated, when it does not take more than an Alderman or Councilman who will read the bills to know that, instead of illuminating anything, it is going to obscure hopelessly every subject with which the bills deal, if they are passed in anything like their present form.

"I am glad to hear the Senator say that he will protest against committees preparing any more ill-considered legislation to be dumped upon this body in the heat of Summer and on the eve of a country-wide political campaign until they consider what has already been prepared and vote upon it intelligently. It is not doing justice to the business interests of the country.

"If the business interests of the country realized in what a foolish, not to say contemptuous, manner their gravest affairs were being tampered with and flippantly trifled with by the highest legislative body in the country, there would be a great deal more dissatisfaction and a great deal more drooping in the business world than there is today."

Senator Newlands, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, suggested that the best way to avoid the clashes now resulting from the many demands upon Senators' time would be to vote on the Federal Trade Commission bill tomorrow or Monday.

Senator Cummins refused to take this suggestion seriously. Senator Newlands protested, while the Senate smiled, that he was really in earnest.

Five amendments dealing with the powers of the Federal Trade Commission which were offered by Senator Cummins are now before the Judiciary Committee. The amendments broaden the proposed Trade Commission's authority and empower it to regulate interlocking Directorates and holding companies in connection with industrial corporations and to give the Interstate Commerce Commission the same authority over railroad corporations.

Senator Cummins took up in detail the objection raised by Senator Borah, who opposed the bill on the ground that while the anti-trust laws at present were directed toward fostering competition, the trade commission measure, by making "unfair competition" unlawful was directed to limiting competition. This objection, he said, was in no way justified, and he asserted the measure was designed to aid and supplement the anti-trust laws.

In order to make this point clear, he proposed an amendment providing that no order of the Trade Commission respecting "unfair competition" should have any force or be admissible as evidence in a suit brought under the Sherman law. The amendment would also provide: "Nor shall anything herein contained be construed to alter, amend, or repeal the Sherman anti-trust law, or any part thereof."

Senator Cummins inquired of Senator Newlands whether he wished to have a vote on the Trade Commission bill before these amendments had been considered, and gave notice that in any event he would discuss them in the Senate.

The debate served to show that an immediate vote on the Trade Commission bill was highly improbable.

Senator Newlands, proceeding in optimistic vein, said that the stock and bond bill was a "simple" measure. This statement met with ridicule. Senator Newlands insisted, however, that the committee had about reached a conclusion on what should go into the bill and predicted an early report.

Calls for Briefs in U. P. Suit.

When the suit of James T. McCadden, a preferred stockholder of the Union Pacific Railroad, to enjoin the Directors from distributing $81,000,000 among the common stockholders came before Justice Page yesterday he gave the lawyers until Tuesday next to submit briefs. Mr. McCadden wants the preferred stockholders to share the dividend.

RECEIVERS AGAIN TAKE OVER C., H. & D.

Judson Harmon and R. B. Smith Named by U. S. Court on Bankers Trust Petition.

SECOND TIME FOR HARMON

He Got Road Out of Its Former Difficulties—Default on Bond Interest the Trouble This Time.

CINCINNATI, July 2.—Judson Harmon and Judge Rufus B. Smith of this city were today appointed receivers for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad, application for a receivership having been filed in the United States District Court earlier in the day on behalf of the Bankers Trust Company of New York. The bond of each of the receivers was placed at $50,000.

The petition asking for the receivers had declared that the entire bonded indebtedness of the railroad was $75,000,000 and charged that the company has defaulted on the interest of $29,190,000 first mortgage and refunding fifty-year gold bonds, on $3,162,000 bonds of the Indiana, Decatur & Western Railroad and on $4,722,000 bonds of the Cincinnati, Indiana & Western Railroad. The petition seeks the foreclosure of a mortgage estimated at $36,000,000. The trust company asks that officials and employes of the railroad be enjoined from interfering with, transferring or disposing of any of the property of the company.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton was thrown into the hands of a receiver in 1905, following the taking over of the property by J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. Judson Harmon, who was appointed receiver at that time, continued in that capacity until 1909, when the property was sold to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, the latter company guaranteeing certain of the securities. As a matter of fact, Judge Harmon technically never was relieved of the receivership.

In the petition filed today devastation due to the floods of 1913 and the ensuing pressure on the road are given as reasons why the company has been unable to meet its obligations. Following the filing of the petition, Morrison R. Waite, General Solicitor for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, filed an answer, admitting the allegations of the trust company, and consenting to a receivership.

The receivership for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, in which the Baltimore & Ohio has commitments aggregating $47,000,000, is not expected to disturb the larger road's dividends. The Directors meet next week to act on the semi-annual payment.

Daniel Willard, President of the B. & O., said yesterday in reply to a question regarding the dividend:

"Personally I see no reason to change the rate from the present 3 per cent. semi-annual disbursement. This is only my own opinion, and I do not wish to have it construed as the opinion of the board.

"I consider the appointment of Gov. Harmon and Judge Smith as receivers for the C., H. & D. as excellent. With two such receivers I feel sure that the best possible results will be obtained from the property.

"It may be assumed that the interests of the B. & O., the largest creditor, will be well served. As I testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the amount owed us by the C., H. & D. is in the neighborhood of $21,000,000, of which $11,500,000 represents the amount advanced for the payment of C., H. & D. notes guaranteed by the B. & O. The remainder represents cash advanced for construction, betterments, new equipment and repairs following the flood."

B. & M. BILL NEAR PASSAGE.

Scheduled for Final Vote Today—Hampden Suit Filed.

BOSTON, July 2.—The Fisher-Ellis bill, providing for the separation of the Boston & Maine and New Haven Railroad Companies and allowing the State to retain control of the Boston & Maine stock held by the Boston Railroad holding company for the New Haven Road, was passed to a third reading in the Senate today by a vote of 37 to 2. All amendments offered, and a substitute introduced by Calvin Coolidge, President of the Senate, were defeated, leaving the bill in the same form in which it passed the House. It is understood that it will be passed to engrossment tomorrow without further debate.

An attachment for $4,000,000 was filed by the Hampden Railroad corporation against the Boston & Maine Railroad Company here today. Earlier in the day a suit to enforce contract liabilities was entered by the Hampden Railroad corporation seeking to recover from the Boston & Maine between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000, the approximate cost of the construction of the Hampden line. The railroad extends from Bondsville, a village in Palmer, to Springfield, a distance of fifteen miles, but has never been operated. At the time construction was begun Charles S. Mellen was President of the Boston & Maine. After his retirement the Boston & Maine Directors refused to ratify the lease.

NEW PIERCE OIL CO. NOTES.

Company Pays Off $8,000,000 and Puts Out $10,000,000 at 6%.

The Pierce Oil Corporation has paid the $8,000,000 one-year notes that matured July 1. The company has sold to Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. and Hayden, Stone & Co. $10,000,000 ten-year 6 per cent. debentures, convertible into Pierce Oil Company stock at par. The company recently changed the par value of its stock from $100 to $25. Holders of the old stock can exchange it for the new shares at the office of the transfer agent or at the New York Trust Company. Trustees of the agreement securing the new bonds are A. H. Wiggin, Charles H. Sabin, and Moritz Rosenthal. Charles Hayden of Hayden, Strong & Co. and W. T. Rosen of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. are to be elected Directors and members of the Finance Committee of the oil company.

ORDERS GOLD INQUIRY.

McAdoo Wants to Know About Bankers Learning of Shipments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Secretary McAdoo has ordered a searching investigation to be made to discover what Government official in New York is responsible for the advance information disclosed two weeks ago in regard to the shipment of gold from interior points in the country to New York to meet the demand for export to Europe.

It is the unvarying rule of the office of the United States Treasurer not to allow the slightest publicity as to shipments of gold made by the Government, because there is great risk in such shipments, even under the best of precautions.

The information is said to have enabled some bankers to sell foreign exchange short and take advantage of the lower rates brought about by the arrival of gold in New York.

FIGHT OVER POPE ASSETS.

Some Stockholders Object to Sale in Massachusetts.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 2.—Sale of the assets of the Pope Manufacturing Company at public auction in Massachusetts was opposed today at a hearing before Judge William L. Bennett by lawyers representing certain stockholders and merchandise creditors. George Pope, the receiver, favored selling the assets in Connecticut and Massachusetts separately.

The application for sale was made by a Boston creditors' committee, and at the conclusion of the hearing the court reserved decision for a few days.

Kansas Regulates Express Rates.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 2.—A general reduction of 17 per cent. on all general merchandise express rates, elimination of the two-line rates, and an end to all special rates have been ordered by the Kansas Public Utilities Commission. The order followed an investigation of all express rates and charges and numerous public hearings by the commission. The express companies must install uniform rates to all Kansas points at once.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

THE TEXAS & PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS.

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of stockholders of The Texas & Pacific Railway Company will be held at the principal office of the Company, No. 165 Broadway, New York City, on the 3d day of August, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon for the purpose of considering, voting, and acting upon the following matters, namely:

1. The approval and ratification of a proposed agreement between this Company, the New Orleans Pacific Railway Company, and St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, granting and demising to St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, the right and estate of using, jointly and equally with this Company, that portion of its railroad from Alexandria to Mile Post 9, or from Ferriday, by way of Addis, to said Mile Post 9, together with the right to purchase that portion of the line of this Company between the town of Ferriday, in the State of Louisiana, and the town of Addis in said State.
2. The approval and ratification of a proposed agreement between this Company, the New Orleans Pacific Railway Company, St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, The Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company, and Guaranty Trust Company of New York, providing for the use by this Company and St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company of the terminals and property of The Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company.
3. The approval and authorization of the guaranty by this Company, jointly and severally with St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, of all First Mortgage Bonds which may be issued from time to time by The Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company, not exceeding $7,500,000, face amount.
4. The approval and ratification of the sale by this Company, at par, of $50,000 par value of the Capital Stock of The Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company, being one-half of the total authorized and outstanding stock of said Company.
5. The approval and authorization of a lease by this Company to the Trans-Mississippi Terminal Company of all the present terminal property and facilities of this Company in the City of New Orleans, including all the rights, privileges, and franchises, tracks, buildings, and warehouses and also all property of this Company on the west bank of the Mississippi River opposite the City of New Orleans, also the transfer boats of this Company and all of its property at Gouldsboro, Gretna, and Westwego, including elevators, docks, and wharves, also the main line tracks and right-of-way of this Company from the west bank of the Mississippi River opposite the City of New Orleans to Mile Post 9, also the assignment to said Terminal Company of all the rights, privileges, and franchises granted to this Company by any and all ordinances by the City of New Orleans and by any and all resolutions of the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans, the considerations of said lease and assignment to be fixed by the respective officers of this Company and St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company.
6. The approval and ratification of all action heretofore taken by the Board of Directors and by the officers of this Company in the premises, and the approval of any and all further action which may be necessary and proper.
7. Such other matters and things as may lawfully come before said special meeting.

Books for the transfer of stock of the Company will be closed for the purpose of the Special Meeting at 3 o'clock P. M. on the 24th day of July, 1914, and will be reopened at 10 o'clock A. M. on the 4th day of August, 1914. By order of the

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The commission has confirmed the designation of James S. Hervey, Robert L. Smith, and Shepard A. Morgan to compose the Board of Promotions for the Finance Department.

These reports of Mr. Fuld have been approved:

Recommending that the list for promotion to Marine Engineer in the Dept. of Health be promulgated, the two candidates having presented their Chief Engineer's licenses for inspection.

Relative to the request of the Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply that the commission accept the waivers of six Second Grade Foremen as declining to enter the promotion for Third Grade Foreman and that the commission consider the non-competitive examination taken by Messrs. Lenihan, Fagan, and Sweeney, Second Grade Foremen, for provisional assignment to the Third Grade, as a regular promotion test. Mr. Fuld recommends that the requests be denied.

Recommending that the commission grant the request of the Commissioner of Public Works that William Goldsmith, a Third Grade Inspector of Public Works, be given a non-competitive examination in which to qualify for provisional assignment as Superintendent of Asphalt Plant, pending the holding of a promotion examination.

United States.

A competitive examination will be held on July 6 for fiber Inspector, for men only, to fill several vacancies in the Philippine service, at $1,800 to $2,000 a year. It shall be their duty to make periodical inspection of all grading establishments within their jurisdiction; to inspect all graded and baled abaca, maguey, sisal, and other fibers which are intended for export; to collect inspection fees; and to issue certificates of inspection. Competitors will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated on general education, technical education, general experience in grading and inspecting fibers, and special experience in grading and inspecting cordage fibers. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

High-Grade Woolen Yarns Active.

There is an active demand reported at the present time for high-grade woolen yarns, such as are used in hand-made fancy knit goods. In sympathy with the higher cost of raw wool, prices on these yarns are higher than ever and very firm. This is especially true of the sizes running from 2-8 to 2-30, of which the supply is said not to be over-liberal.

Are Selling Lots of Neckties.

If men's cravats can be called luxuries, and if luxuries are not bought in hard times, there is not much wrong with the present status of business. In other words, business in the men's neckwear field has been fine of late, advance orders for the Fall season showing up much better than it was expected they would. All kinds of ties seem to be in demand—cut silks, tubulars, and the better class of knitted scarfs. One well-known house that makes all of these goods did a record business in June, the order books showing sales of 20,000 dozen ties in that month alone for August and September delivery.

Gray Goods Show Little Life.

There was little life to the local gray goods market yesterday, the pre-holiday feeling being very evident. There were some sales of 38-inch 60-48s at 4 5-16 cents, and some sales of 64-56s in the same width were made by second hands at 4⅝ cents. Despite this concession the mills were firm in their demand for 4¾ cents. Buyers seem willing to place substantial contracts for 39-inch 68-72s for late deliveries if they can get them at 5½ cents, but the mills are not yet willing to accept this figure. The same holds true of 38½-inch 64-60s, which buyers want to take for late delivery at 4⅞ cents. These goods are now selling in a small way at that figure for near-by delivery. There was a small movement of drills and sheetings during the day, and a nice business continued to come forward on piques, lawns, and other lightweight goods.

Will They Listen to the Band?

A certain silk-printing concern, hoping to entertain both its employes and the workers in the mills near its plant, has organized a brass band from the male members of its organization. To make sure that the music will be sweet, the concern has permitted a committee of the employes to petition the silk trade, on the firm's letterhead, for the wherewithal to buy the instruments. These pleas have aroused no small amount of unfavorable criticism, and one prominent manufacturer asks if sabotage must be faced if no contributions are sent. It is intimated that the firm in question is going to lose some business because of the letters that have been sent out. There have been any number of pleas for contributions of various sorts by store organizations of the wholesale houses from which they buy, but this is thought to be the first time on record that a concern with something to sell has permitted its possible customers to be canvassed for aid.

Ribbon Outlook Good for Fall.

The outlook for ribbons for the Fall season is said to be unusually bright this year. Velvet ribbons look especially good, with the color indications pointing toward black. The most popular width in these ribbons will, it is said, be 30 lignes. Roman stripes will continue in style for Fall, despite the feeling in some quarters that they had about shot their bolt. One large house received a hundred Fall samples from Paris during the week, and 95 of them showed Roman stripes, both in silks and in velvets. Ombré effects in both silk and velvet are being shown for Fall, but they are very high-priced. Some of these goods run as high as $1.20 a yard. High-priced metal effects in ribbons are also thought well of. In the less expensive ribbons the most favored seem to be modified French plaids, and both plain and moiréd gros grains. There is some difference of opinion regarding the status of plain satin ribbons for Fall.

Braid Coming Back with a Rush.

The return to broadcloths and serges for Fall dresses and the abolition of a great part of the draping which has featured dresses for some little time have been the means of bringing braid back into fashion with a rush. Current business is so heavy and the demands for prompt shipments so great that it is said the braid houses may not be able to fill all the orders they have taken. Combination binding and trimming braids are being used liberally on the tunics of the Fall dresses in all colors and in widths ranging up to ten inches. The call is best, however, for the widths between two and four inches. Braids are also being used on waists and for binding the Fall skirts. Capes are also helping the demand, they being edged with dainty fur trimmings. Cape cords with tassels, both in black and colors, are in demand for use with combination cape and jacket effects. Plain Hercules braid, without filling, is being used to a considerable extent, and fancy braid ornaments for false pockets and the backs of coats are in favor also.

The Raw Silk Summary.

Cable advices from Italy report the new crop of raw silk to be 10 per cent. above the average. The cocoon markets are closing at an advance, and the cost of new silk promises to be high. There is a fair business doing at Yokohama, according to reports received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., with prices steady. Sales for the last week amounted to 2,600 bales. Canton definitely fixes the yield of the third crop at 8,000 to 10,000 bales for export, which is about the same amount as last year. On the other hand, the fourth crop is reported seriously damaged, and holders are reluctant to sell. Prices have advanced slightly. Shanghai is quiet, but firm. Little silk is being offered there because buyers do not seem to want to meet the views of sellers as to prices. The local market is quiet and the demand remains mostly confined to spot silk. Manufacturers seem inclined to hold off on future orders until the prices of the new crops can be more definitely fixed, and until they learn better their own requirements for Fall. Low stocks have resulted in some slight advances in prices here on certain grades.

Fighting Fraudulent Bankrupts.

The National Jewelers' Board of Trade, a protective trade organization, is waging a vigorous and relentless campaign against fraudulent bankrupts. Only recently it caused the arrest of George, Frank, and Bert Rentz and James Collins of Wells, Minn., and recovered from them for the creditors jewelry and other merchandise which had been stored away in a warehouse amounting to over $5,000. The board, working through its Chicago manager, Frank M. Hickok, uncovered this fraud, and a tentative proposition from the bankrupts' attorneys that they shall offer a plea of guilty to the charge of conspiracy to secrete assets, has met the approval of the United States District Attorney at that point. The case will be transferred to Duluth, so that it may be tried this month. The search for the jewelry, which had been shipped to a farm four miles from Wells, entailed the search of the house on the place, as well as some of the outbuildings. Some of the jewelry had also been stored in boxes, crates, and barrels in a big warehouse under the name of a school supply house. All of the jewelry was found by a special investigator employed by the board.

Windsor Locks Directors Vindicated

HARTFORD, Conn., July 2.—Judge W. L. Bennett, of the Superior Court, in a memorandum filed today holds that Directors of the Windsor Locks Savings Bank are not liable for the defalcation of nearly $100,000 which occurred during the many years Alfred W. Converse, the Treasurer, held office.

TO FILE $861,000 FUEL SUIT.

Government Wants Damages from Western Company.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—John W. Preston, United States Attorney for the District of Northern California, will file suit in the United States District Court to recover $861,000 damages from the Western Fuel Company. The suit is to be the first of a series involving several million dollars.

James B. Smith, Vice President and General Manager of the company, and a number of other officials were convicted last January of conspiracy to defraud the Government of customs duties and drawback on imported coal and of grossly overweighing coal delivered to army transports. Appeal against prison sentences imposed on them is still pending.

John Howard, President of the Western Fuel Comany; Robert Bruce, and Sydney V. Smith, Directors, and Joseph L. Smith, Treasurer and Director, were indicted in connection with the charges. Later they were cleared. President Howard's exoneration came too late, as he died an hour after the Government completed its case.

In the new suits Mr. Preston seeks to recover the full value of each cargo on which the Government was defrauded.

AUCTION SALES

Lansden Company, Newark, N. J.

The undersigned will sell at public auction, subject to the confirmation of the Court, the plant, equipment, patents and sketches of the Lansden Company, makers of the Lansden Electric Truck, at Newark, N. J.

PLANT—The plant, consisting of a machine shop, woodworking shop, paint shop, assembling rooms, draughting room and separate offices, is ready for immediate operation. The machinery, including two of the latest style Gishelt Turning Lathes, and other machinery of equal value, is ready for instant use. It may be adapted to the making of gasoline or electric trucks, or pleasure cars, or to a machine shop.

PATENTS—The Lansden car was the first electric commercial car made, has been on the market ten years, and the first cars produced are still in good running order.

The patents and plans are very valuable. Draughting room equipment, with sketches and blue prints, including 1913 model, is complete.

Sale in separate lots, or, if desired, as one complete going business.

Sale MONDAY, July 13th, 1914, at 9:00 A. M., at the premises, No. 394 Frelinghuysen Avenue, Newark, N. J.

Property now open for inspection.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Jacob H. Schiff's Stable Sold for Architects' School—Stephen H. Clark Sells Residence—Good Harlem Deal—Controller Prendergast Buys Brooklyn Home—Bronx and Suburban Transactions.

Considerable activity characterized the realty market yesterday. While none of the deals involved large considerations, they represented a buying interest in several parts of the city. In the Lenox Hill residential section two good sales were made, one being the residence of Stephen C. Clark at 38 East Sixty-eighth Street, while the other was the stable of the banker, Jacob H. Schiff, at 126 East Seventy-fifth Street, covering a plot 39.6 by 102.2 adjoining the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue. The property has been purchased by the Beaux Arts Association, which will remodel the building as an atelier for the instruction of young architects. Plans are being prepared for the necessary changes by the architects, Satterlee & Boyd. The deal was closed through William A. White & Sons acting for the owner and E. De Forest Simmons representing the buyers.

Stephen C. Clark Residence Sold.

Stephen C. Clark has sold his residence at 38 East Sixty-eighth Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, covering a plot 16 by 100.5. It has been held at $80,000. Mr. Clark bought the house about a year ago from William H. Barnard. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Co. were the brokers.

Architect Buys in 63d Street.

Just below the Lenox Hill centre within the growing east side residential section an interesting deal was made in the purchase by Frederick J. Sterner of the two three-story houses at 154 and 156 East Sixty-third Street, between Third and Lexington Avenues. The plot is 32 by 104.4. The owners of record are respectively Henry Meyers and Frederick W. Bienhauser. Mr. Sterner is an architect living at 139 East Nineteenth Street, in the block between Irving Place and Third Avenue which he has been largely instrumental in transforming into one of the most artistic blocks architecturally in the city. He plans to convert both of the Sixty-third Street houses into a fine residence for his occupancy.

$1,400,000 Paid by St. Bartholmew's

St. Bartholomew's Church took title yesterday to the block front on the east side of Park Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets. The recorded deed shows that $1,400,000 was paid for the site to the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company. It is subject to a mortgage for $700,000. At the same time the church had a mortgage for $750,000 recorded given on its present site, southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, to the United States Trust Company, for three years at 5 per cent.

Builders Buy Big Harlem Plot.

A large deal in the upper Harlem section has been made by Lowenfeld & Prager who sold seven lots on the north side of 145th Street, 100 feet west of Lenox Avenue, occupying a plot 175 by 99.11 to the William Slattery Construction Company, Incorporated. The buyers will erect three six-story apartment houses, each having a frontage of 58.4. Kurz & Uren were the brokers and they have procured a building loan of $150,000 for the projected improvements.

Sullivan Tenements Sold.

Two six-story tenements carrying a plot 73 by 108 on the southeast corner of Mott and Broome Streets, formerly owned by the late Timothy D. Sullivan, have been purchased by Rinalli & Guardino from Antonio Fanci. The latter acquired the property at a foreclosure auction sale a week ago. The recent deal was closed by Hiram Rinaldo. The property includes 166 to 170 Mott Street and 365 to 369 Broome Street.

Tenement Investments.

The five-story flat at 2,456 Eighth Avenue, between 131st and 132d Streets on lot 25 by 100 has been sold by Charles Goldberg to Leonard Weill for Jennie Koplik. Mr. Weill has sold the five-story tenement at 310 West Sixteenth Street, on lot 25 by 103.3 to a Mrs. Schano.

The four-story tenement at 347 West 105th Street, near First Avenue, on lot 25 by 100.11 has been sold by Frank and Maria G. Fallotico to Marion Antonio Gargiulo. The broker was Joseph Guarino.

Bronx-Manhattan Trade.

A Bronx deal in which a Manhattan tenement figured in trade involved the purchase by the Keilbert Construction Company from Lowenfeld & Prager of the plot 112.6 by 100 on the west side of Findlay Avenue, 516.6 north of 169th Street. In exchange the buyers gave the five-story tenement at 519 First Avenue, near Thirtieth Street, on plot 25 by 75.

Bronx Borough.

The five-story apartment house at 1,656 University Avenue, forty-five feet south of Brandt Place, has been purchased by Mary A. Dempsey from Maud Morrell. The plot is 40 by 100 and the consideration was $50,000. Maurice J. McCarthy was the broker. This is the second apartment purchased recently by the buyer in the neighborhood.

The five-story new law flat at 1,503 Charlotte Street, on plot 37.6 by 100, has been sold by Philip Steinnaw & Son for J. Lichansky to Miss Gerson for investment. The seller recently bought through the same broker the five-story flat at 1,590 Madison Avenue, 25 by 100. Both were cash transactions.

John A. Steinmetz has sold for A. Adams to Charles Johnson the two-story building at 1,542 Hoe Avenue on lot 25 by 100, between 172d and 173d Streets, and also for Phelan Brothers the house at 1,274 Findlay Avenue on lot 16.6 by 100, near 169th Street.

The Henry Morgenthau Company has sold to the Normal Construction Company the southeast corner of Fox Street and Avenue St. John, 75 by 100. The plot will be improved with a five-story apartment house. Eddy A. Weinstein was the broker.

Controller Prendergast Buys Brooklyn Home.

Controller William A. Prendergast has purchased the residence of the late Thomas A. Pearsall at 85 Eighth Avenue, between Union and President Streets. It is a four-story and basement brownstone dwelling on a plot 22 by 100 feet. It is within one block of the Montauk Club. The assessed value is $21,000. Controller Prendergast will make some alterations and occupy the house in the Fall.

Brooklyn.

The Jerome Property Corporation has sold 386 Fifth Avenue, southeast corner of Sixth Street, a three-story business building, on lot 23.6 by 90, for J. S. Corrigan to a client for investment.

Harry Levy has sold for a client the residence at 80 Argyle Road, corner of Church Avenue, Flatbush, on plot 75 by 100, and a private dwelling at 200 Putnam Avenue, on plot 16.8 by 98.9, to an investor who gave in part payment eighteen acres in Ronkonkoma, L. I.

I. Salzberg has sold for John Connelly to J. Glass a three-story two-family cottage on plot 30 by 100 at 1,421 Forty-sixth Street.

James B. Thomas has sold for Thomas Spalding the four-story double brick apartment house on the north side of Kent Street, 570 feet east of Manhattan Avenue, in the Greenpoint section. The plot is 28 by 100. The purchaser, a Brooklynite, bought for investment.

Buys $40,000 Astoria Apartment.

An interesting sale in the Astoria district has been made by James B. Thomas, who has sold for the W. & R. Building Corporation the new four-story brick apartment house on the east side of Jamaica Avenue, 150 feet south of Hopkins Avenue. The plot has a frontage of 50 feet on Jamaica Avenue and a depth of 148 feet. The house contains twenty-four apartments, and while only completed a month ago, all are practically rented. It is one of the best apartment dwellings in Astoria.

The purchaser is a resident of Astoria and bought for investment. The consideration was about $40,000. Confidence in property of this character in the lower Jamaica Avenue section is evidenced by many recent sales of apartment houses in that vicinity.

Long Island.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company has sold at Hempstead lots to H. B. Strauss, U. A. Burke, M. Shea, H. Curry, W. Hermann, E. A. Ayton, E. Panchard, M. J. Cavanaugh, J. McNamara and M. Moran, and at Valley Stream plots to M. Coyle and A. W. Deady.

Westchester County.

Van Norden & Wilson have sold for the Manor Heights Corporation to Lawrence H. Austin a plot 100 by 125 feet, on the west side of Fowler Avenue, 150 feet south of Witherbee Avenue, Pelham Manor, on which Mr. Austin will erect a dwelling for his occupancy.

The same firm also sold for the Manor Heights Corporation to Lewis W. Francis two lots on the west side of Pelham Manor Road.

The Gedney Farm Company has sold to Frederick H. Hurdman three plots on Willets Avenue and Robin Hood Road, Gedney Farm. The site adjoins the one recently purchased by Robert E. Farley, President of the company.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons have rented the warehouse at 268 West Broadway, running through to 6 York Street, to the Continental Paper Bag Company, a large Maine corporation. The building has been vacant for nearly seven years. The lease indicates the tendency to retain the lower west side as a warehouse and shipping district.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company have leased for the Bendheim Construction Company the corner store in the six-story building now nearing completion on the southeast corner of Sherman Avenue and Academy Street. The tenant is Charles Greenberg, who will occupy it as a drug store.

Dwellings Leased.

Slawson & Hobbs have leased for the estate of Julia C. Johnson the four-story dwelling 27 West Eighty-second Street to S. A. Moore.

A. G. Thompson has leased for Mrs. Bertha M. Johnson the brownstone dwelling at 22 West 131st Street to Oscar Godfrey.

The Duross Company have leased for the estate of Henry Maibrunn the four-story brownstone house at 255 West Fourth Street to Charles Galli.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Wenzel to Frederick Brown the three-story house at 91 Park Avenue, between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Streets; also, for Leo Salomon to Mrs. George H. Broadhurst the four-story house at 759 West End Avenue; for Mrs. Thomas F. White the five-story American basement house at 34 Riverside Drive to F. C. Armstrong; for Eugene Vallens to Dr. Herbert M. Kaufman the five-story American basement residence 316 West 101st Street, and for Mrs. Francis Sprague to Harry Lesser the five-story American basement house 310 West Ninety-second Street.

Receiver for Fifth Avenue Building

Justice Greenbaum has appointed Robert H. Montgomery receiver of the rents of the Croisic Building, on the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, a twenty-story structure, pending a suit brought by the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company, as trustee for bondholders, against the Croisic Realty Company and others, to foreclose a second mortgage of $200,000. The prior mortgage is $1,200,000, held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Realty Notes.

Plans have been filed for installing a gymnasium in the parish house of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, at 133 to 145 West Forty-sixth Street, at a cost of $10,000. D. W. Vaide is the architect.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The disturbance that was over the region of the Great Lakes Wednesday has passed off the Southern New England Coast. During the last twenty-four hours it caused general showers in the Atlantic States and the lower Lake region.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are also reported from the Gulf States, Tennessee, and Southern Rocky Mountain region.

Temperatures have risen somewhat in the Middle Atlantic States and the Ohio, Mississippi Valleys, but are nearly at or above the seasonal average over all parts of the country.

Except for scattered showers over the South Atlantic and Gulf States and the Southern Rocky Mountain region the weather will be generally fair Friday and Saturday throughout the country.

The temperature will rise Friday and Saturday throughout the region of the Great Lakes and the North Atlantic States, and will change little elsewhere during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds along the Atlantic Coast Friday and Saturday will be light to moderate variable.

FORECASTS TODAY AND TOMORROW.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and warmer Friday and Saturday.

Western New York—Generally fair, with rising temperature Friday and Saturday.

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	77	62	4 P. M.	86	78
12 M.	91	75	11 P. M.	75	65

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 70; for the corresponding date last year it was 84; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 72.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 64; at 8 P. M. it was 69. Maximum temperature 80 degrees at 2:10 P. M.; minimum 59 degrees at 5 A. M. Humidity 84 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 65 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.89 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.92 inches.

'SHOW YOUR FLAGS!' IS FINAL 4TH ORDER

Everybody Urged to Wear the Stars and Stripes and Float Them from His Windows.

GUNS TO BOOM AT SUNRISE

From That Signal Till Midnight Every Minute Is to Have Its Patriotic Expression.

In a final word to the people of the city who expect to have a good time tomorrow celebrating the Fourth of July in the approved safe and sane fashion, Chairman Martin W. Littleton of Mayor Mitchel's Fourth of July Committee advised last night that every one wear a flag and hang another flag from his window.

The purpose of the flags is not so much to adorn the wearers or the houses as to put a final touch to the committee's plans for a great day. Everything but the flag decorations was arranged by the committee, whose plans included speeches for those who like speeches, band music for those who like it, public school programmes for those to whom such things appeal, and finally games and races in every borough for the athletic.

"Let the citizens bring out the Stars and Stripes," said Chairman Littleton, as he left his office yesterday after concluding his final interview with the last of his sub-committee Chairmen in need of advice. "Every detail is worked out," he said, "and an important detail is that homes shall be decorated in the daytime and illuminated at night. Such homes will add just the colors we want."

The adherents of the more remote era to whom a Fourth of July would not be real without cannon crackers and bombs will not be entirely overlooked. It is planed to have guns fired at sunrise in every borough, and from the time the artillery booms to usher in the day there is to be something "safe and ultra-sane" for every minute until midnight.

The big event of the afternoon for those who are not attracted to the park festivities will be, of course, the aeroplane race up the Hudson to Spuyten Duyvil and back and out to the Atlantic Yacht Club and back to Governors Island. Eight land and water machines have been entered, and Lieut. Porte, pilot of the America, announced last night that he would enter the race, provided he could find a craft to fly. The race will begin at 3 o'clock. One of the entrants, J. B. R. Verplank, covered the course yesterday in a flying boat. Three others got permission from the Aero Club to fly from Garden City to the starting point at Governors Island. They were warned to fly south of Garden City, south of Jamaica, and to take to the over-water route at Sea Gate, being careful to avoid passing above any city.

David T. Todd, the astronomer, who had accepted a place on the Aero Club's committee in charge of the race, found that he would have to leave during its progress, as the steamship Dwinsk, on which he was to sail for Russia, was scheduled to sail at 4 P. M. Prof. Todd acepted the proffer of a flying boat to carry him to his steamship in one-tenth of the time required by ferry.

No resident of any borough will have to go outside his own bailiwick to find plenty of places to celebrate in any manner that may seem preferable. The central celebrations for each borough will be at the Borough Halls between 10 A. M. and noon. At these celebrations souvenir programmes will be given away telling of the events for the day and just where they may be found in each borough. After the morning exercises at the Borough Halls, it is planned to entertain the crowds in the parks in the afternoon and at song rallies in the evening.

The patriotic rally at City Hall is scheduled to begin promptly at 10 o'clock. Martin W. Littleton will preside, and Mayor Mitchel will be the principal speaker. The Mayor will leave at the conclusion of his speech for Brooklyn, where he will address those gathered at the Brooklyn Borough Hall.

Borough President Marks, who has taken particular pains to see that all the minor celebrations in Manhattan were worked up in good form, has arranged for a full speaking schedule for the day.

In the morning he will speak at celebrations at City Hall, at Carl Schurz Park, and at Mount Morris Park. In the afternoon he will speak at 4 o'clock at Thomas Jefferson Park and at 5 o'clock at Isham Park. In the evening he will speak at City Hall at 8 o'clock, Washington Square at 8:30, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument at 9, and at Grant's Tomb at 9:30.

Here is the full schedule of local celebrations in various Manhattan neighborhoods:

At Brighton Beach the American Society of Engineers, Architects, and Constructors will hold a patriotic rally on the subject of Washington as a road builder and the good roads problem.

Besides the formidable list of neighborhood celebrations there will be a special "safe and sane" celebration at each school house in Manhattan at 10:30 o'clock A. M. These celebrations will last until noon.

The musical attractions for the day will be almost as widespread as the list of city parks. Park Commissioner Cabot Ward announced the return of the once-famous Fanciulli military band for a concert at City Hall in the morning and at Grant's tomb in the evening.

At Central Park the season will be opened with a concert at 8 P. M. on the Mall by Nahan Franko's orchestra. This organization has been recruited, according to Commissioner Ward, from the most famous orchestras in the city, including the New York Symphony Orchestra, the Philharmonic, the Victor Herbert and Sousa bands.

An "official illumination tour" will be made by the city officials headed by Mayor Mitchel just after dark. In Manhattan alone 26,000 red, white, and blue electric bulbs have been strung through the trees in the parks and along the outlines of public buildings. In the parks, where folk dancing is scheduled, lamps of 5,000 and 2,000 candle power have been strung. The new Municipal Building and City Hall will be illuminated in a manner intended to forecast the possibilities of that section of the city after it has been worked out as a civic centre.

The parks outside of Manhattan at which athletic and other exercises will be held include the following:

Staten Island.—Westerleigh, St. Peter's, Curtiss Field.

Brooklyn.—McCarren, Brooklyn Athletic Field, Commercial Field, Thirteenth Regiment Athletic Field, Red Hook, Williamsburgh, McLaughlin, New Lots, Bushwick, McKibben.

Queens.—Kings Park, Astoria, Hollis Field.

The Bronx.—Crotona, Pelham Park, McComb's Dam Park, St. Mary's Park, Fulton Park.

The Health Department, not to be outdone by the other city departments, took a hand in the plans for the celebration by issuing a general warning against lockjaw. It advised all persons receiving powder wounds to seek anti-toxin treatment at once. Delay in this regard might prove fatal, it was said, as the anti-toxin has not been known to cure a case of lockjaw after it has once developed.

REPORT 35 CASES TO ACCIDENT BOARD

First Formal Notices of Mishaps Received Under Workmen's Compensation Law.

NAMES NOT MADE PUBLIC

Prof. Baldwin Says Insurance Companies Have Injured State Fund by Misrepresentations.

The first formal notices of accidents to workmen in occupation coming within the scope of the workmen's compensation law were received by the Claims Division of the Workmen's Compensation Commission by mail yesterday. The commission was notified that thirty-five persons had been hurt and that one of them, injured on Wednesday on the site of the new Equitable Building in lower Broadway, had died.

Under a temporary ruling of the Compensation Commission, the names of claimants for compensation will not be made public. It was pointed out to the Commissioners yesterday that the law called for publicity in all cases coming before them, and it was said on behalf of the commission that the ruling might be reversed later on. But for the present all the records of the Claims Division will be closed.

Prof. F. Spencer Baldwin, Manager of the State Insurance Fund, which is being administered by the Compensation Commission, returned yesterday from a trip up-State in which he visited Buffalo, Rochester, and some other cities, where he addressed meetings of manufacturers and Chambers of Commerce, explaining the provisions of the new law and the plans for administering the State Insurance Fund. Prof. Baldwin said yesterday that he was well satisfied with the result of his trip.

In the course of his trip up-State Prof. Baldwin addressed the members of the Street Railway Association of the State of New York, which was in convention at the Hotel Champlain on June 30. After Prof. Baldwin had made his address the association, of which Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York City Railways, is President, appointed a committee to confer with the Compensation Commission with a view to taking out insurance in the State Fund for all the companies in the association, except, possibly, corporations of such magnitude as the Interborough and allied companies, which as a rule, carry self-insurance.

"When I was connected with the Massachusetts Compensation Commission the State Fund there had virtually all the street railways in that State and considered them good risks," said Prof. Baldwin. "These street railroads had been paying a rate of $6.50 for $100 with the stock companies. The State Fund insured them at the rate of $1.70 and did not lose anything on the contract. I believe the State Fund here ought to have the bulk of the street railway business in this State. We will go after that business, and all the business we can get for the State Fund in a thorough and businesslike manner."

If these corporations come into the State Fund, it is the intention of the Compensation Commission to put them all in a group by themselves where they will derive the benefit from their own experience and not have their rates loaded with the risk of more hazardous occupations insured with the State Fund. Prof. Baldwin said that any one company having at least 3,000 employes and a payroll of $3,000,000 could at its own option be put in a group by itself, where it practically would be as well off, or perhaps better off, than if it was a self-insurer. The International Railway Company of Buffalo, which has insured its compensation risks with the State Fund, has been in that way put in a group by itself.

About fifty employers have applied to the commission for permission to carry their own insurance against compensation risks. Some applications have been turned down but a majority have been granted by the Compensation Commission. About $3,000,000 in bonds, equal to the semi-annual premium the respective employers would be compelled to pay on their payrolls if insuring with the State Fund, has been deposited with the commission by such employers to insure their faithful discharge of all liabilities incurred under the Compensation act. A majority of the securities consist of New York City bonds, for which as a result there has been considerable demand in the market since the Compensation act became operative.

Harry A. Gordon, a lawyer of 320 Broadway, who is counsel for the Cotton Garment Manufacturers of New York, in a report to that association yesterday urged them to insure in the State Fund. Mr. Gordon points out that in the State Fund his clients can have insurance against all liabilities under the Compensation act at 15 cents for each $100 of payroll where the rate of the stock insurance and the mutual companies, he says, is 36 cents.

DEFENDS COMMERCIAL RATES.

Insurance Department Tells Why Massachusetts Scale Wasn't Used.

The view taken by the Workmen's Compensation Commission, that the rates approved by the State Insurance Department for stock and mutual insurance companies were excessive and were based on miscalculations, was controverted yesterday by the department, which intimated that the commission had jumped to conclusions.

The gist of the matter is that the actuaries of the State Fund had found that the Manual Committee of the liability underwriters, whose data were used by the Insurance Department, had not followed strictly the "pure cost" shown by Massachusetts experience in arriving at the prospective "pure cost" in this State and in applying the proper factor for bringing the basic "pure cost" to actual premium rates.

"This fact," said the statement of the Insurance Department, "was well known to the department, to the actuaries of the State Insurance Fund, and to the public in general. The pure cost for compensation insurance determined by the committee of liability underwriters was scrutinized carefully by the Insurance Department and received approval after the department was satisfied as to the correctness and reasonableness of the pure cost determined by such committee.

"At no time did any actuary or compensation expert advance the view that the pure basic cost should follow absolutely the experience of Massachusetts. There are a variety of industries in Massachusetts which are not comparable with industries in New York. On the other hand, there are a variety of industries and occupations in New York for which no real experience can be found in Massachusetts.

"Generally speaking, the Massachusetts experience was followed wherever such experience was sufficient in volume and character to form a proper guide for New York rates. In classifications where the volume of pay-roll in Massachusetts was insufficient the committee necessarily searched for data in other States, principally New Jersey and Illinois.

"At no time was the Insurance Department under any misapprehension of the actual methods pursued by the Manual Committee. It was clearly understood that the committee has not adopted Massachusetts experience as the sole experience for determining New York compensation rates. In certain classifications, for instance, where the experience was so limited as to practically amount to zero, the pure cost had to be obtained from experience in New Jersey or other sources. In classifications where there was an absence of experience as to injuries resulting in death or dismemberment, the pure cost shown by Massachusetts was increased by a proper factor to take care of such abnormal experience. In minor classifications, where the payrolls were small, industries of analogous hazard were grouped so as to produce a more substantial volume of payroll. For purposes of this grouping, the committee was necessarily obliged to exercise proper judgment in addition to the statistical data available.

"It would seem that a matter so important and so technical in its character should receive careful consideration and that no hasty judgment should be formed until after a thorough investigation of the facts involved. The department is pleased to see that it is the intention of the actuarial department of the Workmen's Compensation Commission to proceed with a further study of the subject before recommending modifications in the premium rates.

"Granting, for the sake of argument, that the actual pure cost, as shown by Massachusetts experience, is less than the theoretic pure cost established for New York, the fact that the employers in New York will receive a discount for merit rating and experience four times as great as the employers in Massachusetts is bound to produce relatively a lower cost for compensation insurance in this State than in Massachusetts."

Rector's
THE FEATURE OF RECTOR DINING IS THE FOOD

Our cuisine and service are the chief features of our restaurant. While there is beauty, refinement, luxurious appointments and superior entertainment awaiting you, you will find that the biggest feature we offer is our food. With us cuisine and service is no study, but an art that we have mastered. We solved the question of getting the best by exacting supervision at the farm field.

We tell our farmers how they must gather our supplies, and insist that our meats and poultry be fresh daily—not from cold storage, but fresh from the abattoir and the farm field.

Under the direction of Mr. E. H. Nies (formerly of Delmonico's, St. Regis, the Plaza and the Biltmore) our cuisine and service has reached the highest point of efficiency yet attained in modern restaurants. There is a skill and amiability manifest here that is freely commented upon by experienced New Yorkers.

Elimination of waste enables us to set before you the best food in New York at prices surprisingly moderate.
